FARMERS CALL FOR SPEEDY END TO DEFLATION

Notice Served on Government Agencies That Producers Must Obtain Cost of Production Plus Reasonable Profit.

MARION BUTLER TRIES TO INJECT POLITICS

But He Is Frowned Upon by Delegates to Agricultural Conference at Washington—Senator Smith, of South Carolina, Attacks Houston.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON,
Constitution Staff Correspondent.

Washington, October 12.—Two hundred agricultural leaders today, together with many members o the senate and house of representatives, served notice on the agencies which are determined to pound down the price of farm products that deflation must end, and that the producers must obtain for their services to the nation the cost of production plus a reasonable profit on their investment of capital and labor, or else there must be an equalization of losses from raw product to consumers.

Some delegates tried to impart a political tinge to the proceedings, but the convention frowned upon any purpose to use the conference to promote the interests of the republican party. Former Senator Marion Butler went to the length of declaring that the country was in the midst of a panic, and he blamed the democrats for the unhappy condition which he painted.

This was evidently not the sentiment of the convention. Senator Smith, of South Carolina, in a stirring speech, declared that the country was not panic-stricken, although it was in the midst of a crisis. Butler was unmercifully flayed by Congressman Brinson, of North Carolina. The delegates, including Charles S. Barrett, Congressmen Bland, Upshaw, Lee and Bell and Senator Harris, of Georgia, expressed regret that any delegate would appear to try to collect political capital from the deliberations of a convention interested in finding a remedy for what threatens to be an economic dislocation as far as agriculture is concerned.

Farmers Losing, Says Barrett.

Mr. Barrett, who occupied the chair, declared that every interest in the nation except agriculture was operating at a profit. He insisted that the farmers were selling their produce at prices ruinous to themselves and said that if the present conditions were permitted to obtain the nation would soon face the greatest crisis in her history.

"Agriculture is facing a crisis and with that basic industry all true citizens in the United States must deplore the present condition," said Mr. Barrett. "We must find a remedy. If we cannot it will be impossible for us to continue to produce. The woolen mills of New England shut down when orders ceased to come in. The shoe manufacturer would let the children of the country go barefooted rather than operate at a loss.

"The same can be said of every other industry and yet agriculture must sell its products below what it cost to bring them to maturity or have these engaged in it branded with the stigma of disloyalty."

Mr. Barrett said this year's cotton would not be produced at a reasonable profit for less than 40 cents a pound. He denied that the nation had the right to expect the farmers to work for nothing.

Houston Declared Wrong

Senator Ellison Smith, of South Carolina, declared that the federal reserve board, if it would, could immediately relieve the situation. He insisted that Secretary Houston was altogether wrong in his statement that the board was without power to afford relief to the suffering farmers and said the fear of the head of the treasury department that the issuance of federal reserve notes in volume sufficient for the purpose would tend to inflation as altogether groundless.

"You cannot have inflation under the federal reserve system no matter how much paper money you issue as long as you live within the provisions of the law," said Senator Smith. "The contention of Mr. Houston that he is without power to relieve the situation is altogether untenable.

"If there is no remedy for the present situation, then let every thing go and let the farmers hold their products until they can get 40 cents a pound for cotton and the cost of production for other needed provisions, plus a reasonable profit on their investment."

Senator Smith said it was an outrage that two men, not responsible to the people through election, but appointed officers, could so interpret the law as to make it inoperative in the interests of agriculture.

"We want to know our rights under the law, and if we cannot get them through the present officers, then, by the eternal, we must set

CITIZENS CLAIM PRICES OF FOOD ARE EXORBITANT

Witnesses Tell Council Investigators That They Have Been "Gouged" and "Stung," and Give Instances.

CATERERS OF ATLANTA WILL BE HEARD TODAY

Committee Announces That It Will Endeavor to Sift, in Impartial Method, All Evidence Presented.

Instances of alleged profiteering by Atlanta cafes were presented Tuesday afternoon by citizens at the first hearing of the special councilmanic and citizen committee appointed to investigate food prices in the city. The probe will be continued this afternoon at 3 o'clock, with representatives of the Atlanta Caterers' association and other cafe proprietors present to confer with the committee.

One informant declared that he had been "gouged," another said he had been "stung" at the restaurants, but only one restaurant was mentioned by name, a well-known place on Peachtree street, and in this case the menu was produced to show that a charge of fifty cents was made for a Smithfield ham sandwich.

According to a story unfolded to the committee by T. D. Cary, who stated that he had recently come to Atlanta and is taking his meals at restaurants, the prices he has met have not been uniform and at some places excessive. He said that for an order of spinach and egg (one-half of a hard boiled egg) he paid a Peachtree street restaurant thirty-five cents, then the next day he visited another Peachtree cafe farther downtown and paid for a similar order of spinach and egg twenty cents. At another place a baked apple with cream cost him fifteen cents, he said, while two or three blocks away on another occasion he was charged twenty-five cents for the same dish. He told of paying five cents a cup for coffee at some places and ten cents at others, cafes apparently in the same class and doing a similar volume of business.

Case of "Hold-up."

The complaint against the restaurant charging its customers fifty cents for a Smithfield ham sandwich was brought by a citizen who gave his name as James Glendenning, connected with the Southern railway ticket office here. Mr. Glendenning charged that it is simply a case of "hold-up" by the restaurants.

Members of the Caterers' association, which passed resolutions last week offering to aid in an investigation, were not present at the meeting, but their absence was explained by Will V. Zimmer, former hotel man and prominently connected with the organization, as due to their desire to meet the committee at a "round table" discussion, rather than appear at a public investigation.

Mr. Zimmer asserted that the caterers "resent being branded as profiteers prior to an investigation," and do not feel that they are called upon to appear in a public hearing. While the public is not invited to the session today, the chairman announced that the press will not be excluded.

Investigation Opens.

The investigation opened at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the council chamber at city hall. The entire committee was present and

By Burying Alive Father Murders Two Daughters

Roop Gave Little Girls Chloroform Before He Buried—Mother Doesn't Know of Tragedy.

Lansing, Mich., October 12.—Earl Roop, a farmer, was arraigned today on a charge of murdering his daughters, Dorothy and Bernice, aged 3 and 2, respectively, whom he buried alive on his farm 10 miles from here Monday, according to his reportd confession to Sheriff Silbee. Preliminary hearing was set for tomorrow after Roop had stood mute, and a plea of not guilty had been entered by the court.

Despondency over financial matters, and the failure of his crops, according to the sheriff, was given by Roop as the reason for his alleged act. He was quoted as saying he had been pondering the idea of taking the lives of his babies for nearly a year.

In a matter-of-fact manner, according to the sheriff, Roop told of taking the children from his house on Monday, to a field through which ran the Red Cedar river. There, Roop said, he administered chloroform to the litle girls, then set about digging a hole in the soft earth near the river.

While he was thus engaged, Dorothy revived. Roop told the sheriff, and walked over to him. He then carried Bernice to the river and placed both children in the hole, covering their bodies with mud, Silbee quoted him as saying.

Officers would not believe the man's story until the yhad gone with him to the spot and found the bodies of the babies this morning.

The mother of the girls is in a critical condition at her home, where, six days ago, she gave birth to a son. She has not been told of the fate of her other babies.

Bite of Monkey May Cause Death Of Greece's King

Only Strong Constitution of Alexander Relied Upon by Physicians to Bring Him Through.

Athens, October 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Only the strong constitution of King Alexander of Greece is relied upon by his physicians to bring him through the crisis of his illness resulting from the bite of a monkey a short time ago. It was admitted at the palace today that the king had entered into the critical phase of his illness.

The government, alarmed at the serious turn in the king's condition, today discussed the question of a regency, and decided that the council of ministers would take up the task of administering the country in the event of the king's condition becoming worse.

Today's statement, made at 1 o'clock this afternoon, was the first intimation that the physicians in attendance were relying only on the strong constitution of King Alexander, who is only 27 years old, to save him.

BITE OF WHARF RAT MAY KILL MERCHANT.

Wilmington, N. C., October 12.—J. B. Fales, a wholesale merchant here, is in a serious condition from blood poisoning caused by the bite of a wharf rat. Mr. Fales was watching a battle three weeks ago between a terrier and a large rat when the dog hurled the rodent in the air. It alighted on Mr. Fales' wrist and bit him before he could shake it off.

MRS. DANIELS WILL MAKE COX SPEECHES

Raleigh, N. C., October 12.—Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the secretary of the navy, will take the stump for the democratic party in North Carolina and a number of appointments in the western part of the state were announced for her today by State Chairman Thomas D. Warren.

Would You Like to Sell Your Husband?

Some women undoubtedly would—for various reasons. Mrs. Lillian Russell (not the actress) offered hers on the block to get money for their starving children. Her act has brought up the whole question of the marketable value of husbands, all of which is discussed in an interesting article in the Magazine Section of next Sunday's Constitution.

This section will also contain another Blue Ribbon short story—this one a clever tale by Holworthy Hall, entitled "Ironics."

In Next Sunday's Constitution

HARDING WIGGLES AND HE WOBBLES, ACCORDING TO COX

Lafayette, Ind., October 12.—Governor Cox, in a busy tour today of Illinois and Indiana, hammered heavily upon the league of nations pronouncements of himself and Senator Harding, picturing his republican opponent as "wiggling and wobbling." The democratic candidate emphasized to sixteen audiences that he was for the league with "whole heart and soul."

Centering his assault upon Senator Harding's league statement today, Governor Cox declared it "vacillating," the eleventh position assumed by the senator, and at the heels of a "tempest" aroused by Mr. Harding's Des Moines speech. That the senator's proposal for a new association of nations was held by former President Taft to be impracticable also was stressed by the democratic nominee.

Vacillation Laid to Harding.

Referring to today's statement by Senator Harding, Governor Cox to an audience of several thousand persons here tonight on the courthouse piazza, closing his strenuous day of league preachments, said:

"The vacillating attitude of Senator Harding justifies neither the American people, nor the nations of the world, in taking him seriously. It is apparent that he hasn't a single deep-seated conviction upon the subject and that he wobbles about from one day to the other in the aimless hope that this group or that group of voters can be pleased. It is the most pitiable spectacle in the political history of America. I can understand why the sentiment of wiggling and wobbling has been emblazoned over the billboards of America with the picture of the senator. The candidate of the senatorial oligarchy has a monopoly on that process, and he ought to be privileged to advertise it."

Although the governor confined his long string of speeches today principally to the league, he repeated charges of a "conspiracy of silence by the reactionary press" against the democratic campaign. "Big business" was also flayed as a foe.

Cox Adopts Religious Tone.

Religious tone to the governor's league plea increased and presenting what he termed "practical" business reasons, he declared that "if we don't go into the league I look for constantly increasing trend toward a business recession." The league is necessary, he argued, to restore foreign credit and purchasing power. He expressed belief that America would be in the league within a few months and that no large nation would be outside within a year or possibly six months.

In his fire upon Senator Harding's league statements, Governor Cox declared his own had been and would continued unchanged.

"I ask you," he said, "whether you have followed the vacillating positions of the candidate of the senatorial oligarchy? He made changes on the front porch, then when we took him off the front porch and he arrived in Des Moines he said he was 'going to turn his back upon the league, with or without reservations.'

"There came a tempest all over the land and republicans that were for the league announced their position and their intention of voting for me. When he reached the front porch again yesterday he changed again, and said he was for a new association of nations. President Taft, who is attempting to keep him steady, says that the new association of nations is not practical, that it won't work; that it can't be attained, forty-one nations of the world have already joined the league. (It is a going concern and they will not abandon it at the mere wish and caprice of a group of senators.

Borah's Threat Moved Harding.

"The threat of Senator Borah who doubtless spoke for both himself and Senator Johnson, brought the ultimatum at Des Moines.

"The force of the tempest of resenting which has swept the coun-

MORE GINS POSTED AND MORE BURNED

Mass Meeting of Farmers Called in Calhoun County, Alabama, to Consider Situation Created by Night Riding.

Washington, October 12.—Federal prosecution of "night riders" and others responsible for the burning of cotton and cotton gins in the southern states will be ordered if an investigation started today discloses violation of any federal laws.

Department of justice agents have been instructed to investigate and report immediately instances where federal laws appear to have been violated.

In most cases, officials believed the outrages have constituted crimes only under state laws, but the investigation was ordered when it was indicated there might have been interference with shipments in interstate commerce.

A special committee of the convention of agricultural interests in session here decided tonight to recommend that the convention adopt a resolution tomorrow denouncing the work of night riders and others in cotton states. The committee resolution will declare that the activities of those responsible for the burning of cotton and cotton gins and for threats of violence are calculated to hinder rather than help rehabilitation of the cotton market.

ALABAMA COUNTY PLANNING ACTION ON "NIGHT RIDERS"

Anniston, Ala., October 12.—(Special.)—Officers of the Calhoun county branch of the American Cotton association, aroused over the posting of a number of gins in the county with "night rider" warnings, have called a mass meeting of all farmers in the county for Wednesday noon in this city. The meeting, it is expected, will not only condemn the "night rider" activity, but will take steps to put a stop to it.

Plant of Southern Auto and Equipment Company Is Damaged

Fire, which caused several hundred dollars damage to the roof and top ceiling, broke out in the building of the Southern Auto and Equipment company, corner of South Forsyth and Peters streets, about 10 o'clock Tuesday night. The blaze was extinguished after a short but hard fight on the part of the firemen. Defective wiring is believed to have started the flames.

Thousands of dollars' worth of automobiles, accessories and machinery were stored in the building, but none of this was touched by the fire. C. A. Tappan is president of the company, and B. Frank Hall is vice president and manager.

GEORGIA COTTON BANK ASKS FUNDS

Call Is Issued for Payment of $1,000,000 Subscriptions to New Institution by October 25.

With approximately $1,000,000 subscribed and guaranteed to the Georgia Cotton Bank and Trust corporation the organization committee has called for all subscriptions to be paid by October 25, and as soon as a sufficient amount is collected application for a charter will be filed, it was announced Tuesday night by Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, chairman of the committee.

Declaring that the situation now confronting the southern farmer has clearly demonstrated the need of such a bank to finance the producer through all stages of the year, the chief executive of the state also said that as soon as the charter has been filed and granted for the Geor[illegible]k, a movement to create a chain of such institutions in every cotton-growing state will be started, to be followed immediately by the organization of a large export corporation.

R. C. Neely's Suggestion.

Organization of the cotton bank was started over eleven months ago by the governor, following the suggestion of R. C. Neely, of Waynesboro, that the cotton farmers should have a large bank devoted to their interests. Speeches were made throughout the state for three months by the governor, and approximately $1,000,000 was guaranteed the project subject to call on October 20.

The bank and trust corporation has been indorsed by J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton association; Governor Harding of the federal reserve system; R. N. Berrien, Atlanta banker; Governor M. B. Wellborn, of the Federal Reserve bank of Atlanta, and a large number of other prominent financiers and farmers.

It was planned by the governor and other officials to foster and promote any agricultural interests of the state by enabling the farmers to obtain money to finance their crops and assist in the marketing of their produce by aiding in establishing agencies in the industrial centers of Europe, it is stated.

Could Secure Money.

"If the cotton bank and trust corporation had been established in Georgia the first of the year," said the governor last night, "the farmers of this state would not be confronted with the present situation. Such incidents as threatening ginneries to close would not have been heard, for the farmers would be in a position to secure money from a bank of their own to hold their cotton until a reasonable market price is offered.

"We are going to have the cotton bank," he continued. "Payment of subscriptions has already started, and the organization committee, of which I am chairman, has decided to perfect the organization at once. Payments should be made not later than October 25, and any deferred settlements—we hope there will not be many of such cases—may be taken care of by notes, due not later than ninety days after October 25. The low price of cotton emphasizes the immediate need of this bank, and we

Democrats of Georgia Determined to Exceed Campaign Fund Quota

With Georgia editors, county chairmen and leaders of the party solidly behind the drive to raise funds in this state for the national democratic campaign to place James M. Cox in the presidential chair and Franklin D. Roosevelt in office as vice president, a determined effort will be made during the next three weeks to send Georgia's quota of contributions beyond its limit by a substantial surplus, it was announced Tuesday night by C. J. Haden, finance chairman of the state.

That the tide is rapidly turning in favor of Cox and Roosevelt throughout the country and that the only obstacle which can stop the democrats is lack of funds to successfully promote the campaign, was the information given out by Joseph Sparks, assistant treasurer of the national democratic committee, Tuesday before he left for Macon.

The time is now at hand to take advantage of the sentiment in favor of the democratic party, and to do this a large campaign fund is absolutely necessary. Should the republicans win in the November election, their victory will mean the probable abolishment of the federal reserve system, the appointment of many negroes to office and

TREATY IS DESCRIBED ONE OF GIVE-AND-TAKE

Bolshevik Envoy Joffe Says That It Is "a Peace Without Victory and Without Vanquished."

Riga, October 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—A preliminary peace treaty and armistice was signed by the Polish and Russian soviet peace delegates here at 7:10 o'clock tonight.

The armistice actually becomes effective at midnight, October 18, that is, 144 hours from midnight tonight.

The announcement that peace was to be signed brought great crowds to the square surrounding the Black Head house. The bolshevik delegation entered the hall first and were followed by the Polish delegation. About two hundred persons, including the entire diplomatic body and prominent Lettish officials, crowded the small room.

"Peace Without Victory."

Considerable delay ensued, which was due to the work necessary for the completion of the treaties for signature. Tired by more than five days and nights of almost constant work, M. Joffe, head of the soviet delegation, described the Riga peace as "a peace without victory and without vanquished," in a brief address before the signature of the treaty. That describes the Riga agreement accurately, as it appeared to disinterested onlookers. It was a peace of give and take, which those who have followed teh course of evetns wear will not be very popular, either with the bolshevik or the Poles.

But it is undoubtedly a triumph for the chairmen of the two delegations who made it, and the spirit of conciliation with which they handled the explosive questions that disrupted the Minsk conference is likely to win for them the gratitude of the war-exhausted world.

The Riga armistice will put the bolshevik at peace with all their Baltic neighbors within 144 hours from midnight tonight, and leave the Wrangel movement as the only great military operation against the soviets.

WRANGEL BATTERS BOLSHEVIK FRONT.

London, October 12.—Conditions along the south Russian front have assumed a serious aspect for the bolsheviki, according to advices received here. General Wrangel's troops are continuing to advance north of Crimea and the Sea of Azov. Nikolaiev, the principal Russian naval station on the Black sea, is said to have been captured by anti-bolshevik insurgents. Although an agreement looking to an armistice has been reached with Poland and large numbers of soviet troops are in a position to be rushed to south Russia, the soviet government is reported to have made peace proposals to General Wrangel.

General Lokhovitz(in command of anti-bolshevik forces in camp by Trans-Baikalia, recently placed his troops at the disposition of General Wrangel, and now General Semenoff, who for the past two years has been fighting the soviet armies in Siberia, has taken a similar step.

General Budenny, leader of bolshevik cavalry during the recent offensive in Galicia, is said to have turned against the bolsheviki and to be planning an attack on Kiev.

Sebastopol, October 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—General Wrangel, the anti-bolsheviki leader, has launched his expected offensive against the new Sixth army of the soviet forces, sheltered behind the Dnieper. General Wrangel is carrying out a pinching movement converging on the town of Kakhovka, northeast of Kherson.

END OF BOLSHEVISM SEEN BY WASHINGTON.

Washington, October 12.—Signs of the approaching collapse of bolshevism in Russia are seen by state department officials in the crumbling of soviet authority on the Polish front, and the rapidly augmenting strength of anti-bolshevik forces in southeastern Europe under General Wrangel.

Already consideration is being given at the department, it was said today, to what may follow the end of soviet rule in Russia. The prospect of anarchy and chaos in

COMMITTEE NAMED TO PRESENT FACTS REGARDING CRISIS

Accompanying the Cotton Growers Will Be Representatives of Agricultural Interests of Other Sections.

ATTACK TO BE MADE ON RESERVE BOARD

Farmers Will Ask That Board Be Ordered to Extend Credits, and That Federal Officials Cease Issuing Statements That Tend to Lower Prices of Farm Products.

Washington, October 12.—Steps to appeal directly to President Wilson against the currency deflation policy of the treasury department, on the ground that farmers generally faced heavy losses unless the downward trend of prices of farm products was checked, were taken here today by a special meeting of agricultural interests caled by the American Cotton association.

Senators Overman, of North Carolina, and Harris, of Georgia, who are connected with the movement, called at the white house to prefer a request for the conference with Mr. Wilson and his cabinet, and were told by Secretary Tumulty that they would receive an answer from the president tomorow morning.

The senators laid stress upon the neecssity of prompt action, as the regular fall conference of the federal reserve board and governors of the various reserve banks also is scheduled for tomorrow. The question of interest rates, it was said, would be considered at that conference, and the agricultural representatives gathered here declared they wished to present their views on the whole question of crop financing before action was taken by the federal authorities.

What Farmers Will Ask.

J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton association, who was named chairman of the committee, said it will ask that the federal reserve system provide credits to enable farmers to market their products at a profit, that the war finance corporation or some similar body be rehabilitated to finance exports and that federal officials cease issuing statements which it was said tend to bring down the price of agricultural products.

The committee decided to ask that the meeting with the president and his cabinet be held tomorrow morning, after Albert Tumlin, of Cave Spring, Ga., one of the cotton representatives, had told the conference that it was very important that the meeting with the federal officials should be held as soon as possible "because he had been told that the federal reserve board will meet tomorrow to revise the rates on interest and decide whether to keep up the present sliding scale of from 6 to 16 per cent or to make a flat rate of 7 per cent."

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HOLD BIG CELEBRATION

Allegiance to America Declared True Basis of Catholicism.

Three hundred and fifty Knights of Columbus and their friends gathered on Tuesday evening, the four hundred and twenty-eighth anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America, in the flag-bedecked dining hall of the Druid Hills club, to honor the memory of the first Christian to set foot on the western hemisphere.

The keynote of the gathering was struck by the Rev. Father Richard Smith, when, in speaking on "The Day We Celebrate," he declared that the basic principle of true Catholicism is allegiance to America, and "should the day ever come when the earthly head of our church demand that we renounce the allegiance every Catholic in the United States will rise up and cry, 'We obey the keys, but not the sword of Peter."

Rev. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, followed Father Smith and spoke on "True Americanism." Rev. Mr. Wilmer accorded credit to the valor and patriotism of the Catholics in the late war. He scored religious bigotry and voiced an appeal for religious co-operation and brotherhood in civic matters.

An interesting address was delivered by Winfield P. Jones on "Catholic Citizenship." The meeting was opened with an invocation by Rev. Father Pelletrer, followed by the singing of "America." The "Star-Spangled Banner" was sung at the close of the gathering.

A number of charming musical selections were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Adair, Miss Gertrude Maurer and Will Maurer. Following the banquet and meeting the celebration was concluded with a brilliant dance.

FIRE MAKES HOMLESS NEARLY 500 NEGROES

Pine Bluff, Ark., October 12.—Nearly five hundred persons were homeless tonight as a result of a fire which, in about two hours late today, swept eight squares, destroying fifty-four houses, two of which were occupied by white persons. Loss is estimated at not more than $100,000.

Rev. C. W. Schrader, white, pastor of the Lutheran church, was seriously injured in a fall fom the roof of his residence, where he was fighting flying sparks. No fatalities have been reported, and only a few cases of burns have been treatd, according to hospitals. An aged negro woman was forcibly rescued after she had rushed into her blazing house, screaming she was 'goin' wid her home.' Another negro rushed into a seething barn and dragged out a 200-pound hog by its hind legs. Summoned by the animal's squeals, neighbors helped the owner carry it tenderly out of harm's way.

Numerous pigs, cows, household pets and several horses were destroyed.

The fire started in the dwelling of Thad Fields, an aged negro, and was at first attributed to a defective flue, but he denied there was a fire in the stove. Fanned by a brisk wind, the flames spread rapidly and were controled only when the air became calmer and the firemen had retraeated three blocks in the densely populated section to obtain sufficient water to form a barricade against further spread of the fire. In the center of the fire-swept area stands a lone dwelling, scorched, but otherwise undamaged. The negroes call it a miracle.

Not util night did gloom and terror settle upon the victims of the fire. While the flames ate up their homes, a holiday spirit, with scarcely a touch of panic, and here and there evidenec of bewilderment marked the negroes.

A mass meeting has been called, at which means will be devised to prevent suffering. Guards patrolled the section tonight, preapred to prevent a new outbreak of the fire, should the wind again rise and fan the embers.

GIGANTIC TUNNEL BENEATH HUDSON FOR VEHICLES

New York, October 12.—The states of New York and New Jersey joined hands today and broke ground here for a vehicular tunnel beneath the Hudson river which will be the biggest subaqueous structure in the world. States officials and other dignitaries from both sides of the nation's front door launched the $28,000,000 project, while thousands of citizens of both New York and New Jersey cheered and looked on proudly.

Military bands and national guard regiments from both sides of the river paraded to the spot near the Hudson where the earth was scratched in preparation for a major incision by great engineers. Governor Edwards, of New Jersey, scooped up the first dirt in a silver plated shovel, after Lieutenant Governor Walker, of New York, had broken the soil with a glistening pick.

Senator Edge, of New Jersey; Senator Calder, of New York; Mayor Hylan, of New York, and Mayor Hague, of Jersey City, were speakers along with the executives of both commonwealths.

Georgia Odd Fellows Meet With Hemphill Lodge Tuesday Night

The sixteenth division of Georgia Odd Fellows, consisting of twelve lodges and about 2,500 members, held their semi-annual meeting in Atlanta with the Hemphill lodge Tuesday night. Henry J. Norton, division deputy grand master, presided.

A report from officers of the various lodges showed that every lodge in the division had made a substantial increase during the six months.

The principal discussion at the meeting was the plans now being formed by Georgia Odd Fellows for the building of the Odd Fellows' home at Griffin. Every one present at the meeting expressed approval of the erection of the proposed building. It was decided that every member of the sixteenth division give his earnings for one day to the building fund. November 8 was named as the day for the contribution to be made.

A feature of the meeting was the address made by State Grand Master R. L. Smith, of Commerce. Other interesting addresses were made by officials of various lodges.

"Crank" Casts Corpse of Baby Into the River

Officials Believe Mystery of Baby Coughlin Is Solved—"Crank" Also Killed Woman.

Philadelphia, October 12.—By the alleged confession of August Pasquale, "The Crank," the mystery surrounding the kidnaping of 13-months-old Blakely Coughlin, who was stolen from his parents' home at Norristown last June, has been solved, according to authorities working on the case. At the same time Pasquale is alleged to have confessed to the murder of a woman in Philadelphia, which local police believe clears up the mystery surrounding the killing last June of Mrs. Rose Asherman, who conducted a rooming house here.

Pasquale's latest story, as given out by the police, was that after stealing the child from its crib, he accidentally smothered it under his coat and threw the body into the Schuylkill river nearby. This was substantiated today, the authorities said, by the finding of a piece of steel rail and a string at the spot in the river pointed out by him. It is their opinion the body has decomposed and never will be found.

In his alleged confession, as given out in Harrisburg by Major Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of the state police, Pasquale said he tied a piece of rail to the body before casting it into the water. Today the prisoner, who has been locked up in the Montgomery county jail since his capture on August 2, led Captain Samuel Gerhardt, of the state police, and a diver to the place where he claimed to have thrown the body. The diver brought to the surface the rail with the string still attached, as described by Pasquale.

In his alleged confession to the murder of a woman in this city, believed to have been Mrs. Rose Asherman, the mystery of whose death two nights before the Coughlin kidnaping, has never been solved, Pasquale is quoted as having said he killed a woman about sixty years old at a rooming house at 608 North Eighth street with a piece of slate, "the latter part of May or the first of June."

For two weeks, he said, he had a room at the house and took the key with him when he left. He went back to the house for the purpose of robbery, and, finding the owner of the house had not retired, he hid himself in a closet and waited for her to go to bed. In opening the closet door the woman was awakened and he killed her. He said he had taken "around $300."

CROSSED WIRES CAUSE FIRE LOSS OF $600,000

St. Louis, October 12.—Fire believed to have been caused by crossed lighting wires in the milling department swept the plant of the St. Louis Car company, in the northern end of the city, early today, causing a loss, according to fire officials, of approximately $600,000.

Three of the principal buildings of the plant, all one-storied structures, and a large quantity of material stored in the lumber yard were destroyed, and two buildings badly damaged. Two others were saved.

A high wind and inadequate water supply combined to combat the efforts of firemen, who only succeeded in getting the blaze under control after it had covered an area of approximately five blocks.

"WHISKY RING" WORKS ON A NATIONAL SCALE

Chicago, October 12.—Government investigation of the activities of a ring of whisky dealers, operating on a national scale, has been begun as the result of confessions obtained from several Chicago saloon keepers, it was declared by federal agents today.

The confessions are said to have implicated officials of several distilling companies and politicians in various parts of the country, and to have revealed plans to make Chicago the center of their proposed scheme.

According to federal agents, H. A. Sadler, former New York stock broker, is said to have declared he paid $45,000 to a Chicago politician who has been employed as a deputy United States revenue agent in the office of Collector Mager, to secure influence in the issuance of forged feedral permits, under which whisky running in Chicago has been carried on.

The indictment of at least a score of persons on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition amendment will be asked this week of the federal grand jury, it was stated.

The information placed at the disposal of the federal authorities by Sadler is said to have disclosed that the boot-legging already carried on in Chicago by the whisky ring has been so extensive as to have netted those engaged in its operation close to one million dollars.

Steubenville, Ind., October 12.—Federal and county officers, armed with search warrants, raided thirty-three business establishments and residences here late today, confiscated much liquor and arrested forty persons, who were charged with violating the prohibition laws.

Archdeacon Stuck Dead; He Was First White Man To Climb Mt. McKinley

New York, October 12.—Archdeacon Hudson Stuck, of the Yukon, the first white man to ascend Mount McKinley, died at Fort Yukon, Alaska, last Sunday. Word of his death was received here late today.

Archdeacon Stuck was born in England 57 years ago. He came to the United States in 1885, and was graduated from the theological department, University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., in 1892. His appointment as Protestant Episcopal archdeacon of the Yukon was announced in 1904, after he had served as dean of St. Matthews cathedral, Dallas, Texas.

Although Dr. Cook, of North Pole controversy fame, claimed to have climbed Mount McKinley, Archdeacon Stuck, who ascended it in June, 1913, is generally accredited with having been the first to reach its summit. He was a fellow of the American and Royal Geological societies and author of a number of books, among them the "Ascent of Denali (Mount McKinley)." He was unmarried.

PRISONERS ARE SHOT IN PENITENTIARY RIOT

Baltimore, October 12.—Two prisoners, armed with pistols, taken from overpowered guards, attemtped to stampede the convicts at Maryland penitentiary into a general riot this afternoon.

No one escaped, and the two men—David Bender, murderer, and James C. Evans, sentenced for robbery who started the trouble, surrendered after they had held the guards at bay for nearly an hour.

Either in the wild shooting, by which eBnder and Evans tried to stampede the other prisoners, or during the exchange of shots between the guards and the two rioters, two other prisoners were shot and slightly wounded.

The three guards from whom Beder and Evans took the pistols were cut and bruised when they were thrown to the iron floor or down the tier steps, and in scuffles with the rioters.

61st Foodless Day Finds MacSwiney Greatly Rested

One Paper Charges Mayor's "Fit Condition" Is Due to Drinking Grape Juice and Spirits and Wine.

London, October 12.—Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork passed a good night at Brixton prison and today was in the same rested and peaceful condition that was reported yesterday, said a bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination league. This was the sixty-first day of his hunger strike.

The Evening News today says it understands that Lord Mayor MacSwiney's "remarkably fit condition" is due to his partaking of grape juice and the juices of other fruits, and frequently of spirits and wine.

In the opinion of the prison doctor, the newspaper asserts, he may easily last another month.

Lord Mayor MacSwiney Tuesday night was almost cheerful in his c . It was the end of the sixty-first day of his hunger strike, but he was suffering little pain. Some bets were reported in sporting circles that the lord mayor would survive another twenty days.

MURDEROUS WORK DONE BY BURGLAR IN GERMAN HOME

Weimar, October 12.—The condition of Fraulein von Scheer, daughter of Admiral Reinhardt von Scheer, who was wounded when her mother and a maid were assassinated in the admiral's villa Saturday afternoon, still is critical, but some hope is held for recovery.

One of the murderers, an artist named Buechner, who committed suicide in a coal bin, is said to have been a victim of shell shock in the war and very excitable. Beuchner concealed himself in the cellar, where he attacked and killed the maid servant. Frau von Scheer, disturbed by the maid's prolonged absence, went to seek her and also was killed. Fraulein von Scheer then began a search for her mother and was fired upon and wounded.

The person who was seen leaving the house after the shooting has not been identified. It is thought probable, however, that it was Admiral von Scheer, who was hurrying out to obtain the services of a doctor.

MUSE

An essential part of service is being always ready to meet the demands of customers with reliable merchandise at fair prices.

A store has a character, the same as an individual—character varies as much in stores as individuals.

A good store is not open one day, but every day in the year with clean, reliable merchandise to furnish its customers, as they want it.

Why is it that in every city a certain store achieves a character for having the kind of merchandise you want, whenever you want it?

It is because that store pursues a regular course; it does daily what it can afford to do, as much in the interest of the customer as its own interest.

It does business, because it has the confidence of the public, by deserving it.

Our October sales have been good—they will continue to be good.

Muse Service never changes—there are no certain periods when a merchant is not as much obligated to his customers as at all periods.

Every courtesy at all times is due customers, and a good merchant must see that they get it.

GOODHART NAMES ASSISTANTS SOON

Four Committees Will Be Appointed to Aid in Raising Atlanta Quota for Advertising State.

Intensive organiaztion will be effected in Atlanta for the "Advertise Georgia" enterprise before the week end, Harry Goodhart, local chairman, announced late Tuesday.

Mr. Goodhart, who assumed the chairmanship after civic and commercial leaders had individually and collectively agreed to give him moral and financial support, will name four committees—publicity, finance, executive and general.

Announcement of the committees will be made as soon as acceptances are received, the letters going forward to Atlanta's leading business men and others Wednesday and Thursday.

Twenty-four hours after the general plans of raising $40,000 for Atlanta's quota in the $300,000 project were arranged Mr. Goodhart was at work on the task of "selling" the plan of developing Georgia's matchless resources and particularly her agricultural and industrial possibilities. He addressed the Film Managers' association and met with enthusiastic indorsement from more than fifteen of the southern and southeastern managers of film distributing organizations or corporations.

Within ten days, it is Mr. Goodhart's plan to submit the plan before the membership of all civic and commercial organizations so that when the time for raising the money comes every business man and woman will be fully acquainted.

Reports from all over the state show that the "Advertise Georgia" enterprise is meeting with entusiastic moral and financial support, and the $300,000 fund will be subscribed very shortly.

On the plea that their work called for intelligence, a burglars' club in Leipsic wrote to a local newspaper resenting its members being called "rascals."

RUSSIA AND POLAND SIGN ARMISTICE

the event of soviet dissolution, is very real, according to officials, but the belief was expressed that the local zemstvos have been so well organized as to maintain a semblance of order and some cohesion of economic life until a stable government, capable of obtaining the adherence of the majority of the Russian population, shall rise.

The situation in Persia, where, for a time, bolshevism threatened to disrupt the country, recently has cleared satisfactorily, according to reports received by the department. The league of bolshevism with the Turkish nationalists also is regarded as having been irretrievably weakened with the rout of Mustapha Kemal and his followers.

Most significant of the wane of soviet influence in Europe, according to officials, was the rejection of bolshevisk overtures by Switzerland, which is situated so as to be able to from an acurate opinion of the character and future of th soviet régime. It is now also known that somewhat earlier, Rumania rejected overtures of the soviet government, it was said.

POLAND FACING BITTER STRUGGLE WITH LITHUANIA

London, October 12.—The Lithuanian government is preparing to resist to the last the Polish invasion of her territory, it was officially announced at the Lithuanian legation here Tuesday.

The legation also announced that the Lithuanian government has presented to the allies and to the league of nations proof that Prince Saphieha, Polish foreign minister, ordered the occupation of Vilna. Lithuania has also presented a new appeal to England for admission to the league.

Meantime the Lithuanian government has received assurances from England and France that these governments did not lend their approval to General Zeligovski's coup de force in seizing Vilna.

The Polish legation here reaffirmed this attitude on the part of the Polish government.

It was pointed out at the legation that Prince Saphieha's repudiation of the Vilna occupation means that the Warsaw government will not permit the shipment of munitions or supplies to Zeligowski's forces.

Test for the League.

Former Premier Galvanoskas, now Lithuanian minister of finance, has arrived in London and conferred with British officials in Downing street Tuesday.

The foreign office is watching the situation with great interest. Officials there pointed out that the critical situation furnishes a crucial test of the value of the league of nations. If the league fails to solve the difficulty its worthlessness will be demonstrated, it was intimated.

The Lithuanians have petitioned the league of nations and the entente governments to carry out the embargo provisions of Article 16 of the league pact against Poland in case the Warsaw government fails to enforce the promised ban on shipment of food and munitions to Zeligowski's forces.

A Kovno dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende at Copenhagen said that the Lithuanian garrison at Vilna conducted a forlorn hope defence of the capital against a Polish force numbering three times as many men.

New Government Proclaimed.

Warsaw, October 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—The new "central Lithuanian government" at Vilna has proclaimed the creation of a new state, says a Lida dispatch.

A series of proclamations has been issued by the so-called government. The first proclaims the new state and promises to convoke a diet in the near future.

The second, addressed to the Polish government, asks for forgiveness for the mutiny of General Zellgouski's troops, and gives notice of the creation of the new state, the territory of which, it is set forth, includes the town of Grodno, with the River Niemen as the dividing line from Poland.

The proclamation further asks that the Pollish troops occupying central Lithuania be considered an army of occupation. The Vilna government requests that it be allowed to send a commissary to these troops.

A third proclamation is a declaration to the Kovno government (the old Lithuanian government), proposing the opening of negotiations with reference to the future relations of the two countries.

Poland Urged to Be Moderate.

Paris, October 12.—France and Great Britain have sent a joint note to Poland advising moderation concerning the question of frontiers, according to the Petit Parisien.

Active exchange of views concerning the occupation of Vilna by Polish-Lithuanian troops is proceeding, says the Echo de Paris, which declares they consider the responsibility of the Warsaw government is not involved. The newspaper adds that the task of finding a solution to the situation is that of the league of nations, in the opinion of government officials.

"The cotton bank is to be a member of the federal reserve system, and will, therefore, be a direct pipe line connection from the great reservoirs of national credit straight to the man who desires to borrow. When everybody else will have no time to worry with such security as cotton receipts, our bank will be giving its concentrated attention to that identical kind of paper," he said.

Secretary Harvie Jordan, of the American Cotton association, stated that the strong and appealing plank in the foundation of the proposed bank is that a majority of its stock shall be subscribed for and owned by the farmers of the state.

"Once such an institution is established, the way will be immediately paved for putting into practical and permanent operation all of those economic reforms which are so vitally essential to the proper handling of the cotton crop. No great economic problem like the handling and marketing of the cotton crop can be solved successfully without the power of ample finance," he said.

It is proposed by those backing the new cotton bank to establish it in Georgia, and then urge other cotton states to form similar institutions. With this great chain of banks united, it is then proposed to take up the organization of an export corporation to enable the southern farmer to sell his cotton in Europe. This proposition was submitted by Governor Dorsey at the last general convention of the American Cotton association, and was enthusiastically indorsed.

With such a system, it is pointed out, southern farmers would have a complete machine to finance and handle its crop, removing this section from financial domination of the north and east.

Alumnae of Lucy Cobb Plan To Hold Rally Day Wednesday

A Lucy Cobb picture of many years ago, its interest revived by the Lucy Cobb rally to be held Wednesday in Atlanta, when the girls and boys in the picture, prominent men and women of today, will be among those present at a reunion for the sake of Auld Lang Syne, and in the interest of the school, about which cluster many of the happiest traditions of the youth of hundreds of Georgians. They are: Top row, left to right: Mrs. Pope, who was Miss Clara Wimberly; Mrs. L. W. Morton, who was Miss Mary Lou Hinton; Mrs. Colquitt Carter, who was Miss Mary Sue Hill; Mrs. Carty, of Jacksonville, who was Miss Ella Pope, of Albany; Mr. Monroe Deering. Seated in front, Mr. Rutherford Lipscomb.

Scores of Atlanta and Georgia women prominent in social and other activities are concerned in the Rally day for Lucy Cobb, which has been dated for today, and will be marked in Atlanta by a noteworthy celebration, when several prominent citizens will speak and a social feature of distinction will contribute to the interest of the occasion.

Mrs. Stanley, of Athens, is the president of the Lucy Cobb alumnae. Miss Isoline Campbell is chairman in Atlanta of Rally day, which will have similar observance in many southern cities.

Miss Mildred Rutherford, one of Georgia's best known women and beloved of all students of Lucy Cobb, past and present, will be the special guest of the Atlanta celebration, which will take place in the afternoon at the Woman's club.

Mr. Eugene Black, Mr. James B. Nevin and others will speak and Mrs. W. C. Jarnigan will sing.

Mrs. Walter Maude, secretary for the occasion, announces that it has been impossible, on account of changes of address, to notify all former students of the famous old school that they are expected to be present, but the alumnae invite all to come and make the afternoon a universal reunion.

GIN "NIGHT RIDERS" FACING PROSECUTION

have been posted on five gins owned by D. C. Cooper, Sr., of Oxford, one of the gins being in this city. Similar notices have been posted on other gins in the county, it is said and each notice is signed "Committee of 100."

Following closely upon the proclamation by Governor Kilby offering a reward of $250 for the apprehension of men posting warning notices on gins and stores, the action of the "night riders" in this county has caused much excitement.

No gins have been burned in this county and the notices on the Cooper gins were the first intimation given that "night riders" had organized in the county.

Fire Marshal to Investigate.

Montgomery, Ala., October 12.—State Fire Marshal W. J. Williams left Montgomery this afternoon for Anniston, Calhoun county, where he will make such investigation of the posting of cotton gins of that county as will be possible, and attend a mass meeting of citizens which is slated for Wednesday night at Anniston.

Mr. Williams, who has been on a tour of inspection in Cullman and Morgan county following night riding activities in various sections thereof, brought back visible evidence of the warnings that are being tacked to gins and other property in the shape of one of the placards, which bore the terse words, "Do not operate this gin until cotton goes to 40 cents per pound."

No additional reports of activities of persons threatening the property of gin owners in Alabama had reached Montgomery early tonight.

More Gins Closed.

Nashville, Tenn., October 12.—Several additional cotton gins in Morgan county, Alabama, are reported to have closed following the receipt of warnings from night riders, according to the Albany, Ala., correspondent of The Banner.

TORCH APPLIED TO TEXAS GINS.

Waco, Texas, October 12.—A cotton gin at Branchville, 12 miles east of Cameron, was destroyed by fire Monday night, according to reports received here today. Loss was estimated at approximately $12,000. A small grist mill adjoining the gin also was destroyed.

A. J. Dossett, owner of the compress destroyed at Cameron Sunday morning, upon his return from that place tonight, said he found department of justice agents and the state fire marshal investigating the fire.

Houston, Texas, October 12.—A cotton gin in the Priusley community, 14 miles south of Corsicana, was burned early Monday, according to messages reaching Houston. Loss is estimated at $6,000. The fire is attributed to incendiarism.

WARNINGS POSTED ON ARKANSAS GINS.

Fort Smith, Ark., October 12.—Warnings were found posted on cotton gins at Lavaca, Ark., near here, tonight and armed guards were placed about the plants.

The notice read:

"Do not start this gin until sixty days. If the wheels turn you know the results—unless the price gets right."

The ginners will meet with farmers tomorrow to consider what action they shall take. Several other gins have been posted near here, but no depredations have followed.

CITIZENS CLAIM PRICES OF FOOD EXORBITANT

In a few preliminary remarks, Chairman Martin outlined the purpose of the hearing, and said that it would not be the committee's intention to discriminate against anybody, but it would endeavor in an impartial manner to sift all the evidence laid before it. He then threw open the meeting to those who desired to offer information.

Following complaints of the two citizens Mr. Zimmer made a statement in defense of the prevailing prices in the restaurants. He asserted that when their overhead expenses are considered, he does not believe that they are profiteering. Irish potatoes, he said, is the only article of food served by the cafes that has come near pre-war prices.

"Sugar has come down some," he continued. "Coffee, with the exception of the highest grades, has also dropped, but meat and lard are higher; the cost of steam heat, which most of them use, is up 100 per cent, and gas and electric rates are higher.

Meat Prices Go Up.

Mr. Zimmer informed the committee that he had received advance information in a letter that prime cuts of beef would soon be up from about 59 cents to 72 cents a pound. This price is for western meats. He was asked about the price of beef grown locally. "It takes a good carcass to bring 4 cents a pound," answered Mr. Zimmer, "but the trouble is the restaurants are not using that kind of meat."

In answer to a question as to why the western meats are soaring, Mr. Zimmer said that the packers are advancing the choice cuts to offset the low price of the by-products.

Today the committee will hear the story of the restaurant men, and upon the suggestion of Mrs. Hanaberry invitation is extended to every restaurant owner in the city to appear.

When the probe of the cafe is through the committee will then take up charges of exorbitant profits by fruit stand dealers.

SAFE OF ANCIENT CHURCH IS BROKEN

Savannah, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—The safe in the office of the Right Rev. F. F. Reese, bishop of the diocese of Savannah, was broken open some time last night, it was discovered today when the janitor entered the office on the lower floor of Historic Christ church, the church of which John Wesley was once rector, in the very heart of the downtown section of the city. The burglar got nothing, as only the ancient records of the church and other important church papers are kept in the safe.

TARIFF TO BE SOUGHT ON SOUTH'S PRODUCTS

New Orleans, October 12. — The Southern Tariff congress, formally organized here today with John H. Kirby, of Houston, Texas, as president, will recommend to the federal tariff commission and to congress tariff schedules on southern products that will equalize the cost of production in this country with that of foreign countries, according to resolutions adopted by the body at its concluding session.

Resolutions also were adopted urging development of the merchant marine and the foreign trade of the United States. Congress will be asked to plan an adequate tariff on vegetable oils from the Orient, it being claimed that if this is not done the price of cotton seed and peanuts will remain below what the tariff congress asserts is the cost of production.

The congress, it was decided, will maintain offices in Washington and supply information regarding southern products to congressional and other bodies.

It was decided to establish offices in Washington, so that it will be possible to keep facts bearing on cost of production and marketing of southern products constantly before congress and enable congressional committees to easily secure necessary data on southern goods. The Washington offices will be in charge of an executive committee of the tariff congress to be appointed later by the president. The executive committee's efforts will be directed toward keeping "tariffs so that the southern producer cannot only make a living, but a fair profit."

Organization, as perfected today, named Mr. Kirby as president; Arthur J. Draper, of Charlotte, N. C., vice president; John T. Scott, Houston, treasurer; J. A. Arnold, Fort Worth, secretary-treasurer.

HARDING BEGINS INVASION OF DIXIE

Republican Candidate Is Speeding to Tennessee. After Speeches in Volunteer State, He Goes to Kentucky.

On Board Senator Harding's Special Train, October 12.—Beginning what may be his last speaking tour outside Ohio, Senator Harding journeyed southward tonight for an invasion of territory which has been counted democratic for half a century.

Opening with a speech tomorrow night at Chattanooga, Tenn., he will swing northwest on the following day to Louisville, Ky., through a section belonging normally to the solid south. Many stops are to be made on the way for rear platform speeches, and the nominee indicated tonight he was prepared to make a vigorous and aggressive fight to swing the two states over to the republican column.

Meantime, the candidate and his managers are holding in abeyance a final decision on the question of an eastern trip in late October. Plans already have been announced for a speech in Buffalo, N. Y., on October 21, and there has been a tentative agreement New York city and New England to take the nominee also to land, but tonight serious consideration is being given to a cancellation of the whole eastern program.

The senator's special train, which left Marion late this afternoon and will reach Chattanooga tomorrow morning, carries two special cars, the Senator and Mrs. Harding riding in the Superb, and Governor Beckman, of Rhode Island, together with several members of his family, accompanying him on the private car Newport.

Most of tomorrow the nominee will spend visiting Lookout Mountain and other historic places near Chattanooga. His train will make a stop of nearly 24 hours in the Tennessee city, reaching there at 7:45 a. m. tomorrow and leaving at 7 a. m. Thursday.

During a short lay over tonight at the station in Columbus, Ohio, the candidate climbed down from his private car and chatted with a group of railroad employees about Cleveland's victory in the world's series. He declared it was "bully" to have the championship pennant remain in Ohio.

Judge McLain Dead.

Memphis, Tenn., October 12.—Judge Frank N. McLain, former member of congress from the sixth Mississippi district, died at his home in Gloster, Miss., last night, according to a telegram received by relatives here.

JAILED FOR ROBBERY, ESCAPES FROM POLICE

John Diffley, aged 19, one of the four men jailed Tuesday in connection with the robbery of the J. M. High company's store early Monday morning when more than $1,200 worth of furs are alleged to have been stolen, made his escape from the city police station last night.

He was placed in the city ward at the police station, instead of the state ward as he should have been, it is said. He escaped by assuming the name of Seaburn Farmer, arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct, and who had put up a cash bond.

When the name of Seaburn Farmer was called by the Turnkey, Diffley answered, and was released as Seaburn Farmer.

Others arrested in connection with the robbery are Herbert Gains, who was taken into custody by Patrolman Paul Morgan and Call Officers McWilliams and Hudson at the Terminal station as he alighted from a train; Joe Dean, 18 years old, and J. J. Harris, 19 years old, both of whom gave their address as downtown hotels, and John Diffley, who made his escape. Diffley said that his home was on the Campbellton road.

According to Special Officer Victor D. Young, of the Retail Merchants' association, and the police, Gains was used by the other three as the tool for disposing of the goods. He is said to have sold expensive fur pieces in Birmingham, Ala., and vicinity at absurdly low prices, attracting the suspicions of the Birmingham authorities.

HINTS ARE GIVEN FOR PROTECTING FIRE APPARATUS

With the approach of the season when fire protection apparatus and water pipes are liable to be rendered useless or badly impaired, due to freezing of water in pipes, the sprinklered risk department of the Southeastern Underwriters' association has sent broadcast a circular letter explaining many means of precaution against freezing of fire protection apparatus.

The precautions suggested in the letter are as follows:

Examine all pipes, fittings and valves on sprinkler and hydrant systems; also pipes, fittings and valves on your steam heating and general water service equipment. See that your entire fire protection, steam heating and service equipment are both in operative condition, and in all cases where you are not absolutely sure that same are sufficiently protected from cold weather, provide the necessary protection.

Provide suitable boxing around all pipe lines which may be in an exposed location (either between ground and first story, between buildings or near windows, doors, etc.). Make frequent tests of these exposed pipes during cold weather, so as to make sure that you are suffering no impairment in your fire protection, steam heating apparatus or service water supplies.

Examine all fire protection water supplies frequently. Where valves are exposed, provide adequate protection to prevent freezing of water in same. All tank down pipes should be thoroughly boxed with double boxing, and heated to prevent freezing.

Make careful examination of all piping on dry pipe systems to determine if all the lines are draining properly, and eliminate all "traps in pipe lines on system. Keep dry pipe valves set properly dry at all times, with the automatic alarm in full commission. Frequent tests of dry pipe valves for water column should be made.

Be sure that all sprinkler controlling valves are wide open and sealed. Your regular man in charge of the fire protection system should be carefully and fully posted as to the purpose and intent of every sprinkler valve, pipe, hydrant, tank and fire pump. If you have fire pumps as a part of your fire protection system, be sure that they are in continuous working order.

Test all hydrant and gate valves and yard mains; be sure that they drain properly. Your attention is called to the liability of water in sacks and pails becoming frozen in unheated buildings. If this water is properly salted trouble from this source may be avoided. We suggest careful attention to the inspection of heating system before putting same into service. All heating pipes should be carefully brushed down, and where the piping is located along walls all accumulation of rubbish or litter should be removed and pipes kept free from contact with walls, partitions, stock, etc.

LOCAL KIWANIANS WILL MAKE TRIP TO MILLEDGEVILLE

A committee of Atlanta Kiwanians will accompany Robert S. Wessels, district governor for Georgia, to Milledgeville on next Friday morning, when Governor Wessels will present a charter to the new club of that city. The committee consists of Kiwanians James E. Belcher, Fred Cooledge, Jr., Jim Penn, Harry Cohen, J. L. Womack and Dr. Sam Green. The club at Milledgeville, with a membership of sixty-four, was recently organized by Warren Kimsey.

Governor Wessels announced at the Kiwanis club luncheon Tuesday that the party of Atlantans will leave Atlanta Friday on an early train for Macon, and will be taken from Macon to Milledgeville by automobiles as the guests of the Kiwanis club at Macon. The charter presentation meeting will be held at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Following the further announcement by Governor Wessels that Atlanta had been selected as the city for the approaching state convention, a fund of $2,110 was raised for the purpose of entertaining the delegates. There are now fifteen Kiwanis clubs in the state, and during the convention a state organization will be perfected.

A delightful surprise was offered in the way of entertainment for Tuesday's luncheon. Upon the invitation of Kiwanian Lewis Haase, manager of the Atlanta theater, four of the most popular members of the Fields' minstrels, now playing at the Atlanta, offered a number of selections. The entertainers were Billy Church, Harry Shunk, Jack Richards and Dolf Kastor.

President George F. Eubanks announced that next week Forrest Adair would wield the gavel. E. M. Erwin and Aleck H. Kent were awarded the weekly attendance prizes, consisting of two $5 checks.

KIRKWOOD PLANS DOUBLE ELECTION ON DECEMBER 1

Kirkwood, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—A double election will be held in this city on the first Wednesday in December for the purpose of electing a mayor and council, and to decide upon the issuing of $65,000 in bonds for the erection of a new school building. The feature of the election wil be the fact that women of Kirkwood will be allowed to cast their votes, council having just granted them the right of the ballot by special ordinance. Registration books will be open to them on November 1.

The school bond election is planned to meet the need for a new school building in Kirkwood. The present structure was built to accommodate 200 pupils ,and in view of the afct that 800 are now in school, the building is absolutely inadequate, and residences are even being used to house the students.

Three citizens have already entered the race for city offices. T. J. Bryan is out for mayor, and W. A. Branham has announced for council from the first ward, and M. W. Gober from the third. No announcements have been made for council from the second and fourth wards.

CHILD IS SERIOUSLY INJURED FROM FALL

Columbus, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—James McDuffie Tolbert, aged 6 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Tolbert, and grandson of Dr. J. H. McDuffie, prominent physician and one of Georgia's best-known trap-shooters, was seriously if not fatally injured at Rose Hill playgrounds here yesterday in a fall of 10 feet from a chute-the-chute.

The little fellow was at the top of the chute and, in some manner, fell from the side instead of sliding down the incline. He has a fractured skull and other injuries.

FRIES HELD ON CHARGE OF ASSAULT ON GIRL

N. E. Fries, 28 years old, of 310 Woodward avenue, was Tuesday morning held without bond for trial in the state court under charges of assaulting a 17-year-old girl in a room at his home last Sunday afternoon.

The case against R. E. Bargeron, who was arrested in the house with Fries and the girl by Call Officers W. F. Anderson and Lon Evans, was dismissed by the recorder.

Fries is a married man and claims that his wife is out of the city on a visit; that the girl knew she was out of town and came voluntarily to see him. He states that she never screamed or called for help, but that some neighbors who knew his wife to be away saw the girl enter his home and phoned to the police.

ATLANTA LEGION POST WILL MEET THURSDAY

The October monthly meeting of Atlanta Post No. 1, of the American Legion, will be held in the assembly rooms of the chamber of commerce Thursday night at 8 o'clock. A report of the recent state convention will be read by Basil Stockbridge. Asa W. Candler will gve a similar report on the national convention.

The University of Chile was first opened to women students in 1886.

CITIZENS OF DECATUR APPROVE FARE FIGHT

Additional Fund Raised at Mass Meeting—City Charter Project Discussed.

Decatur, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—A mass meeting of citizens of Decatur, held at Oakhurst school, in the fourth ward, tonight heard the proposed new charter for Decatur discussed pro and con, and also raised an additional fund to fight the 7-cent trolley fare plan of the Georgia aRilway and Power company.

F. A. Haptolt addressed the meeting, urging a unified front in opposition to the 7-cent fare, and as a result, a fund was raised to supplement that already on hand to carry on the trolley fight. The entire meeting seemed to approve the fight on the raise in car fares.

The discussion for the proposed new city charter was led by J. Howell Green, and Neal Goss headed the opposition to the measure. Both speakers brought out points of argument to substantiate their views on the project.

Number of Meetings.

The proposed new charter, abolishing the mayor and council and providing for commission and city manager, is absorbing considerable interest and discussion from one end of Decatur to the other. Already several well-attended mass meetings have been held, and at each meeting the merits and demerits of the present and proposed form of government have been freely and candidly discussed by public officials and other leading citizens.

Neighborhood meetings have been announced by Captain Candler for the following homes, each meeting to be held at 8 o'clock in the evening: Wednesday, October 13, W. J. Sayward, 402 South Candler street; W. A. Cooper, 417 Clairemont avenue; Guy Webb, 511 West Howard avenue; Thursday, October 14, H. W. Riddgely, 307 Drexel avenue; James M. Morgan, College and Oak streets; J. W. Dobbins, 1014 Clairemont avenue.

Central Gathering.

Another meeting is also announced for the Poplar Springs neighborhood, Thursday night, October 14, to be held in open air, in front of the stores in this neighborhood.

On Friday night, October 15, there will be held another central mass meeting at the courthouse in Decatur, at which both sides will have their strongest speakers, and the expected large attendance at this meeting will probably tax to the fullest the seating capacity of the courthouse.

October 15 will be the last day for registration, and the campaign committee in charge of the new charter movement is urging all citizens who are not yet registered to do so at once, and the women of the town are especially urged to register. A large number of women have already registred, and the election on October 20 will probably bring out a very large vote of the newly-enfranchised women voters.

Over 400 Women Voted.

FUNERAL OF FOREACRE WILL BE HELD FRIDAY

Services Will Be Conducted at the First Methodist Church.

The special train bringing to Atlanta for burial the body of William M. Foreacre, general manager of the Southern railway on lines east from Charlotte, N. C., whose death occurred suddenly Tuesday morning in his car near Hendersonville, N. C., arrived Tuesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The body was taken to the funeral parlors of H. M. Patterson. The funeral services will be held Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the First Methodist church. The services will be conducted by Dr. J. E. Dickey. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Foreacre was 60 years of age. He retired the night before his death in apparently good health. Tuesday morning, when the porter on the train went into Mr. Foreacre's car to wake him he found him reclining in a chair dressed in night clothes. Physicians said he had been dead about two hours when found by the porter. Death is said to have been caused by an attack of acute indigestion.

At the time of his death, Mr. Foreacre, accompanied by other officials of the railroad, was making a tour of inspection over the road. Mr. Foreacre was born and reared in Atlanta, and though he had not made Atlanta his home for a number of years, he frequently visited the city, and had many friends here.

Mr. Foreacre's career in railroad work was marked with eminent success. He rose from the work of operator for the road in the year 1889 to one of its highest officials. His promotion in various departments of the railroad were rapid. He had held a responsible position in practically every department. In 1907 he received the appointment of general superintendent of the Southern railway of the eastern district with headquarters at Charlotte. In 1917 Mr. Foreacre was made general manager of the lines of and affiliated lines of the Southern railway east, with headquarters remaining in Charlotte.

Mr. Foreacre was unmarried. He is survived by one brother, W. W. Foreacre, of Charlotte; two sisters, Mrs. Blewett Lee, of New York city, and Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear.

J. M. MEANS KILLED BY PISTOL SHOT

J. C. Knight, Street Car Conductor, Shoots Assistant Transportation Superintendent Tuesday Morning.

J. M. Means, assistant superintendent of transportation of the Georgia Railway and Power company, was shot to death Tuesday morning at about 10 o'clock by J. C. Knight, a conductor of the power company, whom Mr. Means was attempting to arrest because of an alleged shortage in accounts. Knight says that his shooting of Means was accidental, caused by a scuffle which ensued when he attempted to kill himself rather than submit to arrest.

Mr. Means died on the operating table at Grady hospital, and Knight, after his wounds had been dressed, admitted that he had been short in his accounts and maintained that he had not intentionally fired the shot that killed the superintendent.

The only eye-witness to the shooting was Paul Reed, connected with the transportation offices on Piedmont avenue, where the fatal happening occurred. It is said that Knight was ordered to remain off his regular run on the Luckie-Waterworks line Tuesday morning and report to Mr. Means in the transportation offices.

Short Almost $150.

"Mr. Means told Knight that his account was short almost $150," said Mr. Reed, "and Knight wanted an opportunity to get the money together—which he said he could do in the day. Mr. Means told him that he would have an opportunity to make the shortage good, and that the bookkeepers would be made to check the books for any possible error, but that he (Knight) would have to be in the custody of an officer while he went in search of the money.

"Knight said that he would not submit to arrest and Mr. Means, himself a special deputy sheriff, told Knight to consider himself under arrest and asked him to deliver his arms. It was then that the scuffle began. I went to the door to call for help and as I turned back into the room three shots were fired, one of which struck Mr. Means and the other two which went into the wall.

"Just after I turned, Knight turned the gun on himself and fired. 'He's shot me; call an ambulance,' said Mr. Means."

Taken to Hospital.

Both the men were taken to Grady hospital, Mr. Means dying shortly after his arrival there, while investigation proved that Knight had only sustained a flesh wound, which, however, may prove serious.

Mr. Means is survived by his wife and five children, of ages 5 to 16. The children are Nellie, Evelyn, Hurt, Joseph and Theodore. He is also survived by two sisters, Miss Alice Means, of Atlanta, and Mrs. B. L. Snellgrove, of Anniston, Ala. The deceased was 47 years of age, and was born in northeast Georgia, in Banks county. His long connection with the power company has made him one of the most popular of its personnel.

Mrs. Knight, the wife of the man who fired the shots, was away from home on a visit to her mother, Mrs. Denman, at Center Hill, when the shooting occurred.

PLANS BEING MADE FOR BIG DRAINAGE CONVENTION HERE

The indications are that several thousand people will attend the ninth annual drainage congress in Atlanta November 10 to 12, according to Judge Newt A. Morris, first vice president of the congress, who has received letters from all parts of the country evidencing a widespread interest in the movement. The entertainment fund of $10,000 will soon be completed.

Governor Dorsey, who has personally indorsed the congress, will, during the week, write letters to all of the governors of the states inviting them to attend. In addition he will appoint three delegates from each county in Georgia.

G. S. van Natta, of Atlanta, district representative of Hess & Skinner, and an authority on drainage subjects, has been appointed chairman of the committee on arrangements, and will supervise preliminary plans for holding the convention.

A number of nationally-known drainage experts have been invited to address the congress on special subjects. Judge Morris and the program committee are at work on the program for the meeting, which will be announced shortly.

UNITY OF MEDICINE AND OF RELIGION SHOWN IN LECTURE

Willis P. Cross, C. S. B., member of the board of lectureship of the Mother church, The First Church, Scientist, Boston, Mass., delivered a lecture last night at the First Church of Christ, Peachtree and Fifteenth streets. He used for his subject "Christian Science, The Unity of Religion and Medicine." A large audience heard the lecture.

Following is the substance of the lecture:

No religious teacher of modern times reasoned along the same lines as did Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, neither has there been anyone who arrived at the same definite conclusions concerning God, man and the universe. These conclusions are clearly set forth in her published works and it is possible for any sincere student to prove for himself the truth and practical value of her teachings.

In 1866 Mrs. Eddy discovered the divine principle of Christian healing. After she had demonstrated the truth and availability of her discovery she taught others how to heal the sick and reform the sinner by means of this practical application of spiritual teachings. This was the beginning of the new era in religious teaching and practice which demonstrates the scientific unity of religion and true medicine.

It is the prevailing human opinion that there can be no connection between religion and medicine because the former has to do with spirit and spiritual laws, while the latter is altogether material. This is true of medicine as generally understood and practiced, but it should be understood that medicine means a way of healing and has a higher signification than that usually attached to it by material systems. The experience of those who have been healed in Christian Science proves that truth is the remedy for both sin and disease. When this Christianly scientific method of healing is understood, it will be acknowledged by all that religion and true medicine are from the same source and cannot be separated, either in theory or practice.

The founder of the Christian religion did not teach that some diseases are curable and others incurable; on the contrary, He healed all manner of physical and moral infirmities and taught His followers to do likewise. His method of treating disease and sin meets the human need today as surely as it healed the sick and reformed the sinner in the first century of the Christian era. Christian Science has rendered practical the essential truths of the Scriptures which all Christian people profess to accept. It has enabled men to see that the Christian religion has a divine principle which can be understood and demonstrated.

Christian believers of whatever faith have said that Jesus' works established the truth of His doctrine. Here arises the important question: Do His professed followers realize the vital connection between His teachings and the works that were done? If so, why are not the same works done today as in the earlier centuries of the Christian era? Why do men seem to have so little faith in God's willingness to heal? Is it not because they have been taught that there is one remedy for sin and another remedy for sickness?

Jesus was the world's greatest religious teacher and He was also the most successful healer of disease. He healed sickness as He healed sin, proving that these evils require the same spiritual remedy. Today it is demonstrated that the remedy for sin is the only effectual remedy for sickness, and this is the evidence that Christian Science has given the correct interpretation of the Master's teachings.

SELLING STOLEN BONDS LAID TO SAVANNAHIANS

Savannah, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—The South Atlantic coast end of a story originating on the Pacific coast developed today when Ara Kolman and Jacob Kolman, in business here, were arrested on a charge of receiving and disposing of stolen bonds. Jim Smith, 20 years old, was arrested in San Francisco several weeks ago on a charge of stealing $45,000 worth of bonds and jewelry from the law offices of R. P. Daniel, in Jacksonville, Fla., in June. Smith was a marine and while on tour in Jacksonville is said to have deserted. An Indianapolis man gave information which led to Smith's arrest, after a cross-continent chase.

Brought back to Jacksonville, he, it is said, implicated the Kolmans here, declaring that he had sold them $5,000 in bonds for $2,500. Smith is here for the investigation and identified the two Savannah men, who are held in $10,000 bonds.

LEADING EASTERN GALLERIES SEND PICTURES TO FAIR

Some of the leading galleries of the east have sent down pictures by master American painters to be exhibited at the elaborate art exhibit of the Southeastern fair, of which Mrs. E. W. More is chairman. Mrs. More calls attention to the fact that many of the pictures which are to be included in the great exhibit are to be placed on public sale, and can be secured immediately after the fair is over. The prices will range from $25 for a student sketch to $3,000 for some of the master pieces by foremost American painters.

"Last year," says Mrs. More, "the Macbeth gallery of New York, one of the foremost galleries of the country, sent down a collection of pictures, but none of them were sold. I received a letter from them recently stating that they had sold some of the pictures that had been shipped to Atlanta to southern customers who had come all the way to New York to get them."

The leading American painters who are to be represented are as follows: Robert Henri, Karl Anderson, George Bellows, Daniel Garber, Charles W. Hawthorne, Frederick J. Waugh, Frank Schoonover, Jessie Wilcox Smith, C. H. Davis, Gustav Wiegand, William Wendt, Howard Giles and other artists. Twelve masterpieces have been lent by the Chicago Art institute from "The Friends of American Art Collection." In addition to these paitings, there will also be an extensive display of color print sfrom eminent art firms.

Mrs. A. Farnsworth Drew, the Atlanta artist, will be represented by three portraits, which she has recently completed of prominent Atlanta families. Other Atlanta artists will have a fine representation of their work.

M'MILLAN SPEAKS AT MASS MEETING THURSDAY NIGHT

Fred McMillan, Christian layman, and well-known railroad official, will speak here Thursday night, at 8 o'clock, to a mass meeting of men of Atlanta, and a number of specially invited laymen from other cities of the south, to be held at the Central Presbyterian church. Men of all denominations are invited.

Mr. McMillan comes as the guest of the Billy Sunday Business Men's club to speak on the subject of "Personal Evangelism." He is well known in Atlanta and throughout the country as a speaker with a clear, straight-cut message of magnetic personality and unusually forceful delivery.

Old Age Deferred

BY DR. LEE H. SMITH.

Business men who must speed up the works and make busines boom during these days—after the war—must recognize the necessity of keeping fit. When mind is befogged, when you have dull headaches or feel logy, when not "up to snuff," keep the bowels free with a mild laxative. In the morning take a tepid sponge batt (cold water may be used if it does not chill), follow with a brisk rub down; a sufficient "setting up" exercise in good air until you are in a warm glow. Have you tried it lately?

Don't let the poisons accumulate in the intestines either, but try a dose of castor oil the first thing on arising, or a pleasant laxative occasionally, such as one made up of May-apple, aloin and jalap, rolled into a tiny sugar-coated pill, and sold in every drug store as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Then a cup of hot water before breakfast, and you'll feel better than a king! If you continue in life thus, you can pass a Life Insurance examination at sixty.

If you wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if you wan to increase your chances for a long life, you should drink plenty o soft (rain) or distilled water daily between meals. Then procure at th drug store Dr. Pierce's Anuric (anti-uric-acid). This "Anuric" drive the uric acid out and relieves backache and rheumatism, as well a kidney trouble. Anuric dissolves uric acid. Try it now!

THE GENIUS OF WALTHAM

WINGS! What a poetic word that is! Wings for the mind to climb the ethereal heights of thought. Wings for the inventor to fly over the obstructing laws of nature. Wings for the dreamer who would take flight over the vastnesses of Time and reach his paradise of Heart's Desire. Man has always desired Wings—

Wings symbolize his ambition, his immortal powers, his desire for mastery even over the elements—and the wish has come true.

When the powerful aeroplane hurtles through the airways above us, we scarce lift our heads to look, so ordinary is the occasion that was once a seeming miracle beyond mortal attainment.

MAN'S mastery of the air is but one of those wizardries which have made the age we live in appear like a chapter from the "Arabian Nights." After all, it is but an achievement contemporary with the X-ray, wireless telegraphy and other wonders of science and invention.

The motor mechanism of a Waltham Watch or Clock involves just as wondrous principles and scientific applications as the more dramatic demonstration of an aeroplane performing its evolutions in the sky.

Indeed, if we examined, part by part—if we probed the surface of the appearance, the tangible thing, called a Waltham Watch or Clock, and understood the tiny inventions placed here and there in the mechanism—we could recite a story of genius—of amazing, concentrated effort that great men gave their very life-blood to provide during the past seventy years from the Waltham laboratories.

We could relate a story which would make the blood of every true American run a little faster and the lips frame words of commendation and honor unto these work-a-day heroes who had one purpose, one determination—to place America First in Time-keeping—in producing watches and clocks that would most accurately and dependably register Time's flying moments.

THEN, is it not a natural sequence of events—based upon long years of preparation—that when war laid the mailed hand upon the genius of our manufacturing ability, our Government should demand of Waltham an Aeroplane Clock to meet tests of time-registering almost equal unto the marvelous Waltham Time-Fuse created to govern the explosion of American shells?

And that American bird-men should carry with them "up there" a dependable timepiece, Waltham produced an Aeroplane Clock—65,000 of them (see illustration)—a small instrument, yet a work of supreme attainment, for it was specified and created to withstand conditions entirely at variance with that environment attributed as necessary for precision performance.

There it is upon the instrument board—just nine ounces in weight—and never before was such impervious motor energy encased in such stanch yet finely wrought strength.

THE aviator is in his seat. He waves a hand nonchalantly. The mechanician gives a half turn to the slim propeller—the blade whirls with a roar, the motor crackles like musketry and man's beautiful winged bird, vibrating like a huge taut steel string struck by a giant hand, climbs in great spirals into the sky.

Up and up; five thousand feet, seventy-five hundred, ten thousand—higher, higher yet, until the huge wings are but black specks in the blue.

Up there in the icy cold a drop of 50, 60, 70, 80 degrees in temperature. What a test in metal contraction! This is where metallurgical science proves the genius of man! But amid the vibration and the biting cold—

The little Waltham Clock ticks on

And now, with bated breath, we watch the daring air-man defy the laws of gravity. With a swoop he loops a circle. Then, as if that were but an introduction, the machine begins a death-defying dive. Down, swifter than a stricken eagle, it falls. We catch our breath; we almost see the huddled, mangled mass of wreckage covering a tale of destruction—and then, as if in mockery of our fears, the winged beauty sweeps on level path to once more climb skyward.

And the tiny Waltham Clock ticks on.

Defiant trick after trick of human hand and nerve conjoined to human daring is displayed to our enthralled sight—the vrille, the dizzying fall as a whirling leaf, the side slip, the tail spin—

And there on the instrument board—no matter what the position, what the temperature, what the racking vibration—proof against these, the wetness of cloud, the cloying dampness of fog, the beat of rain, any weather—

The little Waltham Clock ticks on.

And hundreds of thousands of Waltham Clocks and Watches ever tick on—

In every climatic zone—in the air, in the submarine under the sea, in the warship that goes out upon the great waters, in countless automobiles, in myriads of pockets, upon wrists strong or fair—

Waltham keeps the time o' day; and, like an old saying, the sun never sets upon this American dominion—this Waltham Watch Over Time.

AND let us remember that Waltham is something more than the name of a Clock or Watch.

Waltham represents a growth, an advancement in the art of producing time-keeping instruments beyond the dream of foreign makers.

Waltham represents the concentrated faculty of American determination to improve upon old methods, to overcome the complacency of foreign watch and clock makers; to add to the watch, to the clock—

Marvelous machines for performing certain labors in gold, in steel, in brass, that the human hand could never approximate; to give the world a clock or watch that should represent American supremacy in the field of applied mechanics related to the art of horology. That this is so Waltham has proved by competition against the best horological products the world has pitted against America.

And just as Waltham was the pioneer of American watchmaking during nearly three-quarters of a century under the eagle of peace—so, when war came, the long preparation reaped its triumphant harvest—in the Waltham Time-Fuse, the Waltham Chronometer, the Waltham Aeroplane Clock—and last, but not least, the superb achievement and world challenge of the Waltham Watch.

COTTON AND CREDIT.

Our Washington correspondent, discussing the objects, proceedings and probable results of the nation-wide farmers' conference now in session in the capital, said in his report of the conference, that, "while Secretary Houston will probably not change his recent order (prohibiting the extension of credit by federal reserve banks to farmers to enable them to withhold their products from market pending price increases due to intensified demand) it is 'practically assured' that 'the federal reserve system will come to the aid of the farmers to prevent disaster, where speculations do not enter.'"

Just what this means is not altogether clear, but it is clear enough to be at least encouraging.

What is not clear, of course, is the plan of operation expected from the federal reserve system; but what is encouraging, and what is calculated to put heart into the cotton growers of the south, is the expression of assurance that something is going to be done to aid the producers of cotton and thus "prevent disaster."

That is all the farmers need, want or have asked for—not assistance for cotton speculators, but assistance for themselves and protection against the speculators.

Secretary Houston's order evidently was predicated upon the theory that the farmers wanted to be extended Indefinitely-timed credit on their cotton so as to enable them to hold it until the market is starved to a point yielding inordinately high prices and profits to the hoarders.

But that is not what they want.

They want simply to be enabled, by extension of credits by the federal reserve banks, to hold their cotton for a reasonable time, to be governed by the demand, and not be compelled to dump it, at a sacrifice, into a glutted market.

The world demands a certain amount of American cotton during the course of a year. Say the demand is for 12,000,000 bales, and the south produces 12,000,000 bales. That demand is for cotton to be absorbed by the spinners and other manufacturers evenly, month by month, to keep their plants running twelve months in the year, while the season of gathering the cotton crop lasts only a short while during the fall.

For fifty years the bulk of the cotton crop has been produced on a credit basis, the grower each fall being indebted for his supplies usually to the extent of what it cost him to make his crop.

His indebtedness is represented by notes secured by his prospective crop, and maturing at the time the crop is gathered and ready for market.

Suppose, by way of illustration, his yield is twelve bales of the aggregate yield of 12,000,000 bales, and suppose that all, or a considerable number, of the producers of this aggregate yield of cotton are similarly situated—notes to the extent of the cost of producing the crop falling due, and payment demanded, when the crop is ready for market—and all unload their cotton simultaneously, or within a period of a few months in the fall.

What happens—what naturally and inevitably happens?

The market is glutted; prices go down and down, and the grower, who has his obligations to meet, is forced to sell for what he can get, while speculators, who are able to hold, reap their fat harvest by buying the cotton on an overstocked market and selling at higher prices that are bound to come before the succeeding crop is made, reaping thereby enormous profits by reason of an unscientific and abnormal condition brought about through the growers' being forced to sell on a glutted market.

Who suffers?

The grower, who has only another year's disheartening and unrecompensed toil ahead of him; the spinner, who can take care of only a certain amount of raw product at a time, and who, late in the season, therefore, is at the mercy of the cotton speculator; the ultimate consumer of cotton goods, who likewise has to pay toll, through the merchant and the manufacturers, to the hoarder; and every branch and form of business and the public generally, because retardation of any industry necessarily exerts a depressing and detrimental effect upon the whole community.

All that the farmer wants is simply this: After his cotton crop is made and gathered—after the twelve bales that represent a year's toil and struggle and hope and expectation, are ready for the market—he wants to be able to go to his banker and say: "Here are twelve bales of cotton; they are security for notes of mine held by the grocer, the fertilizer man, and by the banker who loaned me money with which to pay labor and other costs entering into the production of my crop, and which enabled me to live and support my family while my crop was growing; and which notes are now due and must be met. If I sell my cotton now, when every producer is selling, I will be able, of course, to meet my indebtedness, but will have little left with which to begin production of my next year's crop. What I want you to do is to advance me money to enable me to discharge my obligations and market my cotton at the rate of, say, a few bales now, a few more a month hence, and a bale or two now and then throughout the year, so that I might thus receive the full, fair value of my product as its value may be fixed by a normal, stable, even-running market governed by the law of supply and demand."

There is nothing unreasonable in that; conversely, it is expressive of a business principle that is altogether reasonable, altogether constructive and sound.

The federal reserve bank should be willing to authorize the extension of credit to the farmer upon that basis; and if the whole crop were disposed of in that way speculation would be largely done away with, and the farmers, the bankers, the merchants, the householders and everybody else in the community would be the better off for it.

The relationship between the banks and the manufacturing, railroad, and practically every industry other than that of farming, is conducted upon that basis.

The manufacturer, for example, is enabled to hold his manufactured product for distribution upon the market as it is demanded, without dumping it in quantities that would produce stagnation. The banks, by loaning him money on his product, make it possible for him to do that.

The railroad corporations find the banks ready and willing to advance them money upon business and revenue-yielding expectations—expectations that are, of course, based upon fixed and dependable laws of commerce.

And this is as it should be; but why should the farmer be farther removed from the protecting arm of the federal reserve system than is the manufacturer, the railroad, the broker or the merchant?

The banks, as a matter of fact, are doing all that they safely and prudently can do to assist the farmers of the south in the handling of their cotton. They are lending on cotton securities, but what they are doing is not because of the federal reserve system, but in spite of it!

What the farmers and business interests of the south want the federal board to do is to encourage the member banks to even greater lengths of credit extension, and to assist them, by placing back of them the power and support of the federal reserve system to that end—to say, in other words, to the member banks: "Go ahead and extend reasonable credit to the farmer upon his cotton; help him to realize the actual value of his crop; relieve him of the necessity of selling when everybody else is doing the same thing, make it possible for him to sell at intervals throughout the year, as the crop is needed by the world."

Such a policy would not only be beneficial to the farmers, but it would help everything.

If it is not the function of the federal reserve banking system to render such service, then for what purpose was it created?

The steel town of Gary, Ind., in enacting an ordinance prohibiting the purchase of firearms without a permit, has set an example that is well worth following by every other city in the land.

THE JUDGMENT

I.

If you confess before God's throne,
When you have heard the Master's call,
You gave Him nothing of your own,
Though you were ready to give all.
"For how, O, Master," you may plead,
"Could food or drink I give to You,
Or clothe You when You were in need,
When Your distress I never knew?"

II.

Then you will hear the Master say,
"On Earth you helped those in distress;
You let the homeless with you stay;
Your name the outcast lived to bless.
And inasmuch as you have done
These things for them, hear God's decree,
The life eternal has been won,
For you have done these things for me."

III.

When comes the judgement you you hay hear
The Master say, "On Earth when I
Was hungry, naked, you were near,
Yet without mercy passed me by."
Then you may plead you did not see
Him sorrow here in want and woe;
You'll cry, "O, Master, blame not me,
Who did not of Your suffering know."

IV.

Then He will say to you, "The poor,
The hungry, naked, all appealed
To you on Earth in vain. Your door,
When e'er the outcast called, was sealed.
And inasmuch as you failed them,
Your fellow men, hear God's decree,
"Depart with those whom I condemn,

—GORDON NOEL HURTEL.

THEN AND NOW

A country boy, barefooted, poor, alone,
Looked far across the Summer's golden day
Toward the city's pompous, busy way,
Where wealth and splendor shone.
But he was poor, and every fierce desire
Was hushed.—And yet yon curling smoke
Within his soul Ambition's dream awoke
To set his heart afire.
The glad years sped; Ambition had won her way:
The busy street gave him her wealth; and Fame
Showed him the heights, and there his shining name,
Written in gold, to live beyond his day.
But with it all the vale of childhood's joy,
The fragrant hills, the waving fields of June,
Were ever with him, whistling some old tune:
Somehow he longed once more to be a boy.

READINESS.

I have always admired the ready person—the one with no complaints or excuses to offer when called for a task.

To be prepared to accept every change or circumstance in life as it comes—and to do it with a sort of iron serenity—well, that is heroism de luxe!

Every star has its own set path—and it doesn't worry over running into any other star. For its way is part of the order of the universe.

Readiness is an offspring of order.

The well ordered man or woman takes things up in their turn—and sees through them. And their tasks do not overlap One thing at a time—and that well done. Then the next job!

The ready person is never swept off his feet. He stands his ground—accepts circumstances at its face value—even though that value is very high. He pays it.

Old John Brown at Harper's Ferry saw his sons shot down before his very eyes—yet did he fight on. There was to this hero of heroes a readiness of mind and body that gave to him the fortitude to see in a great cause no personal fear.

Also readiness is a creator of calmness, courage and fineness of mental attitude.

There is a readiness of heart which sees in every misfortune a chance to serve. There is a readiness of mind which is able to grasp situations and face them and then to decide decisively.

Readiness is power!

GEORGIA BANKERS URGED TO ATTEND COTTON MEETING

Every member of the Georgia Bankers' association has been invited by H. Warner Martin, president, to attend the annual meeting of the Georgia division of the American Cotton association to be held in Atlanta next Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Warner is vice president of the Dowry National Bank of Atlanta, and, like all Georgia bankers, is interested in the success of any movement looking to greater prosperity for the farmer. His letter to the members of his organization is backed up by letters which have been written by Eugene R. Black, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, assuring the members of the Georgia division that a cordial welcome awaits them, and by W B. Fitzgerald, secretary of the Georgia State Retail Association, inviting the retail merchants of the state to attend the meeting.

Senators Thomas J. Heflin, of Alabama; E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, and Hoke Smith, of Georgia; Gov. Hugh M. Dorsey, of Georgia; former Gov. Richard I. Manning, of South Carolina; J. S. Wannamaker, national president of the American Cotton association; Harvie Jordan, national secretary; B. F. McLeod, chairman of the finance committee; R. W. Mattux, president of the Georgia division; J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, and others, will make addresses.

Flamingo Saved From Extinction

Washington, October 12.—(Special.)—Assurance that the flamingo, bird of beauty and mystery, will escape extinction is contained in a letter received by John Oliver LaGorce, vice director of The National Geographic society, from H. E. W. Grant, colonial governor of the Bahamas, which says:

"You will be glad to hear that an order in council has been passed giving complete protection to the flamingo. This glory of our marshes owes your expedition a debt of gratitude."

The action of the Bahamas council was taken following an expedition, which trailed the flamingo, the most beautiful of the world's larger birds, to its last stand, took motion pictures of the timorous birds, brought about a realization of how near they were to becoming extinct in the new world through annihilation by native sponge fishermen who hunted them down for food purposes at the nesting and molting season.

The first American naturalist to locate and study the gorgeous flamingo was Dr. Frank M. Chapman in 1901, when he estimated that some 20,000 flamingoes were to be found on one of the little known islands of the Bahamas group. Since then it is believed that fully two-thirds of the colonies have perished.

Filmed Birds in Swamp.

The expedition that spent ten days in the abysmal salt swamps of Andros Island, filming the flamingo and studying his habitat, for scientific purposes, was sent out by the Miami Aquarium association and the personnel of the party included James A. Allison, president of the association; Carl G. Fisher, its vice president; Louis A. Fuertes, nature artist and bird life expert; Norman McClintock, naturalist and bird photographer; Louis L. Mowbray, technical director of the Miami Aquarium; Charles Harrison Thompson, Florida hunter and fish expert; John H. Levi and John Oliver LaGorce, secretary-treasurer of the Aquarium association and vice director of the National Geographic society.

"L'Apache," Mr. Allison's yacht, was the mother ship of the expedition, and the express cruiser, "Shadow V.," was used as a scout boat. Canvas canoes were taken along to get into the shallow salt creeks, and nose into the lagoons for deep entrances to the murky swamps where the flamingo hides. A Bahama guide, Peter Bannister, who had aided Dr. Chapman's party nineteen years ago, also went with the party.

After penetrating to the utmost navigable points with the canoes it was necessary to traverse miles of the "swash" or tidal marl marshes, carrying the heavy cameras and motion picture machines, in search for the birds. Wading in the water up to the waist, knee deep in the marl mud, was the daily program, while blinding swarms of mosquitoes compelled nightly retreats to "L'Apache" anchored several miles off shore.

Colonies Discovered.

But the hardships found a worthy reward when the party came upon colonies of several hundred birds, described by Mr. LaGorce as "a flaming mass of brilliant scarlet bodies, jet black beneath the huge wings, with their long, slender necks gracefully lowering and raising their Roman-nosed heads as they sought beneath the water the tiny spiral shell known to scientists as 'cerithium,' upon which the flamingo lives exclusively in its native habitat."

The expedition gathered much valuable scientific material, not only concerning the life habits of the flamingo, but of their rare birds and fish of the Bahamas. The isolation of the flamingo may be sensed from the fact that the members of the party were the first white men to land at Mangrove Key in seven years. Mangrove Key is a small hamlet presided over by a crown commission who is the only visible sign of British authority to be found on an island 90 miles long ond 40 wide. Because of this isolation many of the little known "out islands" of the Bahamas, only now and then visited by the sponge fishers, have preserved primitive conditions that hold secrets of high value to the naturalist.

Both Colonial Governor Grant and F. C. Wells-Durant, colonial secretary of the Bahamas, extended every courtesy and assistance and were deeply interested in the results of the expedition, especially of the discovery which pointed to the threatened extinction of the flamingo. The Bahama law has protected the flamingo for 15 years, but the habitat of the bird is so far from settlements that little attention has been paid to the menace of the spongers. The party found spongers in the act of killing the birds, and a government official swore in Bannister, the negro guide, the only English subject present, as a deputy game warden, and thus brought about the first arrest of the kind ever made.

Bits of New York Life

BY O. O. McINTYRE

New York, October 12.—

I have an old friend,
Who used to be a burglar.
But reformed years ago.
And has been going straight.
And a few weeks ago.
He sent a note to me.
And I went to his address.
In a tumble down street.
And on a small cot.
Under a flickering gas jet.
In a dark old room.
I found him recovering.
From a siege of illness.
And he was very lonesome.
And wanted to talk.
So he told me of the days
Of Paper Collar Joe.
And Mother Mandlebaum.
And Fainting Lizzie.
And Spike the Scar.
And Frisco Rafferty.
Who could read Latin.
Of police haunted cities.
And gay-cats.
Who traveled in mobs.
And Maggie the Duchess.
Who married a lord.
Because he had fine fingers.
And brought him to America.
So she could teach him.
To lift pokes on the avenue.
And after a silence.
He told me of his daughter.
Who never had a chance.
And died in an English cell.
And all through his talk.
He quoted from the Bible.
Which he has read 100 times.
Then he dropped off to sleep.
And I tip-toed out.
And on a street corner today.
I saw a pale-faced youth.
In the grip of two detectives.
And they were pretty rough.
And I heard one of them say:
"Once a crook, always a crook."
And it is a wrong idea.
A relic of ignorance.
And I have a friend.
Who used to be a burglar.
Who has proved it.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

GRANDPA'S IDEAL GAME.

There are nice distinctions to be made between the words work, play, recreation, exercise, game and sport.

Work is the exertion of strength or faculties for the accomplishment of something; toil; labor; physical or intellectual effort directed to an end.

Play is any exercise or activity intended for amusement.

Recreation may be work or play or mere amusement, anything which refreshens the spirits after toil.

Exercise is exertion for the sake of training or improvement—physical or mental.

A game is a contest, physical or mental, carried on for amusement or diversion and conducted according to set rules.

Sport signifies a pastime or a game of which you are merely a beholder. Baseball is a game for the player, a sport for the beholder.

The great evil of American and Canadian sport is that there are far too many patrons who ought to be playing the games they profess to like, instead of taking it out in imagination. How many patrons of boxing have the courage to put on the gloves and stand up against even one of their own soft kind? How many baseball fans could catch a pop-up or bat the ball out of the diamond? Too often the fan is merely a subject of hysteria. Mass hysteria is nowhere more vividly evident than in the bleachers or grandstand in an exciting ball game. The players work their excitement off in the normal way, by physical activity. The beholders go into hysterics. The fans need exercise badly; they get only diversion of doubtful recreative value.

Grandpa's ideal play, diversion, recreation, exercise, game and sport is golf and there should be a law against anyone short of the grandfather age playing this game.

Many a golfer of the present day wins his game while smoking his pipe, and any physical or mental contest which can be won by a person smoking is no contest for a youth to cultivate. It seems a shame that so many men and women, still entitled to be called young, should invade the course and spoil grandpa's fun. These young interlopers should be given checker boards and told to wait a year or two.

Every grandfather—yes, and every grandmother, too—should be required to make a reasonable number of holes each week and bronchial trouble or the fear of it barred as an excuse for staying off the course. We need many more links to coax the older boys and girls out to play, but before opening new links the young 'uns should be severely warned to keep off and leave the field to their betters.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Danger of Cleanliness.

. . . won't allow his wife to give their baby (two months old) a tub bath, saying it is too young. He declares that babies in hospitals are never given tub baths until they are old enough to sit alone. (Mrs. M. A. H.)

ANSWER—The first bath and every subsequent bath should be a tub bath. Of course the nurse supports the baby's back and head with one hand while the baby is in the basin or tub.

Syphilis.

One doctor maintains that syphilis is contracted only through immorality. Another asserts with equal vigor that it may be innocently contracted in such ways as by kissing, using common drinking cups, etc. It might perhaps obviate great unhappiness if you will give the facts about this. (B. M. J.)

ANSWER—Any personal contact with an individual who has syphilis in the first (chancer) or second (mucous membrane and skin lesion) stage may possibly permit its conveyance innocently. Kissing has been the mode of conveyance in a considerable number of cases. Nurses, physicians and dentists are occasionally infected through professional contact with syphilitic patients. As for common drinking cups, there is scarcely sufficient evidence that they ever convey the virus of syphilis; the micro-organism of this disease does not long survive on inanimate objects. There is seldom if ever any question in a physician's mind whether the patient's syphilis is innocently acquired. There need be no particular anxiety about contracting syphilis innocently, provided one uses ordinary personal cleanliness.

Liver and Bacon.

Never had anything do me so much good as a soda bath twice a week, as recommended by you for Xeroderma or fishskin disease. I have also found that liver spots are disappearing—through an accident I loosened my liver years ago and have always had these spots. I eat no meat except a slice of bacon and one egg daily. (C. A.)

ANSWER — Prolonged soaking baths of warm water containing a generous amount of soda (saleratus) usually improve the skin in fishskin disease.

Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received, only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. KIBLER & LONG READJUST PRICES ON CLOTHING STOCK

Readjusting their prices at the present time to meet conditions which will confront clothiers within the next six to twelve months, the house of Kibler & Long, well-known clothiers of this city, have been busy for the past few days working out a scale of new prices on their goods, which they declare will be their standard—at least for some time to come.

Kibler & Long have been established since 1900, and in the past twenty years have established and now maintain a chain of thirty-seven clothing stores over the entire country. Their success—and they have met with it abundantly—has been a fixed standard of goods and a fixed policy of selling at standard prices. In their latest announcement in the press they have called attention to their lowered prices, but these prices, the members of the firm declare, are to be their fixed prices.

"In all our history of twenty years of successful business," said Mr. Kibler Tuesday, "we have never had a cut-price or mark-down sale. The reductions we are announcing now are not to be considered in that light. All over our chain of stores we have gone over our stocks and readjusted prices, but these prices are to be permanent. We realize conditions as they exist today, and as they appear to look for the future. We are making our prices now to conform with what we expect them to be next spring. Thus we are about six months in advance in making these new prices standard now, but we feel they will be in line with the prevailing prices which will exist later on, as the tendency to lower prices continues to prevail."

ROSCOE CARDEN CASE CLOSES IN MISTRIAL

Judge Samuel H. Sibley declared a mistrial Tuesday in the United States district court in the case against Roscoe Carden, after the jury reported its inability to reach a verdict following deliberation of nearly two hours. Carden was charged with violating the national prohibition amendment, the alleged violation involving forty-one gallons of whisky.

The trial of Ray Vincent, charged with impersonating an army officer, which was originally set for Monday, and twice postponed, is expected to begin at 10 o'clock today. A postponement was necessary Tuesday because of the absence from the city of John Y. Smith, counsel for the accused.

Tom Evans plead guilty to possessing a quantity of morphine sulphate in violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act, and was sent to jail for seven months. W. E. Smith plead guilty to a violation of the prohibition act, and was fined $850. It is alleged he had in his possession six gallons of whisky.

BRITISH OFFICERS KILLED IN IRELAND

Major Smyth and Another Officer Shot Dead When They Raid Home of College Professor.

Dublin, October 12.—Major George Smyth, brother of Commissioner Smyth, of the Irish constabulary, who was assassinated in a club house in Cork, where he was sitting with friends last summer, was killed last night during military raids in Drumcondra, County Meath. The killing occurred while the military was raiding the home of Prof. Carrolan, of All-Hallowes college.

Major Smyth long had been in the British army and had been decorated with the distinguished service order and the military cross. At the time of the assassination of his brother he was serving in Egypt, but shortly afterward returned to Ireland and had been stationed in Dublin for a short time.

During the raid another officer was killed, one non-commissioned officer was wounded and one civilian was killed and another wounded, according to an official report of the affair made public today.

Long Rifle Battle.

Unofficial reports received later stated the shootings occurred while the military was raiding the home of Professor Carrollan, of All-Hollawes college, in search of two young men who had been staying at the house. Just what occurred is not explained, but there appears to have been a rifle battle lasting half an hour, shots being fired from both inside and outside the house. Professor Carrollan is reported to have been seriously wounded. His wife was in the house during the fight.

One of the officers killed, it is stated, was Major Smyth, believed to be a brother of Commissioner Smyth, of the Royal Irish constabulary, whose murder in Cork last July caused a sensation and resulted in much bloodshed in Ulster, his home.

British Soldiers Ambushed.

Cork, October 12.—An attack on a military lorry in the Mallow district of Cork today resulted in the death of the driver and the wounding of three soldiers. It developed into anotner fight between soldiers hurried to the scene, and the attacking party, which, according to a military headquarters report, numbered 150 men and was armed with machine guns, rifles and bombs.

The scene of the ambush was near the town of Kanturk, the residents of which later closed their houses and shops and fled to the country, fearing reprisals.

Ballinderry, Ireland, October 12.—Constables Kenny and Crawford were shot dead and a sergeant and two other constables were badly wounded when a police motor car running between Roscommon to Ballaghadereen, county of Mayo, was fired upon today.

DEATH THREATENED FOR SINN FEINERS.

Cork, October 12.—The Cork Echo today received an anonymous letter purporting to emanate from "the supreme council, Cork circle of the Anti-Sinn Fein society" threatening death to Sinn Feiners if the killing of members of the crown forces continues.

The society is unknown to the Sinn Feiners, but the letter is accepted as authentic. It threatens the death of two Sinn Feiners for every member of the crown killed, and in the event that a Sinn Feiner is not available three sympathizers will be killed and the reprisals will apply equally to the laity and clergy of all denominations. It also threatens the death of a Sinn Feiner for any member of the crown forces wounded.

Copies of the letter have been addressed to other Cork newspapers and to the parish priest of Bandon, Canon Cahalan, brother of the bishop of Cork.

PREMIER'S SPEECH DECLARATON OF WAR.

London, October 12.—Leaders of the Sinn Fein movement regard the speech at Carnarvon, Wales, Saturday by Premier Lloyd-George as almost a "declaration of war on Ireland," says the Dublin correspondent of The London Times. There are many signs, continues the correspondent, that the executive department in that city intends to bring matters to a head as quickly as possible by a concentrated campaign against disorder, which, by inflicting general hardships on the country, may make crime and lawlessness "truly unpopular." Projected measures are said to include complete stoppage of the Irish railways, drastic reduction of the postal service until all railway workers agree to return to duty and until there is a cessation of raids on the mails.

BOYCOTT TELLING ON BELFAST BANKS.

Belfast, October 12.—The Belfast Traders' Protective Federation issued a circular today stating that the government had been asked to declare a moratorium on Belfast banks owing to the situation created by the Sinn Fein boycott and large withdrawals from the banks.

The Sinn Fein some time ago decided to force the withdrawal of money from Ulster banks by refusing to accept checks drawn on such banks.

State Division U. D. C. Plans to Honor Benson

Macon, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—At the opening business session of the Georgia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy tomorrow morning, an effort will be made to have the convention go on record as favoring a medal from the state of Georgia for Admiral William S. Benson, the Macon man who served as chief of naval operations during the world war. The matter was discussed this afternoon at a meeting of the executive committee at the home of Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, and the committee decided the question should come before the convention as a whole.

Admiral Benson has been awarded medals by England, France, Italy, Belgium and the state of New Mexico. The Sidney Lanier chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy in Macon memorialized the last general assembly of Georgia to strike a medal in his behalf in recognition of the honor he brought to the state, but the measure was defeated, opposition developing because of his connection with the Catholic church.

That the different educational chairmen of the United Daughters of the Confederacy organizations co-operate in the discharge of their respective duties, instead of working independently, was another matter discussed by the executive board this afternoon, and the matter will come before the convention for settlement by a vote of the full body. Another matter to come before the convention will be that of reducing the number of delegates to represent the different chapters at the annual conventions to the presidents of the chapters and one member from each chapter.

Mrs. Frank Harrold, president of the Georgia division, announced today she will present a silver loving cup to the chanter having the best war record. She knows which chapter will be honored but has not yet divulged the secret.

It developed at the board meeting today that 884 new members had been received into the organization since last year's convention. There are now 1,300 members in the Georgia division, with 125 chapters.

The opening session of the convention was held tonight at Wesleyan college, being featured by addresses of welcome and responses. A musical program was rendered. There are 300 delegates in attendance.

At the meeting of the Georgia division today Mrs. John K. Ottley, of Atlanta, spoke eloquently in response to the addresses of welcome. Mrs. Frank Harrold, president of the division, received an enthusiastic appreciation when, in her address, she said:

"The political caldron of today calls for a broader and deeper patriotism than ever before. I agree fully with Dr. Campbell Morgan, who said recently in a sermon in Atlanta that Americ an politics was like the peace of God, it passeth all understanding.

"To be a member of the Daughters of the Confederacy is the most eloquent tribute a woman can pay to her Confederate ancestry and is a vindication of Confederate history before all the world. When the question is asked, 'Is there still a Dixie?' let the answer be, 'Look at the vast throng of Daughters of the Confederacy and doubt it if you dare.'

"We are Daughters of the Confederacy to preserve in loving remembrance the memory of those who gave their lives for the Confederacy, and to preserve their last resting places from neglect and obliteration, to care for the needy ones who still abide with us; to preserve the truths of history.

"We are also working on the advanced theory of helping the living, while keeping forever sacred the memory of the dead. We are working with patriotic zeal in giving scholarships, offering medals for historical essays, and prizes for the best averages in history. In no way can the energies and intellect of women be used to better advantage than in keeping alive patriotism, perpetuating history, educating poor boys and girls and Americanizing the immigrant."

ROOSEVELT SCORES REPUBLICAN TRICK

G. O. P. Speakers Instructed to Refer to League as "Wilson League."

Danville, Ill., October 12.—Making public a copy of a letter alleged to have been sent by Senator Harry S. New, chairman of the republican speakers' bureau, to "Republican Spell-Binders," advising them that the league of nations should "always be referred to as Mr. Wilson's league," Franklin D. Roosevelt, democratic vice presidential nominee, in an address here tonight bitterly condemned such reference as "a deliberate and wilful misstatement of fact."

"If there is any one clear fact about this league of nations controversy," he said, "it is that it is not Mr. Wilson's league, nor any other single person's league—it is not even an American league or a French league. It is a league worked out around a council table of allied nations after the armistice, founded upon the mutual desire of all nations to render future wars, if not impossible, at least highly improbable.

"President Wilson represented, as was his official duty. America at this council, but America's suggestions were not any more exclusively Mr. Wilson's ideas than was the whole league plan exclusively America's suggestion."

Mr. Roosevelt called attention to the recently published correspondence between President Wilson and former President Taft, in which the latter offered several suggestions for changes in the tentative draft of the league covenant.

Party of Fair Play.

"If there is any one thing that I am prouder of than any other about our democratic party and its record, it is that we have been a party of fair play. For instance, all of you who are at all familiar with the labor questions which have arisen know that never before has the right of labor to be recognized beon so officially acknowledged as by the present administration. We also have insisted on fair play in our relations with the world."

Mr. Roosevelt declared that under previous republican administrations Europe looked upon us as a nation of "mere merchants and money grabbers," whereas, under the present democratic administration, it "came to look upon us as a nation of high ideals, willing and eager to help the world toward a better state of living for everyone."

"And now the old republican gang," he added, "having succeeded in nominating a candidate, perfectly pliable and acquiescent, wants you to go back to what their candidate learnedly refers to as 'normalcy.' As a first step we are to discard the league of nations. I don't believe the voters of this country will follow any such course."

Wiggle Wobble Policy.

In the course of his speech, Mr. Roosevelt expressed his "deep appreciation to the republican national committee for spreading broadcast through this section of the country large posters showing the pictures of the republican nominee with the inscription: 'Let us have done with wiggle and wobble.'"

"No advertisement published by the national democratic committee," he said, "could so exactly have expressed the main issue of this campaign. The republican presidential nominee has inseparably attached the policy of 'wiggle and wobble' to himself.

"Senator Harding's advisors apparently are thoroughly alarmed," he continued. "His return to Marion yesterday is followed by two new 'wiggles' and one 'wobble.' First, we have a new explanation of how he is against going into the league of nations, but is still in favor of some kind of a ouija board league. Second, he is attempting to apologize to the American Legion for his statement that he would bring our troops back from the Rhine by making a separate peace with Germany; and, finally, he seeks to explain his determined opposition in the senate to the confirmation of Justice Brandeis as a member of the supreme court."

Mr. Roosevelt left here late tonight for Crawfordville, where he speaks tomorrow morning. He is to be at Greencastle at noon, Brazil in the afternoon and Terre Haute at night.

Dr. Isadore Dyer Dead.

New Orleans, October 12.—Dr. Isadore Dyer, dean of the medical faculty of Tulane university, and credited with important discoveries in connection with leprosy and malignant skin diseases, died at his home here today, aged 54. He had been ill some time with heart trouble. Dr. Dyer was a native of Galveston, Texas.

Daring Pete Craig Gets Another Job, A Dangerous One

Riding Dispatches in France Tame, and Police Reporting Like Pink Tea Compared to New Endeavor.

BY PAUL WARWICK.

After the hibernation season for carnivals has sped, and the Weidemann-Pollie shows get on their itinerary again, the attendant acoustics will be mussed up with something like this—

"Step right up, ladies and gents, see Wild Pete Craig, the outdaringest devil that ever rode a flame-snortin' motorcycle round the wall of the motordrome!"

For Pete has annexed another job, this time, says Pete, one with thrills a-plenty.

Riding dispatches in France was too tame for him; police reporting was too much like a pink tea; city editing The Columbus Enquirer-Sun was much, much took sedentary—he just had to do something.

So last week, when the Weidemann-Pollie aggregation was in Gainesville, Pete's home town, the indefatigable Pierre arose in righteous wrath when his best girl lowed as how the guy who rode around the narrow board upright on a speeding motorcycle was about the only guy who could get away with it.

Pete stepped into the arena, asked the master of ceremonies to give him a chance at it—and up he goes. He liked it and the manager of the outfit liked the way he did it. So after Pete's initial performance, he was signed up. One more town is all the gang will strike this season, before hibernation. They go to Rome, for the north Georgia fair, then Pete will rest up for another season.

Or he may try some reporting, or mort-writing, most anything to fill in the gaps which will inevitably arise when one's career is so checkered and varied as is that of Pete. He demands action, and usually gets it.

Pete is the son of W. H. Craig, well-known newspaper man and citizen of Gainesville, Ga., and the brother of the late Britt Craig, of The Constitution. The new motorcycle daredevil was for a time engaged on The Constitution, alternating the night shift in the office and duty at the police station.

SEIZED GERMAN CABLES AND THEIR DISPOSITION

Washington, October 12.—Claims of the five allied and associated powers represented at the International Communications conference here regarding disposition of seized German cables were presented today at a meeting of the subcommittee charged with consideration of the subject. The French claims were first heard, followed by Great Britain, Italy, Japan and the United States.

All of the German cables are now held by France, Great Britain and Japan since their seizure in 1914. While it is understood that in the allocation of the lines by the conferencees, a large part of them will be retained by the countries now in possession, it is expected by the American commissioners that some part of them may be apportioned to the United States.

The sessions of the committee on disposition of the cables, which is the largest committee appointed by the conference, consisting of some thirty advisors and delegates, was held today in executive session.

A formal statement issued by the conference said each delegation had presented its views before the committee considering disposition of seized German cables and explained "its needs for communication facilities."

"No formal demands have been made," the statement continued, "but the whole matter is being discussed in its various phases."

Another section of the conference is considering the "radio protocol" worked out by the five major powers and presented to other nations for study.

"It is designed," the statement said, "to provide regulations which will permit the fullest possible development of the use of radio."

The conference section charged with reviewing the needs of the five big powers for better communication means among themselves got under way today.

"Thus far," the official report said, "this discussion has been general in character. The general needs for communication facilities for governmental, commercial and press purposes have been touched upon."

In conclusion, the report said, the conference had "gotten on a working, harmonious basis" and would take up a general exchange of views on the problems as rapidly as possible.

Richmond, Va., October 12.—The Southern Railway system won its bet in not taking the government guarantee for the six months from March 1 to August 31, actual operating income for this period having exceeded what would have been received under the guarantee by $642,078.46, according to announcement made in the annual report submitted to the stockholders of the Southern Railway company by President Fairfax Harrison at the annual meeting held here today.

Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, of Charlottesville, Va., president of the University of Virginia; Robert Jemison, Sr., of Birmingham, Ala.; Bishop John Carlisle Kilgo, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Charlotte, N. C., and Charles Steele, of New York, were re-elected as members of the board of directors for the term of three years. A large majority of the stock of the company was represented at the meeting.

C., October 12.—Hornets Nest post of the American Legion has transmitted to national headquarters a resolution passed at its meeting Monday night requesting the legion to reject the $5,000,000 Knights of Columbus fund on the ground that it is contrary to the principles of the legion to become either politically or religiously entangled.

Brussels, October 12.—An attempt was made to assassinate Prince Regent Alexander of Serbia during his recent tour in Bosnia, according to the Montenegrin press bureau today. The bureau adds:

Children and Aged Seeking Atlanta Good Samaritans

Little known and less aided lives a woman in this city who supports by her own labor three little boys, and an aged mother and father. Her husband deserted her several years ago, leaving her with the burden of providing clothing, food and shelter for five individuals.

Mrs. S. works daily in a factory for which she receives $15 per week. This constitutes the sole family income with which growing boys at the ages of 12, 10 and 8 must be fed, a diet for the feeble and sick mother is necessary, and Mrs. S. and her old father must eat also. The parent possessing boys will know how inadequate $15 is for mere groceries.

The father remains at home during the day nursing his ill wife and caring for the children. But food and rent and clothes must be secured and he can no longer assist in this way. The rent alone is $20 per month. Mrs. S. has been saving half of this out of her monthly income of $60. The Associated Charities has been paying the other. The organiaztion is now forced to appeal to the public for $10 per month for four months; a total of $40, to supplement the meager funds of this family suffering as winter approaches.

AMERICUS PLANNING BIG SALE OF SWINE

Americus, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—Two carloads of hogs will be offered in a farmers' co-operative sale here Wednesday, October 20, according to an announcement by George O. Marshall, county farm demonstration agent. An added feature of the sale will be the offering of 100 or more young shoats too light for packing house purposes, which will be sold to other farmers as feeders.

Large crops of corn and velvet beans have been raised here this season and, as a result, many Sumter county farmers are now seeking to purchase hogs and cattle with which to graze off these crops. Sumter's hog crop this year is the largest in the history of the county, and already has yielded farmers here unusually large returns.

try since then was felt at Marion. In consequence of this another change was made—the eleventh, by the way."

Most of Governor Cox's addresses today were from the rear platform and all of his audiences cheered and applauded. Several hundred persons were in some of the crowds. Some brought bands and automobiles were thick at each station with stops continuing from almost sunrise until long after dark. In Illinois, the governor made rear platform talks at Green Spirngs, Pekin, Washington, Eureka, Secor, El Paso, Gridley, Chenoa, Fairbury, Gilman, Watseka and Sheldon.

In Indiana, en route here, he spoke at Kentland and Reynolds. Interets of Illinoisians in Governor Cox was indicated by crowds gathered at some stations where no stops were made.

Indiana will continue the governor's battle grounds tomorrow. On Thursday, the governor will speak in Ohio, with a night address to Columbus.

Senator Harding's league position, Governor Cox added, "is the most ignoble spectacle in the history of all American campaigns."

Rejection of the league, the governor continued, would mean "atrophy of the soul."

For Creed of Christ.

"America would die," he said, "certainly as a moral influence in the world. I am in favor of America holding the creed of Christ rather than the creed of Cain."

Amplifying his charges of a newspaper "conspiracy of silence" regarding the democratic cause, Governor Cox asserted that no republican papers were printing the league covenant. Reiterating that purchase and consolidation of western democratic and independent newspapers began about eighteen months ago, when, he said, "the senatorial conspiracy against the treaty" was conceived, the governor added:

"In my judgment Will H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee handling the millions of dollars at his disposal, had much to do with the purchase of these newspapers."

Governor Cox spoke here from a large temporary grandstand at a street intersection on the courthouse square.

The streets were jammed a half block in either direction and at the intersection. Other spectators occupied store windows opposite.

K. of C. Celebration Of Discovery Day.

The Atlanta council, Knights of Columbus, taking part in a nation-wide celebration of "Discovery day," assembled last night at a banquet at Druid Hills Golf club, and the attendant exercises, which had similar observance in every city and town in the United States, where there is a K. of C. council, were most interesting.

Patriotism, the purpose of the order, was the keynote of this occasion, as of every K. of C. celebration of the day throughout the country. The addresses, the decorations, the favors, all bespoke this cardinal principle of the organization.

The banquet was served in the main dining room, which was decorated with palms, the national colors, and the insignia of the Knights. Their shield was the design in red, white and blue on the programs, which were draped with the Star-Spangled Banner, and the words of the national anthem and "America" were also printed on the program, and sung at the close of the speaking by the company of two hundred, which included ladies.

The invocation was made by Rev. Father Pelletier. Mr. Lewis D. Sharp was toastmaster and responses were made by Rev. Father Richard Smith, Rev. C. B. Wilmer, Mr. Winfield P. Jones. There were musical selections by Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Adair, Miss Gertrude Maurer, Mr. Will Maurer, Mr. James McGowan.

After the banquet a reception was held, and there was dancing, a large orchestra providing the music.

The arrangements committee included P. P. Hanley, chairman; James Gillespie, Clement L. McGowan, Joseph R. Griffin, J. Charles Gavan, A. A. Baumstark, Joseph R. Copke, Joseph G. Callaghan, J. A. McGlone.

On the reception committee were Dr. John H. Powell, chairman; William G. Chamberlin, M. C. Carroll, Jr., J. Edward Flynt, J. A. Lambert, Peter F. Clarke, Lieutenant C. C. Doyle, Philip A. Aiklen.

Today's Calendar.

John Powell-George Harris program for children, the first event in the Music Study club's course for its juvenile department this afternoon at 3:30 at the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church annex.

First of a series of Wednesday afternoons at home by Mme. O. K. Slifer for French people in Atlanta.

Joint luncheon by Mrs. Ray Willis and Mrs. Ware Hutchinson at East Lake Country club for Mrs. M. A. Clay, of Portland, Oregon, the guest of Mrs. Louise Newel and Mrs. Frederick Waite, of Palmetto, the guest of Mrs. Hatton Rogers.

Mrs. J. B. Peebles' afternoon party for Miss Emily Melton.

Famous Lonesome Tunes at Thursday Morning Concert.

A most delightful program of folk tunes, both English and American, will be sung by Charles Harris, the American tenor, to illustrate John Powell's lecture on "Nationalism in Music," which is to be given before the Atlanta Music Study club at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning at the annex of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church on Piedmont avenue.

Especial attention is directed to the fact that this lecture-recital will not be held his morning as previously announced, but will be held on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, due to the inability of the artists to reach Atlanta in time for the morning program today.

Mr. Harris has chosen both English and American folk songs for his program in order to bring out the very close kinship of the two. In the "Lonesome Tunes," which has been arranged by Howard Brockway, from the old songs which he has heard in the mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee, the material is practically the same as in the ancient English songs, although the "Lonesome Tunes" have a special backwoods flavor all their own.

Mr. Powell, who has devoted practically his entire life to the study of the folk tunes and negro spirituals of America and in making use of these in his own important compositions, will give a most enlightening lecture on "Nationalism in Music."

Admission will only be extended to club members. This, however, will not shut out the general public from attending, since cards can be obtained at the door upon payment of the regular club dues of $2. These cards will also admit, without further payment, to the lecture-recital of Mrs. Edward McDowell, Miss Marion Rous and other eminent artists who are to appear in the morning musicales of the Music Study club this season.

Woman's Club Work Meeting Servant Problem.

With its kindergarten playroom solving the problem of the careless nurse, and its cooking classes making the housewives independent of the incompetent cook, the household economics department of the Atlanta Woman's club is striving in every way to help its members adjust themselves to the critical servant problem.

Classes organized by the department and fostered by the government are starting this week in sewing on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 2:30 to 5 o'clock at the club house; in millinery Wednesday and Friday mornings from 9 to 11 o'clock at the club house; and in cooking Wednesday and Friday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Girls' High school, where the members are fortunate in being able to practice cooking as they are given instruction.

The fees are very small, due to government aid—$2 per month for course of 10 lessons (2 per week), or $1 per month for course of five lessons (one per week).

The best teachers in the city have been secured for this work. Miss Drew Lawrence, in charge of sewing, at Commercial High school, will direct the sewing classes at the club; Miss Pinckney Weans, cooking expert, at Girls' High school, will teach the cooking classes, and Mrs. Mae Bailey, an experienced Atlanta milliner, will direct the millinery classes.

Mrs. F. B. Ramey, West 943, is cooking chairman, and still has a few vacancies which will be filled in the order in which the fee for the course is received.

Mrs. M. S. Mentzer, Hemlock 575-W, is chairman for sewing and millinery, and she also can enroll a few more. Members are urged to enroll now in order not to miss any lessons.

To Mrs. Holbrook.

Miss Josephine Crane and Miss Roberta Robson gave a pretty luncheon yesterday at the home of Mrs. Jefferson Dunwody in Kirkwood, in compliment to Mrs. Henry Clay Holbrook, who has recently returned to live in Atlanta.

Completing the party were Mrs Dunwody, Mrs. James Cameron, Mrs. Davis Hill and Miss Alice Dunaway.

To Miss Asbury.

In compliment to Miss Gladys Asbury, of Clarkesville, a bride-elect, several pretty parties have been given this week.

On Monday afternoon Miss Elwyn Clark gave a matinee party at the Lyric. Afterwards Mrs. William Swartz entertained at 5 o'clock tea.

LIFE WAS A MISERY TO HER

Says this Woman Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Carrollton, Ky.—"I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I swept the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak, languid, had no energy and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. I have done all kinds of work and at present am an attendant at a State Hospital and am feeling fine. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to dozens of my friends and shall always recommend it."—Lillian T. Tharp, 824 S. 6th St., Carrollton, Ky.

Vinol Is What You Need to Create Strength and Vigor

Because it is a non-secret, scientific combination of the most successful tonics known—Cod Liver and Beef Peptones, Iron, Nux Vomica and Hypophosphites.

It enriches the blood with thousands of red blood corpuscles, quickens the circulation, creates a hearty appetite and imparts strength and vigor to every part of the body.

Physicians Prescribe and Druggists Recommend

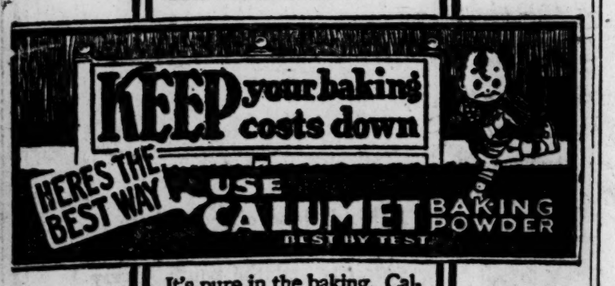

Vinol

It Does All We Claim or Costs You Nothing

THE first thing you want in foods and the all important thing is purity.

Foods should be nourishing. That's what they are for—to build up strong, sturdy bodies.

Calumet Baking Powder is pure in the can. It is made in the largest, cleanest, most modern Baking Powder Factories on earth—only of such ingredients as have been officially endorsed by United States Food Authorities.

It's pure in the baking. Calumet never fails to produce the sweetest and most palatable of nourishing foods.

It has more than the ordinary leavening strength. You use less of it. That's one reason it is the most economical of all leaveners.

Another reason is—it is sold at a moderate price—you save when you buy it.

It is important that you use only straight wheat flour (not self-rising flour) and pure baking powder if you wish to obtain the gluten demanded by sound health.

Calumet Waffle Recipe

2¼ cups sifted pastry flour, 3 level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1¼ cups milk, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 tablespoons of melted butter, 2 eggs beaten separately. Then mix in the regular way.

Miss Nina Hansell Weds Mr. Macdonald, of S. C.

A morning wedding of impressiveness and beauty was that of Miss Nina Hansell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Hansell, and Mr. John E. MacDonald, of St. Helena Island and Beaufort, S. C., which took place at 10 o'clock at All Saints' church.

Rev. W. W. Memminger, the pastor, was the minister officiating, and there were present only the immediate families and a few friends. Miss Elizabeth MacDonald, of Beaufort, a sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and the only attendant.

Palms in tasteful arrangement, with pedestal vases of lavender and pink and white cosmos decorated the church, and there was appropriate organ music.

The bride wore a smart tailored gown of violet duvetyn embroidered in chenille, and her velvet hat the same color, was similarly embroidered and had finish in gold. Her corsage bouquet was of bride roses and swansonia.

The maid of honor was gowned in mauve georgette crepe with tulle hat, and her flowers were Richmond roses.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald left for a motor trip in North Carolina.

The cordial interest of many friends centered in the marriage. The bride is a lovely and gifted young woman, her family one of long established prominence. Mr MacDonald is well-known here, having spent four years at Georgia Tech. He won a commission in the first officers' training camp at Fort McPherson, and saw service overseas. He is now successfully engaged in business in Beaufort, and with his bride will reside at "Frogmore," on St. Helena's Island, the family residence for many generations.

Georgia Women Are Urged To Register During October

The Georgia League of Women Voters through its chairman, Miss Annie G. Wright, of Augusta, has issued an appeal to the women of the state. She urges them to qualify under the registration laws and be prepared to vote.

The women of the state generally have acquiesced in the position that they can vote only on the same terms as men. The law requires male voters to register at least six months before any election in which they are to participate. So the women should register now in order to qualify for all elections six months hence.

This registration will qualify women to vote in city as well as state and national elections.

Miss Wright's statement follows:

"Georgia women are now entitled to enjoy the responsibilities and opportunities of full citizenship on the same basis as men, and it is the purpose of the Georgia League of Women Voters to take up immediately a campaign of registration and education in citizenship. It is imperative that women register in every county as soon as the books are opened.

"Mrs. Maude Wood Park, chairman of the National League of Women Voters, is calling upon the women to register and vote. Said Mrs. Park: 'The dramatic victory in Tennessee emphasizes anew the hardships and the endurance which have gone into the winning of suffrage. Hundreds of women have expressed by letter and telegram and poem and jubilation their gratitude to Mrs. Catt and the leaders of the suffrage movement. There is just one way to make that gratitude an effective thing. Use your vote now that you have it.

"'If you are glad you have the vote, be glad enough to put yourself to the trouble of registering and voting. If you are grateful for the gift of the ballot, use it.'

"I urge that the women of every county register immediately, though they may not vote in the coming election owing to disqualification resulting from a state law which requires registration six months prior to election. It is imperative to register.

"There is great need for citizenship schools throughout the state, and it is our hope that in the immediate future every county will conduct a citizenship school. Plans for these schools will be furnished by the Georgia League of Women Voters.

"ANNIE G. WRIGHT,
"Chairman Georgia League of Women Voters."

The Atlanta chapter of the Georgia League of Women Voters has already taken action in accord with Miss Wright's appeal. At a meeting of the executive board held Monday at which Mrs. Harry P. Hermance, chairman, presided, a resolution was passed urging women to register.

Books for registration are now open in the office of Tax Collector Lucien Harris on the first floor of the county courthouse at the corner of Pryor and Hunter streets. Special arrangements have been made for the registration of women in the next ten days. During that time women prominent in club work and social life of the city will be at the courthouse to explain registration to the new voters.

Baugh—Wilkes Engagement of Interest in Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Edward Baugh, of LaGrange, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sara Elizabeth, to Mr. Benjamin L. Wilkes, also of LaGrange, the marriage to take place November 16, at 8 p. m., at the First Baptist church.

Miss Baugh is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic J. Paxon, of Atlanta, and has frequently visited here, where she has many friends. Her family is one of prominence in LaGrange, and Mr. Wilkes is also well known there and cordially liked.

Mme. Slifer to Entertain French Residents in Atlanta.

Madame O. K. Slifer will entertain this afternoon at the first of a series of six Wednesday afternoons at home.

They will serve to introduce Madame Slifer's American friends to the French people now resident here. Only French will be spoken and there will be music.

Today the guest of honor will be Mrs. Thomas Erwin, who has been most hospitable to new-comers here from France.

A small company of twelve or fourteen guests will be assembled each week, the hours from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Women's Citizenship Committee Meets.

Mrs. Murray Hubbard presided over the first meeting of the citizenship committee of the Atlanta Woman's club on Tuesday afternoon. There was a splendid attendance and much enthusiasm was shown.

Mrs. Rogers Winter's rally call to the women to register at once was accepted as a challenge to patriotism and a positive determination was made to register 100 per cent.

Mr. Hooper Alexander's address on "Elections and Qualifications for Voting" was most instructive. A very interesting round table discussion followed in which his answers were clear and concise.

The November meeting will be devoted to state and city government. Mrs. Charles Goodman is chairman of the department of the work.

Buffet Supper For Bridal Party.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Cleve Symmes, Jr., entertained at buffet supper last night at their home on Forrest avenue in compliment to their sister, Miss Sue Rae Symmes, and Mr. J. J. McCutcheon, whose marriage takes takes place this evening.

The occasion was one of delightful hospitality, assembling the bridal party and out-of-town guests. Pink and white cosenos decorated the house and formed the centerpiece for the table in the dining room, from which sweets were served. A tall cut glass vase was filled with them and crystal candlesticks burned pink candles.

Spring Street School.

The Parent-Teacher association of the Spring Street school will hold its first meeting for the scholastic year 1920-21, in the auditorium of the Spring Street school, at 3 o'clock. Y. M. C. A. Organizing Reducing Class for Matrons.

In response to a request by several matrons of Atlanta to the Young Women's Christian association that a reducing class be organized, Miss Lucy Marvin Adams, Y. W. C. A. physical director, is organizing such a class that has at present an enrollment of eight, with registrations still open for others desiring such a course which is offered for the nominal fee of ten dollars.

The course for normal reducing will cover six weeks. Two sessions of one hour each will be given weekly. The classes will not be open to visitors. Miss Adams will prescribe to the reducing class daily exercise for home work, and a diet that must be adhered to by class members.

The entire course will progress by gradations, and anyone joining the class must enroll for the first lesson. The reducing course is so planned that the loss of weight is gradual, and not followed by weakness. Health is improved—not impaired. In discussing the interest in such a class, Miss Adams states that too little exercise and too heavy a diet cause too much flesh, and that, contrary to public opinion, the stout woman is not the woman of health.

Argentine Club Entertains.

The Argentine club will entertain at their regular informal dance at Segadlo's on Thursday evening, October 14. All members and their friends are cordially invited. Dancing from 9 to 12.

Mrs. Wilson left yesterday for Macon to attend the state convention, U. D. C., where she will be an honor guest.

Piedmont W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the Piedmont W. C. T. U. will be held Friday afternoon, October 15, at 3 o'clock, in the Wesley Memorial church. All members of the W. C. T. U. organizations and friends are cordially invited to attend. This meeting will be conducted by the superintendent of the S. T. I. department. A very interesting program is being arranged, and teachers of the different schools also have a special invitation to attend.

Women Voters Pass Resolutions.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, a resolution was passed urging that all women register within the next two weeks. On Saturday, October 16, at 3 o'clock, there will be a general meeting of the league in the assembly room of the chamber of commerce. As matters of importance will come up for consideration, all members are urged to be present.

Alfred de Musset, his life and works will be the topic of the meeting of the Alliance Francaise, which will take place Thursday at 3:30 o'clock promptly in the assembly hall of the Carnegie library. Stanford, Jr., will say a few words on George Land, his celebrated friend. Monsieur Rollain will read a comedy, "Le Caprice." It has been decided that ten minutes will be devoted to conversation at the beginning of the meeting.

Curling Hair Like This Promotes Its Health

For those whose hair is straight and lank nothing better could be recommended than the silmerine method. This insures a beautiful curliness which is perfectly natural in appearance, and the health of the hair is not affected as where the heated iron is used. A few ounces of liquid silmerine—which can of course be had at any drug store—lasts a long time, so it is quite economical to use. It is pleasant to use, too, being neither sticky nor greasy, and is easily applied with a clean tooth brush. The hair should be moistened the full length before doing it up. The pretty wavy effect in evidence in three hours is surprising to those who try this simple method the first time. The liquid also serves as an excellent dressing, giving the hair a delightful gloss.—(adv.)

SIMPLE APPLICATION THAT DISSOLVES BLACKHEADS

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. To do this just get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition. Any druggist will sell you the calonite powder and about two ounces will be all you will ever need.—(adv.)

Mr. Dougherty Got This Result in October. Plan is Easily Tried.

"I tried Don Sung and the results were far past any expectations. I got 419 eggs in 30 days from 20 hens while moulting. I think this is wonderful, as they hardly laid at all before."—Frank Dougherty, 5940 E. 11th St., Indianapolis.

Mr. Dougherty bought $1 worth of Don Sung in October and wrote this letter in November. Figure his profit on 35 dozen eggs from hens that formerly laid little or nothing.

This may sound too good to be true, but it costs nothing to find out. We'll make you the same offer we made him.

Give your hens Don Sung and watch results for one month. If you don't find that it pays for itself and pays you a good profit besides, simply tell us and your money will be cheerfully refunded.

Don Sung (Chinese for egg-laying) is a scientific tonic and conditioner. It is easily given in the feed, improves the hen's health and makes her stronger and more active. It tones up the egg-laying organs, and gets the eggs, no matter how cold or wet the weather.

You can obtain Don Sung from your druggist or poultry remedy dealer, or send $1.04 (includes war tax) for a package by mail. Burrell-Dugger Co., 214 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Music Study Club Opens Children's Season of Music

The regular season of children's concerts to be held uuder the auspices of the juvenile department of the Atlanta Music Study club will take place Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the annex of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church on Piedmont avenue, when John Powell, the famous Virginia composer-pianist, and Charles Harris, the American tenor, will give a program especially designed for children.

The work of the juvenile department this year will be on a much more ample scale than ever attempted before. It is expected that the membership, which last year reached 550, will be extended to at least 800. It is the ambition of the club to reach as many children in the city with these highly educational programs as possible.

Mr. Powell, who opens the series this afternoon, is already known and loved in the city and especially honored as being the south's greatest composer. He will bring an inspirational message to the young folks of Atlanta, which will have a special significance in view of his own position in southern music.

Mr. Harris, who is one of the best known of native tenors, will give a short program of songs. He is known all over the American continent for the clarity and beauty of his voice and for his exceptional ability to hold his audiences with his sympathetic interpretations.

Admission to the entire series of five children's concerts and to the regular club programs of the department will be $2 this year. Membership cards can be secured at the door. Owing to the large number of children who will secure their cards at the door, it is requested that every one come as much before the opening of the concert as possible, in order to allow time for the cards to be made out.

The Restless Sex

BY ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

"I'm done with love," he said aloud to himself.

The jingle of the telephone bell echoed his words and he walked slowly over to the table and detached the receiver.

"Jim?"

"Is it you, Steve?"

"Yes. Would you like some tea about five?"

"All right. I've had no lunch and I'll be hungry."

"You know, Jim, I'm not going to provide a banquet for you. Why don't you go out and take lunch?"

"I forgot it. I don't feel like work. Shall I come down and talk to you now?"

"I'm going out to take a dancing lesson in a few moments. I'll talk to you while I'm putting on my hat."

He said "All right," took his hat and stick and went downstairs again.

She opened the door for him, offering him her cool, slim hand, then she opened a hat box and lifted from it a hat.

"I believe I'll join the Russian ballet," she said. "I do dance very nicely. You should hear what the ballet master says. And Miss Duncan and Miss St. Denis watched me yesterday, and they were very complimentary and polite."

"Nonsense. It's good exercise, but it would be a dog's life for you to lead, Steve. Where is Helen?"

"Out hunting a model for her Pegasus. She asked me to pose for the mounted figure, but I haven't time. I can fancy myself, in a complete state of nature, scrambling onto some rickety old livery hack—" She threw back her head and laughed, then inspected her new hat, and, facing the studio mirror, pinned it to her chestnut hair.

"Fine. You make all hats look well."

"Such a nice, polite boy! So well brought up! But unfortunately I heard you say the same thing to Helen. . . . Where have you been, Jim? I called you up an hour ago."

"I went to see Grismer," he said, coolly ignoring her perverse and tormenting humor.

"You did? Bless your dear, generous heart!" cried the girl. "Do you know that if it were in me to be sentimental over you, what you . . . start me? Continue to behave like a real man, dear friend, and I'll be head over heels in love before I know it!"

"Why?" he asked, conscious again of her gaily derisive mood and not caring for it.

"Because," she said, "you have acted like a man in calling on Oswold, and not like a spoiled boy. You resented Oswald's marrying me. You have been sullen and suspicious and aloof with him since you came back. I know Oswald better than you do. I know that he has felt your attitude keenly, though he never admitted it even to me.

"He is a man of few friends, admired but not well liked; he is wretchedly poor, fiercely proud, sensitive—"

"What!"

"Did you think he wasn't?" she asked. "He is painfully sensitive; pitiably so. I think women divine it, and it attracts them."

"He hasn't the reputation of being very thin-skinned," remarked Cleland dryly.

"The average man who is sensitive would die to conceal it. You ought to know that, Jim; it's your business to dissect people, isn't it?"

She thrust a second pin through the crown of her hat and adjusted it deftly.

"Anyway," she said, "you are a nice, polite boy to go to see him, and you have made me very happy. Good-bye. I must run—"

"Have you lunched?"

"No, but I'm going to."

"With whom?" he asked incautiously.

"A man."

"Youre usually just going out to lunch or dine with some man," he said sullenly.

"I like men," she said, smiling at him.

"What you probably mean is that you like admiration."

"I do. It's agreeable; it's sanitary; it's soothing. It invigorates one's self-confidence and self-respect. And it doesn't disarrange one's hair and rumple one's gown. Therefore, I prefer the undemonstrative admiration of a man to the indiscreet demonstrations of a boy."

"Do you mean me?" he asked furious.

But she ignored the question.

"Boys are funny," she said, swinging her velvet reticul in circles. "Any girl can upset their equilibrium. All a girl has to do is to look at a boy sideways—the way Lady Button-eyes looked at you yesterday afternoon—"

"What!"

"At the Rochambeau. And you got up and went over and renewed your friendship with her. Helen and I saw you."

"I was merely civil," he said.

"So was she. She fished out a card and wrote on it. I don't know what she wrote."

"She wrote her telephone call. There isn't the slightest chance of my using it."

Stephanie laughed:

"He certainly is the nicest, politest boy in all Manhattan, and sister is very, very proud of him. Good-bye, James—"

RECITAL BY RUFFO CREATING UNUSUAL INTEREST IN SOUTH

The widespread interest which is being taken in the first visit to the south by Titta Ruffo was indicated yesterday afternoon when a party of Birmingham music lovers purchased six season tickets to the all-star concert series by long distance telephone.

The spokesman of the party used the telephone to order seats for the Titta Ruffo recital only, but when he was told that only season tickets were on sale and that the demand would probably exhaust the supply of choice seats before tickets for single concerts would be sold, he conferred with his friends and ordered the seats for the entire season.

"We'll probably come over for most of the concerts," he said, "and if we don't, some of our friends will. Birmingham has no auditorium large enough to make it possible to present the big artists, and we have to go to Atlanta to hear them."

Letters and telegrams received by the Evans-Salter Musical bureau give assurance that the out-of-town attendance will surpass that of previous seasons of the all-star concert series. The largest, of course, will be when Galli-Curci sings, for her engagement is for Thanksgiving night, and the combination of the Tech-Auburn football game and the "new Jenny Lind" will draw hundreds of visitors.

Night School Merged Into Home-Study Department At Draughon's College

Faculty at Draughon's Increased to Eight — Every Member of Faculty College Trained—75. Per Cent of Student Body High School or College Graduates. Touch Typewriting Taught by Music Under Special Teacher.

Draughon's has found that it is more satisfactory for those who cannot attend day school to take home-study course rather than attend night school. The home-study text-books and lessons sheets represent over thirty years' study and preparation by Jno. F. Draughon, the author, and there is no doubt about one's being able to understand and learn the work with a reasonable amount of application. There are now over 10,000 people taking the Draughon Training at home throughout the United States, many of whom are right here in Atlanta, and many in foreign countries.

A new feature at Draughon's is the teaching of Touch Typewriting by Music. This is a long step forward for the business school, but it has not only proved to be immensely popular with the students, but it is a complete success and is as far in advance of the old "hunt-and-peck" method as the auto is ahead of the one-horse shay. With the addition of 44 brand-new Underwood typewriters, it would be difficult to find a more complete department anywhere. In fact, all the departments are bountifully supplied with modern equipment, and are supervised by experienced teachers, every one of whom is college bred, not a "Jack-of-all-trades" in the bunch.

Taking these things into consideration, and also the fact that 75 per cent of the student body are either graduates from high school or literary college, one can readily see what a desirable atmosphere is created in all departments of the work, and what it means for a young man or woman to pass through a school where success is the paramount idea.

Standing By Home Folks

Somehow or other there's always a feeling of pride in being able to boast about the things your home folks do—the things your home folks have—the things your home folks make.

Home folks doesn't necessarily mean kinsfolk, though it always gives one pride to say good things of them. Home folks has a broader meaning. It means the folks who live around you—in your neighborhood—in your section. It means your friends and neighbors—and even strangers to you, if they live as good citizens in your section.

Well, standing by—saying nice things about—encouraging—patronizing home folks is one of the things every loyal citizen ought to do.

There's lots of good home people engaged in manufacturing products all about us. They employ thousands of home people. They made good products. They ask no more for them than similar goods made in foreign fields.

Isn't it a good idea—isn't it good policy—to help and encourage them with your patronage?

Judge Bell Scores Maternity Ward Department at Hospital in Sending "Mixed" Baby Case to Jury.

The permanent custody of Louise Madeline, the principal in the mixed baby case, which has been aired in court for the past three days, will be determined by a jury, according to an amenment to the original habeas corpus writ which (Judge George L. Bell, of the Fulton superior court granted Tuesday morning.

In taking this step Judge Bell termed the system of handling newborn babies at the Grady hospital as "rotten." He allowed the child to remain with Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Pittman until the jury decides the case.

The case, which was brought by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Garner to obtain custody of Louise Madeline, whom both Mrs. Pittman and Mrs. Garner claim as their child, is the result of an alleged exchange of babies at Grady hospital, where both women were patients.

Attacks the System.

In attacking the system at the hospital, Judge Bell made it clear that he was not criticising the institution as such nor the officials, but the system or lack of system there whereby exchanges are possible, which bring heartrending scenes such as the case which the judge heard this week.

In setting the date for trial Judge Bell ordered the case to be tried in his own division. "I have no desire to shift responsibility of the case onto the shoulders of some one else," he said.

Attorney James W. Austin, of counsel for the Pittmans, announced that he would appeal the case on the ground that he had not been served properly with the amended petition and on the second ground that the remarks of the court were prejudicial to the cause of his clients. He further objected to the early date of the new trial.

Judge Bell stated that he fixed an early date because he thought that it was the desire of both sides to get the case settled. Attorney Austin disagreed with Judge Bell as to the judgment of the court that the case was one for a jury to decide. He took the view that the question of Louise Madeline's parentage was not one of fact and therefore could be decided by a judge.

Will Hold Conference.

A conference will be held by Judge Bell and Attorneys Austin and Arnaud to determine whether the trial shall be held on November 1, as planned, or whether the court of appeals shall be given an opportunity to say whether the case should be tried before a jury.

In speaking of Grady hospital, Judge Bell said:

"Grady hospital is a great institution. Atlanta is proud of it and it deserves the support and encouragement of our people, but I want to say I have never heard of such a vicious and rotten system in my life as is conducted in Grady hospital's maternity ward. Time and time again, since I have been on the bench I have heard mothers tell of the birth of children and have heard them declare that days and weeks have passed before their babies were tagged.

"One woman actually testified in this court that she gave birth to a boy and the hospital presented her with a girl the next day. And then the baby wasn't tagged until a week after its birth.

"Unless such practice as this is stopped it would be better to put the torch to the maternity ward and commit it to the sacred flames rather than have mothers and fathers tortured like they have been in flames.

"There must be some way to stop this heartrending occurrence as to the swapping of babies. There is always a cloud over the parentage of any baby who is involved in an alleged exchange."

Judge Bell thanked the contesting parents for their attitude and conduct during the trial. He said that they had taken a sane, sensible view of the matter and had tried in an orderly way to determine the facts in the case.

FARMERS CALL FOR END OF DEFLATION

about to change the officers," said Senator Smith.

Hold Cotton, Urges Hoke Smith.

Senator Hoke Smith declared that not a bushel of wheat nor a pound of cotton or wool should be placed on the market by any farmer until the market is such as to afford them a proper return for their labor. The international bankers were blamed for much of the trouble that the farmers are at present experiencing.

It is understood that the president will call the cabinet together for the purpose of hearing the farmer representatives. When this will be done is not known, but it is believed that the meeting with the cabinet will occur some time tomorrow.

Spokesmen representing all branches of agriculture have been selected to place the case before the cabinet, and it appears to be certain that such an impression will be made as to induce the government to take steps necessary to relieve the situation.

J. J. Brown, of Atlanta, chairman of the general committee which is formulating the statement to go forth to the country, said he had strong hopes that the president and his cabinet would be convinced that something should be done and done quickly.

"At any rate," said Mr. Brown, "we are going to stay here until we get something substantial in the way of a remedy. We must stop the downward tendency of prices for farm products and we must stop night riding in the south and the application of the torch by irresponsible but madly aroused farmers."

Fears the Torch.

J. S. Wanamaker, president of the Southern Cotton association, said he feared that if something was not done the torch would be applied with greater energy and with more destructive force. He declared that bolshsevism had crossed the Atlantic and was fastening its talons on the American continent. He said, however, that the democratic party was not responsible for these conditions. They resulted from an apparent determination on the part of speculators to make a dollar buy twice as much of farm products as in previous times.

"This convention is not here in the interest of cotton alone," said Mr. Wanamaker. "All agricultural interests are adversely affected by a campaign of publicity, the purpose of which is to compel the farmer to part with his products at ruinous prices."

It was stated by a delegate from Kansas that the hog crop was only 40 per cent normal, while cattle production had fallen off one-third Although beef on the hoof is selling at 5 or 6 cents a pound the people of Washington continue to pay 60 cents for porterhouse steak.

Prices Below Costs

Committees representing all groups of farm production, including live stock, reported tonight that in every instance the deflations had reached points where market prices were far below costs of production, although the consumer was thus far benefiting but little, if any by these forced drops in farm commodities. In the meantime the federal trade board and the department of justice are being called upon to bring about an equalization of prices without delay.

The spirit of the conference, in which every branch of production is represented, backed solidly by the congressional delegation headed by Senator Overman, of North Carolina, is to fix minimum prices on all raw farm products on the open market and to cease production until these prices are reached unless the federal reserve system will facilitate credits to carry the crops over for favorable markets. That means an American producers' strike and that is the live feature of this meeting.

COTTON'S PLIGHT PUT UP TO WILSON

adoption of the resolution proposing to take the problem to the president personally, repeatedly denounced the deflation policy of Secretary Houston. Farmers stood to lose billions unless the government acted to check the fall of prices, they declared, adding that in many cases market prices were now below the actual cost of production. The result would be greatly decreased yields next year, they said, if means to remedy the situation were not found.

A charge by former Senator Marion Butler, of North Carolina, that there was a "conspiracy" of officials to force down the price of agricultural products, brought a protest from John J. McSwain, of South Carolina. "I cannot believe one of them capable of conspiring to rob his fellow-man," said Mr. McSwain. "I believe, however, they made an error of judgment. Let's reason with them and see where they have made a mistake."

Agricultural Commissioner J. J. Brown, of Georgia, and Senator E. D. Smith, of South Carolina, also protested against a statement by Mr. Butler that the country was about to face a panic as a result of the deflation policy. Senator Smith said there was a "crisis, but no panic."

A general commission, composed of representatives of each agricultural organization attending, was named to draw up a statement to the public presenting the plight of the growers in a declaration of principles to be adopted by the convention.

Sectional committees were named to consider the situation relating to their products and to suggest means which, in their judgment, would remedy them. All resolutions dealing with any product went to that sectional committee. A resolution calling for the pooling of all low-grade cotton in each state and the forming of a selling commission to handle sale of the staple for export to Europe went to the special committee on cotton.

No Authority for Contraction.

Senator Smith told the delegates to ascertain their legal rights under the federal reserve system, demand them, "and then get officers who will administer the law. He declared that farmers under the federal reserve act had the right to have their paper discounted.

The senator said he knew of no authority for the contraction of credits.

Declaring that the New York Regional bank had made 200 per cent profit when the law allowed it only 6 per cent, Senator Smith said "they are robbing us in interest to pay taxes."

He said the convention should demand a low rate of interest on gilt-edge farming interests paper, not exceeding 1 per cent on paper, which the Regional bank discounts for the member banks.

"Just let this situation continue," said the senator, "and then let the wheat men, the cotton men and the cattle men say 'here is our price! We demand our rights and we will not loosen up one pound of meat, wheat or cotton until we get them.'"

A suggestion by J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton association, that a committee be appointed to urge upon congress the creation of a revolving fund of one billion dollars to be used in the interest of the producer and consumer for the economic handling and marketing of the American crops was not acted upon, after Ben L. Marsh, of the Farmers' National council, protested against the motion, saying no one body could be said to represent all the American farmers.

Opposed to Strike of Farmers.

Mr. Marsh declared he was opposed to a strike of farmers, which, he said, was suggested by Senator Smith. He declared also that "everybody knows there is no panic. Let us not be bolsheviks." He said Senator Smith, in voting for the Esch-Cummins railroad bill, had voted to make a strike by labor a felony.

John Trumbull, of the Kansas Farmers' union, said the secretaries of agriculture of Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri at a meeting in Kansas City had figured the cost of this year's wheat crop at above $21 per acre. The cost to the tenant farmers, he said, was placed at $2.77 a bushel. He thought $3 a bushel would just pay the cost of labor and expense of growing the crop, not counting anything for fertilizer and depreciation of land. Wheat was selling today at from $1.50 to $1.65 a bushel, he said.

Dr. W. J. Spillman, former chief of the bureau of farm marketing, charged that the secretary of the treasury and the federal reserve board were in a drive to force down the price of wheat. "Those gentlemen are using authority placed in their hands for the purpose of manipulating the market," he asserted.

Alfred Tumlin, of Cave Springs, Ga., said not a half crop of cotton would be produced in his section next year. "The whole trouble," he said, "is in Washington." Declaring he had never known such a state of affairs in his life, he told the convention that "there are night riders in Georgia and day riders in Washington."

Held Up by Conspiracy.

Mr. Butler estimated the cost of raising tobacco in North Carolina at from 27 to 32 cents a pound. "We are held up by a conspiracy," he charged, declaring that the various statements recently by federal reserve board officials and the secretary of the treasury on prices had "beared" the market.

Attending today's meeting were representatives of the American Cotton association, National Grange, National Board of Farm Management, the live stock industry, wheat growers, tobacco growers, dairymen, sheep raisers, several of the state commissioners of agriculture and representatives of state marketing bureaus.

BANKS TO FINANCE PACIFIC SLOPE COTTON.

Los Angeles, Cal., October 12.—All the banks of Los Angeles have joined in an arrangement to finance the cotton crops of California, Arizona and Nex Mexico to the extent of $2,500,000, according to an announcement today by J. Dabney, vice president of the First National bank.

The Los Angeles banks will advance to banks in cotton growing localities, sums up to 20 cents a pound on Pima or long staple cotton, and 8 cents a pound on short staple stock to cover picking, ginning, baling, warehouse and insurance expense.

GRAIN DEALERS HIT AT RADICAL FARMERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., October 12.—Efforts of radical farmers' organizations to control prices by creating co-operative associations were scored at today's session of the Grain Dealers' National associaation in the report of the legislative committee. The report adds the radical organizations were seeking to disregard the laws of world supply and demand. It urged an active campaign to combat unrest among farmers and promotion of a fair recognition of the dignity and importance of agriculture as a cure for such unrest.

RESTRICTION URGED IN COTTON ACREAGE.

Jackson, Miss., October 12.—Farmers, business men and cotton producers met here today and adopted strong resolutions urging the reduction of cotton acreage for the next crop, the holding of certain percentages of the present crop off the market and a general holding of the present stocks for better prices.

W. P. G. Harding, governor of the federal reserve board, sent a communication to the meeting, assuring it of co-operation of the federal reserve banks in the financing of cotton.

A telegram from Sunflower county, Mississippi, read to the meeting, announced the closing of gins in that part of the state until cotton reaches a better price. Theodore V. Wentzel, of Natchez, declared that in the Carolinas cotton mills in their efforts to hold down prices are borrowing cotton from each other, rather than buying the new crop, so as to make the next report show a light spinners' taking.

SELMA BANKERS TO ASSIST FARMERS.

Selma, Ala., October 12.—Responding to a committee from the Dallas county branch of the American Cotton association, bankers of this city today pledged themselves to give every assistance possible to cotton farmers of the county, and to advance from $60 to $80 per bale on the 1920 crop, where such cotton was stored and properly insured in bonded warehouses.

LOW GRADE COTTON TO BE EXPORTED.

Abilene, Texas, October 12.—A committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce today decided upon a plan whereby approximately 15,000 bales of low grade cotton in the hands of west Texas farmers will be shipped to Europe for market. The cotton is to be pooled and prepared for shipment by a local cotton firm with European connections. The cotton will be stored in Europe should there be no ready market.

DEMOCRATS OF GEORGIA DETERMINED TO EXCEED

four years of disadvantages awaiting the south, it is stated.

Don't Want "Slush" Fund.

National leaders of the democratic party are not asking for an enormous campaign fund, but an amount sufficient to legitimately combat the republican "slush" fund is absolutely necessary. The south owes all that it is today to democratic administrations of the present and past, and with the opportunity to show our appreciation by contributing to the organization's fund, it is as little as any loyal democrat can do in giving the largest possible amount.

All three editors of Atlanta newspapers have united in their efforts to promote the campaign. Every democratic paper in the state is behind the movement, following an appeal sent out by Hal M. Stanley, corresponding secretary of the Georgia Press association. Chairman Haden has appointed chairmen in each county, and with the appeal for additional funds being sent out by the national committee, everything is in readiness to make the drive in Georgia a great success.

Captain James W. English, Confederate veteran and chairman of the board of the Fourth National bank, Tuesday contributed $250 to the fund, and his example is expected to be followed by hundreds of other veterans throughout Georgia. Sports — Georges Carpentier Wins by Knockout

Edited By Cliff Wheatley

Levinsky Lasts Four Rounds Against Punches of Georges, But Is Finally Beaten Down

Jersey, City, N. J., October 12.—Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight champion, knocked out Battling Levinsky, holder of the American light-heavyweight title, in the fourth round of a scheduled 12-round bout. Carpentier, who also holds the light-heavyweight championship title of Europe, thus becomes the world's titleholder in that division.

Early in 1918 Jack Dempsey, who won the world's heavyweight championship, knocked out Levinsky in three rounds at Philadelphia. Tonight Carpentier failed to equal Dempsey's time in finishing Levinsky, but he is the only one outside of Dempsey who has knocked out Levinsky since the latter became prominent as a fighter.

By his victory over Levinsky, Carpentier has earned the right to meet Dempsey for the world's championship.

Both in Shape.

Levinsky was in splendid condition and so was Carpentier. From the middle of the first round when the Frenchman began to cut loose the outcome was inevitable. His blows were well delivered and effective, while Levinsky's returns were too light to do damage. Twice in the second round Carpentier sent Levinsky to the floor with hard right crosses. During the third session Carpentier slowed up a bit and seemed undecided as to what his next move should be. When he did start after his man, however, he used both fists powerfully and Levinsky, who always was credited with being able to take punishment, was visibly weakening.

In the final round Carpentier simply battered Levinsky into submission and when the battler fell almost through the ropes in a neutral corner, he was unable to get up, while Referee Ertle counted him out.

Badly Punished.

Carpentier, with his manager and seconds, entered the ring at 9:55 and received a welcome of hearty cheers, to which he responded by gracefully bowing several times.

Levinsky followed two minutes later and then the men were formally introduced. Announcer Humphries stated they were to fight twelve rounds for the light-heavyweight championship of the world. A corps of photographers then began snapping pictures of the men as they stood together in a neutral corner of the ring.

Carpentier's weight was announced as 170 1-2 pounds and Levinsky's at 175. Harry Ertle, of Jersey City, was introduced as referee for the main bout.

Weather conditions were conducive to the comfort of the spectators, many of whom, however, took the precaution of bringing overcoats or wraps to protect them through a lengthy sitting in the open air.

When the first of the preliminary bouts was called every seat in the ball park was occupied and a fringe of humanity lined the boundaries of the outfield.

In the second bout Frankie Burns, the veteran Jersey City featherweight, outfought and severely punished Patsy Johnson, of Trenton, in every one of the six rounds.

Lewis Wins.

Marcel Thomas, the French welterweight champion, who trained with Carpentier, and Ted ("Kid") Lewis, who claims to hold the British title, were the principals in the six-round semi-final. The weights were announced as 147 for Lewis and 149 1-2 for Thomas. Thomas used a clever left hook effectively, but was outclassed. Lewis caught him off balance with a hard left and almost put the Frenchman through the ropes as the gong sounded for the end of the second round. In the third and fourth stiff right swings to the face staggered Thomas, who fought back pluckily. Lewis kept pounding him the last two rounds and Thomas was bleeding from the nose and mouth at the end of the sixth round. It was Lewis' fight nearly all the way.

SECOND ROUND—They exchanged body blows. Carpentier stood off and motioned Levinsky to come in. Carpentier sent rights and lefts to face. Then he drove his right to head and followed with left and right to the jaw, sending Levinsky down in his corner for a count of eight.

ROUND THREE—Carpentier rushed and landed his right to head. Levinsky clinched. Carpentier missed right and left or the head. Levinsky jabbed three lefts to face, and Carpentier swung right to head. Carpentier hooked left to face and slowed up a bit, while Levinsky kept him off with light lefts. Carpentier was waiting for an opening when the bell rang. Carpentier's round.

ROUND FOUR—Both fiddled for thirty seconds. Then Carpentier drove Levinsky across the ring, landing lefts and rights at will, finally sending Levinsky down in a corner for the full count. Levinsky was not unconscious, but he was tangled up in a corner on the ropes while he was counted out. Time of round, 1:07.

Some Statistics.

"I am very pleased," said Francois des Camp, manager of Georges Carpentier, after the fight.

"Carpentier was really in bad condition. He caught a severe cold on Saturday morning. He then weighed 174 pounds. He lost 4 pounds from that time utnil tonight. He was in a very weak condition, otherwise, I am sure he would have knocked out Levinsky in the second round. I cannot talk about a match with Jack Dempsey now. My contract with Charles B. Cochran, of England, prohibits my taking any action looking towards a match with Dempsey until after Deceber 31."

"After this experience, I am convinced that Carpentier can knock out Dempsey almost as easily as he knocked out Pat," said Dan Morgan, hanager of Levinsky, after the fight.

"He is such a natural fighter with such a wonderful punch that he doesn't have to box. He can hit when he leads and he can hit when the other fellow leads. He is a tiger. I tell you those terrible punches to the jaw will knock out Jack Dempsey. He will knock him cold."

MARQUARD THROUGH.

Cleveland, October 12.—President Charles Ebbets, of the Brooklyn National league club, tonight said that "Rube" Marquard, pitcher, who was fined one dollar and costs today for violating the exhibition ticket ordinance, would never play with Brooklyn again.

"I'm through with him absolutely," said Mr. Ebbets. "He hasn't been released, however, and if anyone else wants him they can have him. But Marquard will never again put on a Brooklyn uniform."

TORNADO IS READY FOR VOLS

BY WALLACE GEORGE.

Just three little days now and the Golden Tornado of 1920 makes its initial bow on foreign soil, meeting the Vanderbilt eleven in their own home town of Nashville. Taking on the Commodores in a football scarp is no easy job. In fact, it is 50 or 100 per cent harder than anything the Jackets have attempted so far this season.

But the Yellow Jackets are prepared to hold their own in Vandy's little front yard, or anybody else's for that matter, even though they are pitted this time against one of the strongest contenders for the S. I. A. A. championship this year. The Vanderbilt team has the advantage of playing at home, but as things line up on the horizon just now, we cannot see that they have an edge on Tech in any other way.

Tech, to begin with, has a team of veterans, their regular eleven presenting but two new faces. These two are the guardians of the outer wings, but from the way they have been playing in the first games of the season, there is little room for worry about them holding their own. Big Bill Ratterman, on right end, has been playing football all his twenty-three or four summers and from the way he snagged a couple of passes last Saturday in the Davidson game, he'll be a mighty valuable man for Tech's aerial offensive. John Staton, over at the left side of things, takes after his brother, Al, when it comes to playing football and certainly knows the knack of spilling the interference in order to snag the runner.

All Veterans.

The rest of the team are veterans of bygone battles. Of these nine, all but one is a letter man of last year, and Oscar Davis, the ninth regular, would be sporting a big white "T" himself had not fate and injuries twice conspired to hold him back. This year, though, Oscar looked the line over and found a vacancy in next to Daddy Amis and at once decided he could fill the bill. Accordingly, he proceeded to put out some football par excellence and by the time Tech began her regular schedule, he was in the line-up at right guard.

But the whole secret of the Tech successes cannot be found by studying the eleven men that go to compose the first varsity team. Behind them are a number of men who can fill their places and give 100 per cent satisfaction. Take the position of center, for instance. On any other southern college team Charlie Johnson would be a regular center, but here at Tech he must yield the palm to the old reliable, Dad Amis.

The backfield is just as well reinforced as is the line and such men as Dewey Scarboro and Bill Glaver are hard to beat at ground gainers. Frank Ferst has rounded into form now, too, and will be able to take on a full share of the work next Saturday if need be. Frank is a regular player, take it from us, and had he not hurt his shoulder earlier in the season, some one of the big four in the backfield might have been relegated to the next four.

Squad in Shape.

The whole varsity squad came through the combat with the Davidson Wildcats without a blemish and has been performing on Grant field this week in great style. Shorty Doyal, who has earned his letter the past two years playing in at tackle and guard, is in tip-top condition now and is playing on the second varsity team. Shorty got in the game last Saturday at end, a new position for him, playing part of the last period. Shorty is tall, rangy and fast, and is a deadly tackler and certainly can fill the bill there if either John Staton or Ratterman need assistance or relief.

A scrimmage was held Tuesday afternoon between a part of the varsity squad and the reserves of Kid Clay. This held the center of attraction most of the evening, but off on the side the regular eleven ran at signal practice. It was drill, drill, drill for them, on the many shift and pass formations, and they really had just as hard a time of it as did the men that were scrimmaging.

This afternoon the varsity will probably be sent into scrimmage against the scrubs or the freshman team of George Griffin. Either one will furnish enough entertainment for the varsity to make it thoroughly interesting. This may be the last appearance of the varsity in action this week for the time for the trip to Vandy is surprisingly near.

Indians Win Championship Of World When Covaleskie Pitches Them to Victory

Cleveland, Ohio, October 12.—Baseball champions of the world! The Cleveland American league club won that supreme title here this afternoon when the Indians defeated the Brooklyn Nationals in the seventh and deciding game of the 1920 series by a score of 3 to 0. Tonight Cleveland is celebrating in a manner adequately in keeping with the honor and it is doubtful if a government proclamation announcing the selection of this city as the future capital of the United States would create a ripple of interest among the frenzied fans.

The shut out victory was chiefly engineer by Stanley Coveleskie, the spitball hurler of the local team, who has proved to be a pitcher of remarkable skill and endurance during the series. Backed by an air-tight defense on the part of his team mates at the critical moments of the game, the Shamokin, Pa., coal miner, let the Robins down with five hits. Only two Brooklyn players reached second base during their nine sessions at bat and but five of the invaders were left on the bases all told.

Enters Hall of Fame.

Coveleskie's feat in winning three of the five games necessary to clinch the championship for Cleveland will go down as one of the outstanding features of world's series history and one of the most prominent and noteworthy factors in a struggle which has furnished more startling incidents than any similar series in years. The Brooklyn batters accumulated only two runs off the moistened slants of Covey, as he is affectionately called here, in the twenty-seven innings in which he officiated on the hurling mound. He let the Robins down with one run in the first game at Brooklyn on October 5, allowed them a second tally on Saturday and shut them out today. It is doubtful if a more masterly exhibition of pitching has been flashed before the fans in any world's series since 1905, when Christy Mathewson, then at the zenith of his twirling career with the New York Giants, shut out the Philadelphia Athletic in three games.

Great as must be the credit accorded Coveleskie for his remarkable feat in coming back after but two days of rest and pitching his best game of the series, the general offensive and defensive work of the other members of the Cleveland club cannot be dimmed by the individual glory of their star boxman. The Indians, as a team, grew more impressive as the series progressed and their feat in winning four straight games from Brooklyn after getting away to an indifferent start stamps the club as one deserving of all the support and enthusiasm which their efforts have evoked in this section.

Deserve Title.

In shutting out the Nationals in the final clash this afternoon the Indians, led by Manager Tris Speaker, rose to playing heights which bore out the complete confidence of the club backers and fans in their ability to prove their right to wear the baseball crown of the universe. They reached the spitters of Burleigh Grimes, the National league star deliverer of this type of pitching, for seven solid hits, clinched the game before the halfway mark, as it ultimately proved, and topped the play with several pieces of baseball strategy that demonstrated the possession of mental alertness which marks the difference between a keen-thinking and a mechanical-playing baseball club.

That these outstanding features were appreciated by the Cleveland followers of the club and the middle western section of the country generally has been apparent since the day the team returned from Brooklyn. But today the demonstration which marked the final put out of Myers and clinched the championship for the Indians surpassed any similar scene in several seasons. Thousands of men, boys and women poured out of the bleachers and stands and simply engulfed the victorious players like a human avalanche. It was a continuous battle for the members of the team in their march toward the dugout, each step being taken slowly, with scores of fans endeavoring to shake their hands or pat them on the back.

The Ovation.

Tris Speaker, sensing the coming outburst of enthusiasm, made a dash from centerfield toward the grandstand, where his mother and other relatives occupied a lower box. His progress was slow, but once he reached the rail he vaulted over the iron front and into his mother's arms like a small schoolboy. The scene was so unusual that for a moment there was a complete cessation of the cheering, which, however, broke out with renewed vigor when Mrs. Speaker hugged, patted and kissed her gray-haired son and the latter responded in a manner which indicated that he regarded his mother's approval and petting far above any other rewards that might come to him as a result of the victory of his team in winning the greatest honor that can come to a professional baseball player.

When Speaker finally left his mother's side and started for the clubhouse he was fairly besieged by requests to shake hands and autograph programs and photographs. When he finally disappeared into the passageway of dressing quarters, the crowds swept back to Mrs. Speaker, where they cheered and demanded a speech from the mother of the popular player-manager. Mrs. Speaker met the demands of the fans by waving her hand, and was soon joined by Owner James C. Dunn, of the club, who addressed the throng for her. During the height of the demonstration Charles Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn club, crossed the field and congratulated the executive of the winning team. Then the throngs slowly dispersed to discuss at their leisure the successful climax of Cleveland's forty-year battle for a major league pennant and a world's series banner.

That the citizens of Cleveland propose to properly honor the occasion was shown by a conference which took place between Mayor W. S. Fitzgerald and prominent business men of the city almost before the final cheers had died away. It was tentatively decided to hold a public reception and welcome for the players of the team in the public square of the city within the next day or two, at which the populace will be invited to show in a collective and comprehensive manner their appreciation of the honors which the players of the team have brought to Cleveland. If this takes the preliminary trend shown in rewarding the stars of the series to date, it is quite likely that every member of the club will have automobiles, watches, medals and other souvenirs of their conquest sufficient to fill several storehouses before the fans permit them to retire to a well earned season of inactivity.

Closing Act.

The closing act of the superbaseball drama of the season was staged under weather conditions which were ideal and fully in keeping with the importance of the occasion. A sun of midsummer strength shown down on the fans form a cloudless sky with an intensity which made it almost imperative to remove coats and vests even in the shaded sections of the grandstands. Every seat and foot of standing room inside the park was crowded to utmost capacity long before the teams began their battle, while trees, housetops, telegraph poles and towering advertising signs overlooking the park were black with men and boys who clung to precarious perches throughout the entire one hour and fifty-five minutes of action.

After the game it was announced by the national commission that the paid attendance had been 27,525 and the gate receipts $83,900. It wa sthe largest attendance and receipts of any of the seven games.

That those who witnessed the closing contest saw a game of usual standard is shown by the box score, but there were features which thrilled the thousands which cannot be illuminated by the cold figures of either the box score or summary. Despite the two errors charged to Shortstop Sewell, he made two plays which went far to eliminate the youngster's miscues. In the fifth inning he stopped Miller's smash back of second base while on the dead run and got the batter with a fine throw to first. In the same inning Coveleskie was almost knocked down by a line drive from Grimes' bat, but chased the ball half way to third and got his man at first. In Cleveland's half of the fifth, Right Fielder Griffith made a thrilling try for Speaker's triple which scored Jamieson. After a long sprint he got his finger tips on the ball just as he crashed into the stand, but could not hold the hard hit ball.

Kilduff Applauded.

Second Baseman Kilduff came in for a great round of applause in the second when he came in on the grass on a full sprint and scooped up Smith's bounder which had glared Grimes' head by several feet and while clear off balance whipped the ball to Konetchy for the out.

Cleveland put across the first run of the game in the fourth inning. After E. Smith had grouded out, Gardner beat out a hit past Kilduff and went to third on a hit-and-run play when W. Johnston singled to right. Sewell filed out and Johnston followed with a delayed steal. The ball was slippery and when Grimes threw to second after taking Miller's quick return the ball went wild and Gardner scored.

The final run of the series came in the "lucky seventh." O'Neill started the inning with a double to left center, but the plucky little backstop was run down when Coveleskie grounded to Grimes. Coveleskie, however, managed to take second, while O'Neill was being retired, and he romped home when Jamieson drove the ball into right field for two bases.

It had been planned to send Rube Marquard against the Indians in an attempt to check the winning streak of Speaker's men, but, owing to the court action of this morning in which the pitcher was charged with violating the exhibition ticket ordinance and fined one dollar and costs, Manager Robinson switched to Grimes in a last forlorn hope.

Pitching Records.

Analysis of the pitching records in the final world's series game indicates that the superior control of Coveleskie was responsible for his victory today, just as it was in the previous two games he won. The Cleveland hurler kept putting the ball over the plate and Brooklyn batters were forced to hit his first offerings.

Coveleskie pitched only ninety times in nine innings, while Grimes and Mamaux, the Brooklyn twirlers, were forced to throw 155 times. Only 21 of Coveleskie's throws were called balls, 25 were strikes, eight foul strikes and three fouls. He retires 12 men on flies and 16 sent out easy grounders. Five hits were made by Brooklyn. Coveleskie pitched only four times in the fourth inning.

The two Brooklyn pitchers sent over more strikes than Covey, but they also threw many more balls. Together in eight innings they pitched 51 balls, 35 strikes, 14 foul strikes, seven fouls, 11 out on flies, 10 on rollers and allowed seven hits.

Grimes' record for seven innings was 47 balls, 31 strikes, 12 foul strikes, four fouls, nine men out on flies and 10 out on grounders, and seven hits. Mamaux threw four balls, four strikes, two foul strikes, three fouls, retired two men on flies, none on grounders and allowed no hits. He fanned one.

Details of Play.

FIRST INNING—Olson popped to Gardner, hitting the first ball pitched. Sheehan fell down swinging at the ball and the crowd laughed. Sheehan flied to Jamieson, who came in fast to make the catch. Johnston took Griffith's grounder and tossed to Coveleskie, who failed to touch the bag. It was an error for Coveleskie under the rule. Wheat sent a high fly to Wambsganss. No runs, no hits, one error.

Jamieson went out to first to Konetchy, unassisted. Wambsgnass flied out to Wheat. Speaker popped out to Sheehan. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SECOND INNING—Sewell threw out Myers at first. Gardner threw out Konetchy at first. Kilduff went out at first, Sewell to Johnston. Sewell made a nice stop and a pretty throw. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Kilduff threw out Smith at first on a pretty play, taking the ball behind the box and making a snappy throw. Sheehan took Gardner's grounder and threw over Konetchy's head. Gardner held first while the Clevelanders claimed that he was entitled to go to second on the overthrow. Umpire O'Day allowed the claim and Gardner walked down to second. Johnston walked. Sewell lined out to Griffith. Gardner held second. Kilduff threw out O'Neill at first. No runs; no hits; one error.

THIRD INNING—Miller fanned. His third strike was a drop ball which he failed to go after. Grimes got a Texas leaguer back of shortstop. Sewell mussed up Olson's grounder and it went for an error. Sheehan's grounder hit Olson on the leg and Olson was declared out. Sheehan is credited with a hit and Grimes was sent back to second base. Griffith flied out to Smith. No runs; two hits; one error.

PRAISE FOR INDIANS.

Cleveland, Ohio, October 12.—"Cleveland ras a wonderful ball club, and Tris Speaker and his men certainly deserve the splendid support they have received from the city," Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said tonight after his club had lost the seventh and deciding contest in the world's series to the Cleveland Indians.

"It was a well fought and honestly played series. We did our best but we couldn't hit Cleveland pitching. That's about all there is to say."

Manager Robinson also took the opportunity to deny rumors that he would manage the New York American league club next season.

"The owners of the Yankees aren't negotiating with me and I'm not negotiating with them," he said. "Reports that I am going to change teams are foolish and untrue. I expect to be right back in the National league fight next season, piloting Brooklyn to another pennant."

Miss Stirling Breaks Record In Qualifying for Berthellyn Golf Tourney at Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Pa., October 12.—(Special.)—Miss leaA Stirlingx, of Atlanta, Ga., three times national gol champion, won the qualifying round of the Berthellyn golf tournament at the Huntingdon Valley Country club with a fine card of 81, the lowest score ever made on that course by a woman and one of the lowest ever made in any women's tournament. Strangely enough, when the other blue ribbon event, the Lynnewood hall cup tournament, was played over the same course last June, Ham Gardner, of Buffalo, scored, a record for the course with a 69. On five of the holes special women's tees were used today, otherwise the drives were made from the men's tees.

Miss Stirling had three birdies, one on the fourth, tenth and fourteenth. She had pars on seven holes. On the fourth, which is a par five hole, she drove, and with a brassie and iron was on the green, dropping a fair-sized putt. On the tenth she laid her iron dead and holed out, while on the fourteenth she ran down a long side hill putt for a two. Her card was particularly fine as there was a heavy shower before the play started, which slowed down the course considerably.

Steady Golf.

It was steady rather than brilliant golf that gave Miss Stirling her record score of 81, though a birdie at the difficult tenth and a birdie 2 at the "punch bowl" fourteenth helped.

Her Card:

Out .....565 455 435—42
In .....347 424 564—39—81

When the present title-holder teed up her ball for her first drive there was a rabbit's foot hanging from a long piece of silk around her neck. The charm swung in the breeze as she addressed the little white pill and showed prominently against her blue coat suit. Miss Stirling also wore an alpine hat.

Miss Stirling announced, after winning the national tournament at Cleveland last week, that she would go to England next year for a try at the crown now worn by Miss Cecil Leitch, and practically all the sharps who have seen her play declare she has an excellent chance of equaling the unique record hung up by Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Pittsburg, in 1909. That year Mrs. Hurd won the British, Canadian and American championships within a [illegible]

Ten of the thirty-two women who qualified for the national championship made the first flight. In addition to Miss Stirling, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, 1915 champion, Mrs. Quentin Feltner, a former Metropolitan champion; Mrs. W. A. Gavin, national finalist last year; Mrs. H. A. Jackson, twice a national champion; Mrs. Caleb F. Fox and Mrs. Ronald H. Barlor, former national finalists, and Miss Marion Hollins, former Metropolitan champion, were among those who qualified.

Mrs. Vanderbeck and Mrs. Feltner tied for second place with 87. Mrs. Fred Letts, the western woman champion, and Mrs. J. W. Turnbull, both of whom qualified for the national championship, failed to make the first flight, as did Mrs. Thurston Wright, of Pittsburg.

Man o' War, the greatest three-year-old of the year, galloped home with the equine honors of 1920 at the Kenilworth Jockey club track this afternoon, a full eight lengths in front of Sir Barton, the great four-year-old from Commander J. K. L. Ross' stables. The time was 2:03, more than a full second faster than the old Canadian record for the distance.

Samuel D. Riddle, of Philadelphia, owner of the victor, is the richer tonight by the purse of $75,000 and a gold cup valued at $5,000.

The race was over a course of a mile and a quarter at weight for age, the winner carrying 120 pounds to the loser's 126. A two dollar ticket on the winner paid $2.10.

Between 29,000 and 30,000 persons paid to see the two great horses race, the attendance figures and gate receipts setting a new high mark in the history of Canadian racing, according to Jockey club officials.

The time, 2:03 flat, was more than one second slower than the record of both horses. Sir Barton has a mark of 2:01 4-5, which was later tied by Man o' War. The slow time was partly due to the fact that the victor was never in danger from the time he took the lead at the first sixteenth pole.

Barton Drew Rail.

Sir Barton drew the rail and was away with a jump, but the lead was short-lived. Jockey Clarence Kummer sent Man o' War alongside and then ahead. When the stands were reached, at the end of the first quarter, the Riddle horse had a two-length lead. Frankie Keogh, who had the mount on the Canadian horse as a result of a last-minute change, in which Commander Ross withdrew Jockey Earle Sande, rode a hard race, but was unable to cut down that distance. Kummer kept Man o' War in check to the three-quarter pole, then let out a wrap and the great three-year-old responded with a burst of speed that left Sir Barton eight lengths behind before the stretch was reached. The last quarter mile down the stretch was an easy gallop, with Kummer visibly easing up his mount.

Thousands of race fans surged onto the track as the victor cantered back to the judge's stand for the weighing in and treated him to all the homage due the new king of the turf. Surrounded by his admirers, Man o' War posed for the movie cameras and inspected the huge gold cup, in the hands of Mr. Riddle. With the curiosity of the race fans satisfied, the big chestnut horse trotted back to his private bungalow and went into retirement, surrounded by his retinue of servants. His special railroad car was held in readiness to carry him back to the home stable.

Result No Surprise.

The result of the race was no surprise to track followers, who had held that the American horse was a heavy favorite despite the fact that his racing experience is a year shorter than that of Sir Barton.

The sudden decision of Commander Ross to displace Jockey Earle Sande, the riding ace of his stables, as announced in a cryptic message to the press stand shortly after noon, was the one sensation of the race. Sande was considered the premier horseman of the Canadian's camp, and, in fact, Clarence Kummer, who rode the winner and on whom Ross had first call, was released by Sir Barton's owner that he might ride the Riddle horse.

In his announcement of the change, Commander Ross explained that Sande "is not in good form, as his recent performances will show." "My action is taken without prejudice to Sande, and I am only exercising my prerogative as owner of Sir Barton."

The new champion raced his last race today, according to a previous announcement by Mr. Riddle, which stated that Man o' War would be retired for breeding purposes after this season. In his two years on the track he has piled up for his owner a fortune that by far surpasses the total won by any other American horse. With today's purse and cup, his winnings total more than $250,000, as compared with $196,550 won by Domino in three years. Man o' War was purchased by Mr. Riddle from Major August Belmont as a yearling for $5,000, and has never been beaten but once. Harry Payne Whitney's Upset taking the Sanford Memorial from him at Saratoga last year.

Dothan, Ala., October 12.—Fire in the acid chambers of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical company's plant, situated just beyond the city limits, late Monday, caused damage to the property approximating $100,000, and only heroic fire fighting by the company's fire department and the Dothan department saved the other units of the large plant from destruction.

PLAYERS BARRED.

Greenville, S. C., October 12.—Owners of the baseball park here used by the local club of the South Atlantic association have refused to lease the field for any game in which Joe Jackson and Claude Williams, suspended Chicago White Sox players, would take part.

Friends of Jackson and Williams had requested the use of the park for an exhibition game between two teams from the industrial section of the city, of which the two former Sox players would be members.

ANOTHER RECORD GOES TO SMASH IN CIRCUIT RACES

Lexington, Ky., October 12.—Establishment of a new world's record of 2:02 3-4 for three-year-old trotters by Sister Bertha in a race against time preceding the afternoon program and a reduction of the record for three-year-old pacing colts twice in the same event, first by Trampsafe to 2:02 3-4 and then by Frisco June to 2:01 1-4, were the features of today's Grand Circuit card.

The three-year-old pacing colt record was set in the Tennessee, in which Frisco June scored a victory by taking the last two heats in fast time, after having finished last in the first mile. She was driven by W. W. Fleming.

Peter Manning, favorite, took the Castleton cup for 2:07 trotters in straight heats, with Lucille Bingen a close second in all three miles.

Best Race Ever.

The contest developed in the Tennessee was considered by hundreds of horsemen here from all parts of the world to be the best ever paced by three-year-old horses. The times for the three heats are the fastest on record for three-year-old pacers. Breaks made Frisco June a loser in the first heat and had it not been for the fact that the distance was waived she should have finished behind the flag. Trampsafe went three-quarters of this heat in 1:30 1-4 and was pulled up at the wire. She was considered a sure winner of the next heat, but Frisco June displayed sensational speed and broke Trampsafe's new record.

Millie Irwin and Miarhtell scored easy victories in the 2:08 trot and second division of the 2:12 trot, respectively. The first division of the 2:12 was raced Monday. The Fleming brothers, W. W., W. R. and Vic, drove the winners in three of the four events.

With acknowledgments to K. C. B.

Dope Is Upset and Constitution Loses Great Golf Tournament

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY

Despite the fact that the old hero of a thousand bloody golf-course battles, John J. Dubb, tried his best to bring disaster to his comrades of the foursome, The Journal's team was crowned the newspaper champions of golfing Atlanta yesterday afternoon over the municipal golf links at Piedmont park, giving the dope bucket the worst upsetting it has been through this year, as The Constitution's team ruled favorites over their contemporaries. It is understood that more than a quarter of a million dollars changed hands when the result was flashed to a world that had forgotten a national baseball championship was to be decided during the afternoon.

There were many features that brought about the annihilation of The Constitution's representatives, and the chief of them all is the writer. We make no attempt to establish an alibi, although we were in terrible condition for the ordeal, in that a perfectly good finger of the right hand had been kayoed in the fourth round of a bout in which we were hanging up a picture at home. That affected our score to a certain extent, but we do not attempt to alibi.

No Bribery.

Nor did we find anything in our pillow the night before the match except feathers, so it can't be asserted that the golfers of The Constitution's team lost because the "master knob got next" to the outfit. The Journal won first place because it turned in poor scores; The Constitution won second place because it turned in worse scores, and The Georgian won third place because it turned in the worst scores. As a matter of fact, The Georgian lost because someone told young J. C. Fife he could play golf, and because he believed it; and because Mr. Fife convinced Ed Danforth that he (Mr. Fife) could play golf. This morning Mr. Danforth has rid himself of any such delusion.

It was really a pity that Ed Danforth's remarkable game should not have succeeded in putting The Georgian's team "over the top" in the tournament. After stumbling in the densest portion of the Forest of Golf Ignorance, Ed Danforth came out of the shadows yesterday and shot the most remarkable game in his entire career. He turned in a 53 for the nine holes, and led his contemporaries of the sporting sheets by half a mile. Ed never made any such score in his life, and we bow to his superiority.

Gallery Hurt Morgan.

Mr. Blake was unquestionably affected by the immense gallery, as was the writer. The only two members of that famous foursome who seemed able to do anything before the faithful devotees who tramped through the rough with them, were Bobby Jones and Danforth. Bobby has had 'em following him for years, and he should be accustomed to the sight by this time. Eddie was once a ballyhoo for a circus side show, and no gallery on earth would cause him any stage fright.

With Mr. Dubb it was different. Never having had any gallery except the caddies, several hundred spectators evidently bothered that noble old Duke of Dubbdom, and he wilted under the strain, quitting in pure disgust after the first nine holes.

Down to the business end of the tournament. The Journal representatives turned in a combined medal of 209 for the nine holes; The Constitution, 218, and The Georgian, 224. The low score of the day was made by Bobby Jones, a 39; second, by Willie Ogg, a 40, and third, by Perry Adair, a 41. It's easy to see, then, that the real "stars" of the tournament played games that were approximately even.

The Journal's 209 strokes were used up in the following manner: Blake, 66; Perkerson, 50; Brewerton, 54, and Jones, 39. The Georgain's: Adair, 41; Danforth, 53; McGruder, 58, and Fife, 78. The Constitution's: Ogg, 40; George, 57; Hammond, 50, and Wheatley, 71.

These scores seem a bit high, and they are. The players appeared to have trouble putting on the stripped greens, and few good approach shots were made. We are informed by Dave Gillespie, park manager, that these greens will be dressed with sand and oil immediately, and we predict that lower scores will be made when this is done.

In a very touching speech just after the scores of the tournament had been compiled, Fuzzy Woodruff, most eloquent of newspaper speakers, and the "old marster" of golf, presented the foursome with their prizes, and his audience was touched by the beautiful tributes he paid the newspaper golfers for their efforts. Fuzzy was very frank to admit that he saw very little golf, but he declared that he never witnessed any harder attempts.

Ringing speeches were also made by John Cantrell, Al G. Fields minstrels' interlocutor, and H. G. Voorhies, southern manager for the A. G. Spalding company.

World's Series Notes

Cleveland, October 12.—Previous to the game friends presented Elmer Smith with an automobile as a reward fo rhis home run Sunday. Fans from Niles, Ohio, presented George Burns with a gold watch for his two-bagger, which won yesterday's game and the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce gave loving cups two feet high to Manager Speaker and Owner Jim Dunn, of the Indians. A local fan gave O'Neill and Coveleskie watches.

In the early innings Coveleskie did not use his spitter much. He set up wide curves mingled with fast ones. The Brooklyn batters could not touch his curve ball. Several let their bats slip from their hands in swinging and Myers rolled over on the ground after one effort.

Sewell's error got Coveleskie in trouble in the third when he fumbled with a chance for a double play. He made up for it, however, with a great play on Miller's grounder back of second in the fifth and a whirlwind stop on Konetchy's grounder in the ninth, throwing to second for the final out of the game.

About 2,500 persons bought standing room in the stands and crowded into the aisles.

With the biggest crowd of the series at the game and thousands outside trying to force their way in, the scalpers were even busier than usual. Tickets brought as high as $50.

The crowd started on to the field in the ninth inning when it looked like a double play had ended the game, but had to go back and wait for the final out.

Dozens of fans crowded around the Cleveland players after the game, having them autograph balls which were hit into the stands. One yougster, apparently about 8 years old, had eight signatures on a ball he caught in the upper grandstand.

Speaker got a tremendous cheer after his triple in the fifth, scoring one of Cleveland's runs, but he drew even greater applause when he made two nice running catches in the next inning.

Jamieson's smash to Grimes in the third may have weakened the Brooklyn pitcher some. It caught him near the wrist and the hurler delayed the game several minutes. He did not seem to have the same snap to the ball afterward.

In the fifth Jameson topped one in front of the plate. Miller threw high and Jamieson reached first while Konetchy was in the air spearing the throw.

Elmer Smith made a nice play on Wheat's single in the fourth. The ball hit near the top of the right field screen, but Smith played back, took it on the rebound and threw out the Brooklyn captain at second.

LOCAL PREPS PREPARING FOR GAMES

BY J. LAUREN CLARK.

With the sounds of defeat ringing in their ears both Boys' High and Tech High are hard at practice rubbing out the kinks that developed in the last game. G. M. A. has not lost a game so far, but they are practicing hard every afternoon.

The defeat which Tech High suffered last Saturday will not have any direct bearing on their chance at the state championship. They were defeated by a college team and deserve great credit for the fight they put up. But, regardless, the thought of losing will put them on their toes, and the team the Smithies meet in their next game will have a terrible time repeating the dose.

The absence of Frank Harris, Pittman and Helvey, three regulars, was greatly felt, and as matters stand now these three will be out for a couple of weeks yet.

Boys' High took the worst drubbing last Saturday that she has taken in many a moon. It was a great surprise to the local fans, as well as to the high school team. From what Coach David and his warriors say, the Monroe Aggies have the best team they have put on the field in years. They say the Aggies are out for blood and bid the rest of the teams on the Monroe school's schedule to watch their smoke.

G. M. A. has not faced the acid test as yet, but with two victories behind them, the cadets are in great spirit. Old Man Hard Luck is doing his best to cripple the College Park team, as G. M. A. has suffered more injuries than any of the local prep teams up to date. If the cadets can lose this jinx, Coach Burbage feels certain his team will be able to cope with the best on their schedule.

THE BEST CLUB WON SAYS BABE

BY BABE RUTH.

(Copyright, 1920, by United News.)

Considering the scandal that has clouded the 1919 world's series in which the championship passed to the National league, it is gratifying that a hard fighting, clean playing club, such as Cleveland, should bring the highest baseball honors back to the American league this year.

There can be no doubt that the best team won.

Before the series the experts figured that Brooklyn had the stronger pitching staff. But the Cleveland pitchers demonstrated that the best in the American league is just as good, and in this series, at least, a little bit better than the pitching in the National league.

There was little to choose in the field as the series opened, but the brilliant playing of the Cleveland infield on Sunday made it stand out far above the Dodgers.

In Hall of Fame.

Coveleskie now takes his place along with Christy Mathewson in having pitched three victories during a series, and every game delivered by the Pole was a masterly piece. Holding a team that is fighting for the world's championship, and having the hitting power of Brooklyn to two runs in 27 innings is real pitching. Brooklyn was powerless before Coveleskie, and their attack looked weaker before his pitching than it really is under normal conditions.

The Yankees played Brooklyn in a series of exhibition games in the south before the recent season opened, and I got a good look at the outfit. In my earliest articles of the season I picked Brooklyn as one of the most likely prospects for the National league pennant. They showed everything that a ball club needed to win a pennant at that time. They fought their way through the season to success. But when it came to a short series, the Indians clearly showed that they had the class.

Brooklyn was game, and it is evident that they made a good fight to stop the Indians in the final game. But whatever breaks there were went to Cleveland, just as they always appear to go to the team that is winning. It is usually true, however, that the 'breaks' even up, and when one team gets more than another that team is usually playing with a dash and confidence that brings the breaks.

It was my guess after the first game of the series that seven games would wind it up. After the Indians disposed of Marquard as they did, and having played against both teams, I figured Cleveland just about that much better than Brooklyn. They proved they were.

Dear Old Pete:

Just wound up the one swellest day of my life! Since early this morning, when I got an invitation to visit R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. factories, I've been in the midst of millions of Camel cigarettes. Yes sir, right from the rooms where the choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos go into Camels unbeatable blend, straight through to the loading platforms where cases holding 10,000 Camels each are packed into car after car for shipping to every corner and cross roads in the U.S.A!

Man—the happiest idea you or I ever had as to the size of this Reynolds enterprise, or the number of Camels manufactured daily, is simply piker-stuff! Wipe off the slate and start fresh! Why—Pete, it seemed to me like a couple of those cigarette-making machines could keep half the nation smoking Camels steadily—BUT—honest to goodness, there are hundreds of these machines batting out Camels at the rate of 27,000 an hour—EACH!

And, Pete, you wouldn't have to consult a guide book to know you were in the Camel factories! The atmosphere is just charged with that wonderful aroma you get when you open up a deck of Camels! And, you know, old elephant—you've had a trunk full!

I stood by one of these machines, kind of fascinated. As the Camels dropped into the containers I figured the delight each one would supply! And, how Camels mellow, mild body would hit the right spot and how Camels refreshing flavor would cheer up some smoker's jaded appetite! And, each Camel free from any unpleasant cigaretty aftertaste or unpleasant cigaretty odor! And—

THE GUMPS—IN IN TWO

J. WILSON WRESTLES TONIGHT

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

Because he is one of the best wrestlers in the south today, and because he is seeking revenge for a defeat inflicted by the opponent he faces at the Auditorium tonight, a large crowd should attend the Jack Wilson-Young Demetral wrestling bout, which starts at 8:30 o'clock. There are other corking good features on the card, but for the present, we will devote most of our time and space to a discussion of the bout we've hinted at in the lines above.

Jack Wilson is popular in Atlanta, and he lost none of that popularity some weeks ago when he was forced to suffer defeat at the hands of the Anniston grappler. Jack Wilson, the writer believes, lost that match because he was in no condition to face such sturdy opposition. Jack Wilson treated the affair too lightly, and he realized his mistake too late.

Tonight is a different story, and hundreds of Jack Wilson's friends in Atlanta hope the result will be different. If condition plays any part, and unquestionably it will, the Atlanta mat artist should redeem his name. Anyway, if Jack loses, there won't be any alibi about condition, for Wilson is in superb trim for the Greek, better trim than he has ever been in before, and just good enough to lick most any other grappler in the wide, wide world, he asserts.

There is no doubting Jack's statement that he was beaten the last time because he was not himself. It was the subject of comment among the sporting writers of Atlanta that Wilson never should have entered the ring in the weakened state he displayed after the match had progressed for only a few minutes.

A Different Story.

Jack Wilson faced the toughest problem in his career in the worst condition he had ever been in, and the heart-breaking result was the only possible outcome. Jack knows all these things now, and we believe frankly that the boot has been transferred to the other foot, and that it's now up to Demetral to solve the riddle.

Another event on the card tonight is the bout between Young Kilonis and Mike Nestor, both champions; Kilonis of the Greeks, and Nestor of the Poles. The records of both these wrestlers are good, and would justify no "leaning o' the dope." They will weigh in at approximately the same figures, and are about equal in their mat experience.

We understand that they are old enemies, and this being the case, they will doubtless strive to settle their little discussion once and for all. We know of no better time than tonight, and one certainly couldn't pick a better spot for the festivities than the auditorium.

The railbirds of the city, who attended Hume McDonald's last show at the Auditorium, will recall the five little coons who sent the audience into prolonged laughter. To let the reader right in on the secret, that same quintet of earnest scrappers will be the attraction that will start the bill tonight, and if they conduct themselves as they did on their last appearance, this feature alone should be worth a good slice of the admission price.

The advance seat sale indicates that the gate tonight will be one of the best on record for the year, and we believe that the card justifies such an attendance. Tickets are still on sale at the following places: Chess', Peachtree cafe and Rector's cafe. They may be purchased at these establishments throughout the day. Ladies will be admitted free of charge.

GEORGIA WANTS TO PLAY TECH

That the University of Georgia, as an institution, as a team and as individuals, are willing and anxious to meet Georgia Tech in a post-season or specially-arranged football game this year, was the substance of a statement made over long-distance phone to a Constitution representative last night by Professor S. V. Sanford, of Athens director of athletics at the university.

"We are willing to meet Tech in a post-season game this year," Professor Sanford, who is known throughout the state in athletic circles, said. "I might even state that the University of Georgia is anxious to meet Tech on the gridiron.

"It might also be added that Georgia is willing to play Tech in a post-season game or any other kind of a game now or at any time Tech may name. That's the way, in a nutshell, that Georgia feels about the situation."

Athletic relations between Georgia and Tech were broken off in 1919 as the result of an alleged insult by the Georgia students to the Atlanta institution when they are said by Tech to have cast a slur upon the local school's war record.

The university treated the matter in a humorous light and contended that the incident was meant purely in fun and with no intent to insult the technological school.

Relations Terminated.

On the other hand, Tech felt the affront she declared had been shown her very keenly, and abruptly terminated athletic relations with the Athens school. Since the termination, the two schools have had absolutely no connection in sports.

The Georgia-Tech football and baseball games were long known as southern classics, and they drew probably the largest crowds that any contests in the south attracted.

Officials at Tech have consistently refused to reopen the matter of resuming athletic relations between the two schools, but this matter has been widely agitated by southern sporting writers, and, while no definite information is to hand, it is felt that a return to the old relations may be expected at almost any time.

Professor Sanford's open statement puts the matter squarely up to authorities at Tech, and formal action by them may be taken.

TARHEELS SURPRISE OLD ELI

BY WALTER CAMP.

New York, October 12.—Once again Yale's ability to cover fumbles by her opponets stood out as the big feature of her play. North Carolina univers.y proved a far harder task tha nwas expected, and had it not been for this covering of the ball and Captain Callahan's defensive strength as a roving center, would have made a lot of trouble. Yale was weak in solving Carolina's aerial game, but her defense had the merit of preventing long gains by that method.

The game showed Shevlin as an end of quality which will help a lot. Carolina consistnetly outkicked Yale and also gained many first downs. The game gave the much-needed practice, thereby disclosing the defects of the team.

Harvard was loose and inconsistent in the first half of its game with Valparaiso, but it failed to get what Yale enjoyed—a real defensive practice—for Valparaiso had no attack. On the other hand, the visitors had a strong defense, which Fisher needed to test out the Crimson offense. And it betrayed the fact that Harvard must brace up her attack and knit it together.

Killinger Stars.

Penn State's star quarter, Killinger, won the Dartmouth contest for the Pennsylvanians after the game looked like a tie. And yet, Dartmouth had been lucky to get her score, for it came through an intercepted forward pass. The game stood 7 to 7 in the fourth period, when Killinger intercepted a pass and made a 45-yard run for a touchdown. Penn State was more advanced than Dartmouth in her running game. Dartmouth did not start her best back, Robertson, but had to send him in.

The defeat of Minnesota by Northwestern was a bitter blow to Dr. Williams' hopes, and a great triumph for McDevitt, for it puts Northwestern in line for glory. Minnesota has been shot to pieces with faculty disqualifications, and has one star in Oss, while Northwestern's line is heavy and strong.

Princeton, in defeating Maryland, showed that its star line bucker, "Hank" Garrity, is as good as ever, and that he is a great asset. Keck, at tackle, is also coming into his own, and Lourie is a slippery man in an open field. The forward pass needs further polishing, but that will come in time. Sheever is punting better than any man.

Columbia's team in beating the New York univeristy eleven, showed O'Neill's good work on the line, for her forwards consistently outplayed the linemen of New York university. Of course, Columbia's first score was a mighty lucky one, and due to a fumble, but nevertheless, it was good following of the ball by Burtt.

Pitt's Back Field.

The Pitt-West Virginia game was the most exciting, and it showed that the latter, in spite of the great playing of Beck, is not as strong as last year. Warner has a cracking good back field in Davies. McCracken and Hewitt, with a star quarter in Halloran. Nor is his line below the average, with Stein at center. Pitt should go well this year.

The Navy did better work—far better than a week ago—and the defeat of Lafayette will restore the team's confidence. But the Army is coming along, and has a fine end in Storck, and a sterling back in French.

Penn also showed improvement, and has a powerful defensive line, and Cornell is coming along better. Ruthers went down before Lehigh, but is showing some stiffening defense. Chicago, Wisconsin, Michigan and Ohio State won with ease, as did Notre Dame.

Colgate is not coming along as she should, having too many gaps to fill in her eleven. Detroit did a good job with Marquette, and Washington and Jefferson simply snowed under Kalamazoo.

OVER 6,000 RODENTS KILLED AT A COST OF 5 CENTS PER RAT

Corpus Christi, Texas, October 12. More than 6,000 rats have been killed here, at a cost of 5 cents a rat, boy scout headquarters conducting the campaign, announced today. Examination of the rats failed to show symptoms of bubonic plague, it was said.

H. GEORGE PREDICTS BEST YEAR

BY HOMER C. GEORGE.

Southern football is going to be better this year than last and that means that, as a whole, it will be about the best football we have ever had. Of course, there will be a lot of us fellows who have watched football for many years who will look backward and tell of the many good games in the dear old past. But this year there is a lot of keen competition among the best teams, and as yet no bunch stands out supreme—even Tech.

And speaking of Tech there is no doubt but that this year's squad is the best which the big college has had since the famous Golden Tornado of 1917. The team has been developed slowly for the hard games which are now in prospect with the result that the next three weeks will see the eleven right on edge for the strenuous opposition which it will have to face. I have talked to a lot of men who have watched the team carefully and they all are agreed upon the point mentioned. Certainly the playing indicates as much.

The scores have not been so enormous as some of the followers might have wished for, but they have been what I would consider preferable to anything else. They showed the latent strength of the eleven without showing all its power; yet enough power was displayed to get comfortable victories. From now on I am looking for larger scores in case any weak teams are met. The team is in its real stride and the game at Nashville against Vanderbilt Saturday will evidence this fact. I do not look for a runaway, but it should be an easy victory for the local aggregation.

Pitt Game a Tartar.

The Pitt game is sure to be a tartar. I am not looking for a victory, but I will not be surprised at one. I am not yet predicting a defeat, by any means, for I want to learn a little more about Pitt before making up my mind. However, Pitt showed that her line was strengthened and that she still had a wonderful attack when she won from West Virginia last Saturday. That means this—if Tech is to win or make a real showing she will have to play her greatest football from the very start. There can be none of this sparring or fiddling around, but she must go at the Panthers with all her might when the whistle blows.

I am going to Pittsburg expecting to see a real game of football this year and not one of those things which stun you, as was the case last year. Then Tech was dazed the first fifteen minutes or playing as if the team was. This year I am not looking for anything of the same character. But I am expecting to see a fight from the start and a fight where all the punch of the Georgia boys will be in evidence when the whistle sounds. That will make for a real game, too, believe me.

I cannot get away from the belief that Warner is the greatest coach in America today. He has some wonderful material to handle and that is all the old master needs. But he is possibly going to look upon Tech a bit too lightly, and if he does woe be unto his crew. Last year the Pitt line was weak, but this has been remedied. In the backfield there is still to be found that wonder of backs—Davies; and Mr. Davies is usually enough. I am of the opinion that Alexander will present a different attack from that which Warner expects and such is sure to confuse Pitt. So if Davies can be held Tech has a good chance.

Concerning Centre.

Everywhere we hear a lot about Centre college. Many supposed experts are saying that Centre is not a real team and that Moran is not a real coach. I have never seen the team in action, but I am not willing to grant that either of these surmises are correct. I hold the opinion that Centre is not a flash in the pan, but a magnificent team. We will know a lot more when the team goes against Harvard. Centre meets that eleven the same day that Tech plays Pitt so that when the two teams come back here for the first clash, one will have a real line on the ability of each. Certainly Centre cannot be a flash when the team furnishes as many all-American players as it did last year, and all of these stars return for this season.

Getting back to Tech, it is growing evident that Red Barron is going to be the grand star of the eleven this year unless his playing goes off. He is not only a bigger, heavier player than last year, but he seems to have more speed and is certainly in all the plays. His defensive work this year has been that of a marvel, while his offense has shone with its fair brilliance. And this is not said as belittling the work of any other star. Certainly Barron has surprised me greatly so far and I am counting on his continuing to show with such rare power as to make some of the all-American players look to their titles.

Tech Is Planning To Send Her Band To Nashville Game

Boys Are Holding Tag Days at Campus to Secure Funds for Trip to Contest With Vanderbilt

BY WALLACE GEORGE.

"Send the Band to Vandy," is the way the blue tags read that are being seen all over the Tech campus today, and there's a reason. It is Tag day there, or rather Tag week, and the sellers of the tags are meeting with success.

The movement started last week when the Tech faculty gave its consent to the plan to let the band make the trip to Vanderbilt with the Golden Tornado. This was all that the White and Gold music makers were waiting for and immediately got busy in planning the trip as well as ways and means of financing it.

The guardians of the coffers of the Tech Athletic association were first consulted and they agreed to pay one-third of the total expense providing that the band men or the student body would come across with the remaining two-thirds. Promptly Monday morning the blue tags appeared, selling at $1 a copy.

Cost of the Trip.

The expense of the trip will be approximately $1,200 to $1,500. Granting that the Athletic association puts up $500 of this amount, this means that some 800 or 1,000 students will have to buy the tags ere the week is out. The chances of the band making the trip, however, are bright, indeed, even though the individual members may have to bear a small share of their own expense.

The most ardent member of the band and the one to whom a great part of the credit for the success of the organization is due, is its justly famous leader, Frank ("Wop") Roman. "The noblest Roman of them all," they call him out on the Tech campus, and ever since he first made his appearance there in 1910, Tech has been bragging about her wonderful bands.

Frank first gazed out across the landscape on the hillside of one of the sunny slopes of Italy, some forty-odd years ago. Before arriving at Tech he served his time in the Sixteenth United States infantry band. When he gave up this work ten years ago he also gave up the honorable title of sergeant and was given the more familiar cognomen of "Wop."

Play in Pittsburg.

From the time he first took charge of the Tech band, and the eight or nine men of which it consisted, he has been furnishing music in these parts that would make any college symphony crew green with envy. Frank won everlasting fame when he composed the immortal battle hymn, "Rambling Wreck," syncopating a melody of a forgotten Italian operetta. Today the song takes its place among the famous college songs of the country and its vibrant strains are known everywhere.

The Tech band reached its highest niche of fame last year on the 25th of October when they introduced "Rambling Wreck" to Pittsburg and more especially to the 37,000 persons that crowded into Forbes' field to witness the annual game between the Panthers and the Yellow Jackets.

The 1920 band is composed of fifty-four or fifty-five pieces, thirty-two of the number having held down places on it last year. With such a goodly number of old and experienced men and with Roman as leader, they naturally are blossoming out. In fact, they got started this year a week before school did and when Tech played Wake Forest in the season's opener on the 25th of September, the band was ready and "raring to ramble."

HARTLEY STARS AT GEORGIA

BY JOHN H. MAHONEY.

Athens, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—Georgia climbed the second rung in the ladder of football supremacy when she defeated the University of South Carolina 37 to 0 in Columbia Saturday. This game was the first real test for the Red and Black, and the score shows how Stegeman's machine met the test. Sol Metzger's outfit was certainly powerful this year, and no one doped out a five touchdown victory Saturday morning. Three touchdowns were all the most optimistic supporters of the Red and Black had hoped for, and many predicted an even closer score.

Saturday's game proves one fact. It proves that Georgia this year has one of the finest backfields in southern football. That quartet composed of Messrs. Cheeves, Hartley, Collings and Echols, is mighty hard to beat. Saturday's game was, from a South Carolina standpoint, just too much Hartley, Cheeves and Collings. Dick Hartley, who graced the G. M. A. gridiron a year or so ago, was the scintillating star in the attack against the Metzger men. Hartley started the old ball rolling by stepping off 95 yards for a touchdown on receiving the kick-off. Then he nonchalantly glided down the field for Georgia's second touchdown of the last half, making a run of about 75 yards. Hartley is, undoubtedly, one of the prettiest running backs in the south, and he certainly proved a thorn in the flesh of the South Carolinians, being responsible for two touchdowns.

Cheeves Stars.

Hartley shares the honors of the day with "Buck" Cheeves. Cheeves gets better every day, and that's saying a lot. Buck got away for a lot of end runs and gained steadily through the line.

Dave Collings negotiated a beautiful drop kick and played a fine game throughout, as did Echols at full.

Captain "Bum" Day played his usual good game at center, and was right in the midst of every play. Artie Pew broke up play after play and he was a bulwark of strength in the line. There was another thing in the game that was highly encouraging. The interference of the Wildcats has improved about a thousand per cent.

At least, so it looked Saturday. This was one of the defects in Georgia's team in the beginning of the season, but if the interference works for the rest of the season, as it worked in the South Carolina game—well, there'll be a lot more scoring by the Red and Black.

Few Injuries.

The Georgia squad came through the Carolina contest with only a few minor injuries and all of the men are in good physical shape. Whelchel, giant guard, got in the fray and played a good game. Whelchel has been out of the game for a couple of weeks, and the line was considerably strengthened by his recovery. Vandiver made the trip too, but it was thought best not to play him, as he will be needed at the guard position later on, and he is still nursing an injury received early in the season.

Georgia plays Furman Saturday and the Oglethorpe Petrels the following week. After that comes Auburn, Virginia, Florida, Alabama and Clemson all in a row. All of these are strong teams, and the Red and Black is going to have its hands full to handle them. Two of them, especially, are going to be redoubtable opponents. Auburn and Alabama defeated the Wildcats by close scores last year. This year the Georgia-Auburn game is to be played in Columbus, as formerly, while the Alabama encounter is to be staged in Atlanta. Both of these games will have an important bearing upon S. I. A. A. football supremacy.

RACING EVENTS ADD TO LAGRANGE FAIR SCHEDULE

LaGrange, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—Western Georgia fair management estimates that ten thousand school children from this city, Troup county and neighboring counties, attended Tuesday's fair opening, which was designated as educational day. Twice the attendance of last year's first day was registered by the box office and there is every indication that the 1920 fair will be western Georgia's banner event.

Charles J. Roper, of West Point, chairman of the racing committee, scored heavily Tuesday in his program of horse racing. Chairman Roper had promised races above the average and Tuesday's racing card eclipsed everything ever held in western Georgia. Sinalco, a bay gelding owned by I. P. Russell and son, of Stephenson, Ala., and driven by S. Russell, broke his record in the 2:25 trot, an early closing event Tuesday afternoon.

Bonnie Floyd, owned by C. P. Tansey, Chattanooga, Tenn., with Tensy driving, equaled the track record of 2:12¼ in two heats of the free-for-all pace, the class race of the program. In the 2:25 trot the results were as follows: Sinalco, first; Elsie Dewey, second; Abe Mac, third. Time first heat, 2:17½; second heat, 2:18¼; third heat, 2:16¼. Time for the race, 2:20½.

In the free-for-all pace the results were: Bonnie Floyd, first; George Case, second; Dan Pointer, third; Claysville Sal, fourth; The Dude, fifth. Time first heat, 2:14¼; second, 2:12¼; third, 2:12¼. Time for the race, 2:15.

The 2:35 trot was $300.

The five-mile motorcycle race resulted as follows: First, Lewis Lawley; second, W. W. Anderson; third, Willie Adams; fourth, C. J. Smith. Purses offered were $40, $25 and $10. Time for the five miles, 6 minutes 2 seconds.

NEW CHAMPS OUTBATTED OPPONENTS

Cleveland, October 12.—The new world's champions outbatted their rivals for the seven-game series, .224 to .200. The Indians cracked out fifty-three hits to Brooklyn's forty-three. They played an uphill battle for batting honors and when they went into the four-game series on their home grounds they pulled away from their opponents. The American leaguers had eight men batting .300 or better, while the National leaguers had only three.

Nunamaker, who was at bat twice during the series, cracked out one hit and he finished with a mark of .500. Steve O'Neill, who caught the entire series with the exception of one inning, when he gave way to Onet Thomas, had a big margin over the rival backstops, being credited with seven hits in twenty-one times at bat. Two of his hits were doubles. He was tied with Jamieson and Bagby, teammates, and Wheat and Mitchell, of Brooklyn, with an average of .333. Wheat was easily the best batter on the Brooklyn team.

Trio Leads.

Speaker led in total bases with twelve, the result of eight hits, which included doubles and a triple. Wheat was close behind the Indains' manager with eleven bases compiled on nine hits, which included a brace of doubles.

Only two home runs were made in the series and these were made by Bagby and Elmer Smith in one game. Cleveland knocked out eight doubles to Brooklyn's five, and the Indians were credited with two triples to their rivals' one. As a team, Cleveland had the edge in total bases with 71 compared to 50 for Brooklyn.

Batting honors between the Johnston brothers went to W. Johnston, first baseman of the Indians. He finished with an average of .273, compared to .214 made by his brother, Jimmie.

8 TEAMS ENTERED FOR POLO

There will be no danger of interruptions during the auto polo games at the Southeastern fair due to broken engines, missing wheels, injured players or mulish cars. Half a dozen players may be carried from the field, the car may develop every possible ailment, but the games will go on just the same—all because, Secretary R. M. Striplin announced yesterday there are to be eight polo teams competing in the series, more than have ever competed at any fair or exposition in the history of polo. Three of the teams, picked from the best of the country, will work with the all-American champions, in helping them defend their title against the onslaught of the mid-western challengers, while the three remaining teams will help the western titleholders in their last-of-the-season drive for the championship.

Playing for the heaviest prizes that have been hung up for them this year, the men should show Atlantans the classiest kind of sport on the Lakewood grounds. Not only is the national title at stake, but the prize money has rolled up to a good amount, totaling $2,500. With these inducements, the southeastern series of "America's most sensational sport" ought to furnish enough thrills for even the most rabid thrill-fan.

Irvin Bratley, captain of the mid-western team, will be able to play by Saturday, he wired Secretary Striplin last night. Bratley was hurt quite severely during the matches at Omaha, Neb., recently, when his machine turned turtle so quickly that he was pinned underneath. Although his back was badly strained, he will be able to compete here, his physician has advised him. Captain Blondie Sterling has come through the season with nothing but a few minor injuries, and he and his team should be in excellent shape. The series consists of two games a day, one each afternoon and night.

DIVERTING TRAFFIC TO SOUTHERN PORTS

Mobile, Ala., October 12.—Shippers of the middle west are joining heartily in the efforts of the Mississippi Valley association to bring about a south ad north movement of traffic, instead of the time-honored eastward and westward shipments, and this co-operation will mean millions of dollars to southern ports, according to James B. Morrow, managing director of the valley association, who attended a sub-zone meeting of the association.

Why Feel Old?
It's Easy to Look and Feel Many Years Younger
Why look and feel old before your time, when it's so easy to get back the strength, energy, endurance and plumpness that were yours years ago? Unless you are suffering from some organic trouble it's practically certain that you, like hundreds of others right here in Atlanta, can get back your strength, energy and flesh, and look and feel younger and stronger in a very short time. Do as they did; go to Jacobs' Pharmacies or any other druggist and deposit $1.50 for enough Blood-Iron Phosphate for a three weeks' treatment. Take one tablet at each meal, and if at the end of three weeks you aren't delighted back and get your money. Most folks, however, are so delighted that they keep right on taking it because the cost is only about 7c a day and they find not only that they look and feel better, but also that they can do more with less fatigue, sleep better, work better and play better. Why be a "has been?" Start Blood-Iron Phosphate today; shake off that tired, wornout, discouraged look and get back among the "live ones." —(adv.)

BARNEY OLDFIELD IN ATLANTA, GUEST OF HOMER GEORGE

Barney is now president of the Oldfield Tire company, and is making a tour of his extensive southern interests. Upon leaving Atlanta, he will probably visit other southern cities, going over his business before returning east.

Oldfield and Homer George are old-time friends, having been associated together in a number of speed and endurance tests. The track demon expects to spend four or five days here.

It is estimated that nearly 150,000 teachers in this country dropped out of school work last year to enter more remunerative or attractive employment.

Cotton Association Head Denounces Cotton Burning

Markets Closed Tuesday

All leading American exchanges and boards of trade were closed Tuesday in observance of Columbus day. Liverpool Cotton exchange remained open. Business as usual will be resumed by all institutions this morning.

Declaring that the destruction of cotton by fire and the activities of persons warning gins in the south to cease operating is a "disgrace to civilization and is unjustifiable even in time of war," President J. S. Wannamaker, of the American Cotton association, has issued a statement denouncing cotton incendiaries and appealing for calm reason in the emergency that now faces the cotton-producing south.

President Wannamaker's statement, issued on the eve of his departure from Columbia, S. C., to Washington to attend a national agricultural conference, deals in glowing words with the unblemished purity of the south's record for fair play and straightforwardness, and is as follows:

"Destruction of private property by fire, whether the property be owned by the party applying the torch or by another party, is a disgrace to civilization, and is unjustifiable even in the time of war, and should not be condoned even though the torch be applied during the excitement of a pitched battle.

"Men face to face with bankruptcy, due to the annihilation of the law of supply and demand, can neither think nor act clearly. They forget that truth is mighty and will prevail. They would be facing great prosperity, were the natural law functioning, and there would be an active demand for every pound of cotton, at a price far above the cost of production.

South's Splendid Record.

"The applying of the torch to private property in the south during the fearful struggle in the war between the states could not be condoned by right-thinking men, regardless of section. As a mere child, I formed the conclusion, which I still adhere to, that there is no punishment in hell sufficient to mete out justice to those who perpetrated this crime at that time. Regardless of the fearful sacrifice forced upon the south in this fratricidal struggle which drenched its soils with not only the blood of the flower of its manhood, but with the blood of its old men, staggering with age, and with the blood of its boys, mere children, neither the soldiers nor the civilians of the south—and be it said to their everlasting credit—ever applied the torch, even in retaliation. Defeat with an untarnished name was thought preferable to victory won through barbarism.

"The people of the south are today in the midst of a battle for their economic freedom. Defeat means bankruptcy and poverty. It means that our property and our homes must be mortgaged to pay the difference between the price for which cotton sells and the price which we were required to pay in order to produce it. It means that the entire life of the south will be blighted. Yet, come what may, we will keep the record handed down to us by our fathers, clear and untarnished.

Facing Short Crop.

"We are facing the sixth consecutive short cotton crop. We were urged to produce fifteen million bales of American cotton for the 1920 crop, it being stated positively that anything less than this quantity would fail to supply the pressing needs of the world for raw cotton. The world has consumed more cotton during the last five years than we have produced. The growing cotton crop is the most costly ever produced. The cotton-consuming world forgets that it is necessary to resell the commodities and the labor and every item of expense entering into the production of the crop when we sell the cotton.

"To sell cotton at existing prices will bankrupt the south. Central Europe is in pressing demand for around three million bales of our cotton, including low grades. Only a small proportion of their spindles are in operation, due to their inability to secure our cotton. The law of supply and demand is dead.

"Neither the destruction of ginhouse by flames, nor the destruction of cotton under the slogan of "Burn-a-bale," will revive the law of supply and demand. Were I an officer in battle and one of my soldiers were to apply the torch to private property, I would court-martial him; and were I a private, ordered to apply the torch to private property, I would be court-martialed—I would not obey the command. The "burn-a-bale" slogan, started through some unknown source, and which has been pushed in various sections of the belt, means the destruction of a large amount of cotton which will be desperately needed before the 1921 crop becomes available. Every bale of cotton which it is contemplated to thus destroy should be subscribed as stock in the export corporation, thus bringing direct benefits to the owner of the cotton, and indirect benefits to the entire agricultural and commercial life of the south.

"Out of all of this the planter should learn a lesson. Henceforth and forever he should so reduce his cotton acreage that the supply of cotton, compared to the demand, even though the great cotton-consuming section of central Europe be unable to obtain her supplies, will absolutely assure, through the functioning of the law of supply an ddemand, an active demand at a reasonable price above the cost of production. He must reduce his cotton acreage for 1921 to such an extent that the cotton-consuming world will be brought to realize the necessity of paying to the producer a profitable price for his product. He must remember that his very existence depends upon his ability to defend himself. He can expect no quarter. He must get into the foreign markets through the export corporation."

NEW FALL SUITS SAFE WEDNESDAY, SAYS FORECASTER

Fair weather Wednesday, says C. F. von Herrmann, in setting forth his daily forecast for Atlantas to use as sartorial and planning guide. No change is expected in temperature—that is, no decided change. Atlanta seems satisfied with the brand of weather it has been securing since winter's little pop call of a few days back, and the authorities don't want to change the status of the elements as long as everybody's happy.

Moderate temperature, then, and continued fairness, is on deck for the next twenty-four hours at least. Owing to his past experience with the eccentricities of the weather at this particular season, Mr. von Herrmann prefers not to go farther into the future than one day.

OSBORN TO ADDRESS FREE HEALTH SCHOOL

At the meeting of the Psychological Free School of Health Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce Rev. A. T. There will be a beautiful musical program and free health literature. Robert Bryan Harrison, director of the school, will preside.

NEW PLANNING BOARD ANNOUNCED BY MAYOR

Mayor James L. Key made public announcement of his appointment of the six members of the new city planning commission for Atlanta Tuesday morning.

Each appointee has signified his willingness to serve and the personnel of the body is as follows: Joel Hurt, Senator Hoke Smith, Robert R. Otis, Charles A. Wickersham, Frank A. Pittman and Fred J. Terry.

The commission will hold its organization meeting at an early date, probably next week. One of the first official acts of the body will be to elect an executive secretary who will have an office in the city hall and devote all of his time to the commission. Tenure of office of the members is not limited to a specific term.

Appointment of the commission was under authority of an act passed at the last session of the general assembly creating the body.

Some of the duties the act confers on the new planning commission is to recommend or make suggestions to council and to all other public authorities covering the laying out of streets, sidewalks and boulevards, relief of traffic conditions, development of housing and sanitary conditions, establishment of zones or districts for industrial and residential sections, and make suggestions concerning the use, height, area and bulk of buildings.

It is further provided that the commission shall make suggestions as to the general growth, and improvement of the municipality, especially with regard to public and private buildings, streets, parks, grounds and vacant lots and to study and prepare such measures as may be advisable for the promotion of public interests, health, morals, safety, comfort, convenience and welfare of the city.

PROMINENT WOMAN STRICKEN IN MACON

Macon, Ga., October 12.—(Special.) Mrs. E. W. Bellamy, sister of the late Hugh V. Washington and probably one of the best-known women in Macon, was stricken today while visiting Rose Hill cemetery, where members of her family are buried. She was removed to her home in College street, where tonight her condition is reported to be critical.

Mrs. Bellamy is one of Macon's most philanthropic women. She gave the Washington library to the city of Macon, donating the valuable site at College street and Washington avenue, and, in addition, gave $50,000 cash for the building. The library is now nearing completion.

J. R. Dudley Charged With Using Fiancee To Cash Bad Check

A trail of alleged worthless checks and a broken-hearted fiancee was left by J. R. Dudley upon his unexpected departure from the city several days ago. He departed in a sport model automobile, for which he had paid $100 in cash and given a check for $800, which has been returned dishonored, it is stated. Even the young lady who expected to become his bride now finds that he used her as a means of securing money for one of his checks.

Upon his arrival in Atlanta about six weeks ago Dudley applied to a firm of contracting plumbers for a position. The firm needed a man, and as Dudley represented himself as being an engineer in heating and plumbing construction from Detroit, they took him on. Leaving them last week, he was given a check on the Atlanta National bank for $120. He raised the check to $420, it is stated and requested his fiancee to cash it for him. She did this after the check had been indorsed by her brother.

After this he left for parts unknown in his sport model automobile, valued at $1,900. A letter addressed to him at his hotel has since fallen into the hands of the police. The letter, in code, inclines them to the belief, they say, that he is known to the police in other cities.

Investing without Capital
Many people now invest in high grade listed stocks and bonds without capital—that is, they buy them on the Kriebel Systematic Saving Plan and pay for them out of their monthly earnings.
They are finding it highly profitable. It is not a short cut to wealth, but it invariably yields liberal interest plus a profit.
What can be accomplished by this plan is told in Peter Perkins' story, "Getting Ahead." By investing $25 per month for 10 years he accumulated $10,000. The booklet tells you what stocks he bought, the dividends received each year, and the market advance of each stock.
It's fascinating. Shall we send you a copy? It's free. Dept. L

HERE IS THE SHINGLE

DRIVE down most any street where new houses are going up, and you will find crushed slate surfaced shingles on most, if not all, of the new roofs.
Most of these shingles are Carey Shingles.
They are popular on the 40 thousand dollar houses because there is no more naturally beautiful material to put on a roof than the attractive Indian red or the artistic sage green slate. The low price makes them possible on less costly homes.
The asphalt in them protects nail-heads from rusting off and shingles coming loose.
Finally—they stay flat.
We shall be glad to send free to any one a set of the plans for the bungalow shown. Write or call.

Atlanta Theater—All week (matinees Wednesday and Saturday) Al Field's Minstrels.

Loew's Grand—(Vaudeville and pictures) Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday; "Playmates," presented by six juvenile singers, dancers and comedians; Arnold and Arnold, "Cruisers on the Ocean of Joy," whirlwind funsters; George DeVoy and May Dayton in their satire, "At the Station;" Johnny Harrigan, monologist extraordinary; Vee and Telley, with their canine marvel "Jackie," sensational equilibrists. Picture program headliner, Jack London's "The Mutiny of the Elsing," all-star cast.

Lyric—(B. F. Keith vaudeville)—The bill for the first half of the week has two feature acts—Winnifred Gilraine and company, assisted by Herford Hartwell and company in "On With the Dance;" also John T. Ray and company in a comedy episode, "Check Your Hat." Other attractions are the Ermine sisters in songs and patter; Adams and Griffith in "A Music Lesson;" Allanson, marvelous equilibrist: Topics of the Day; Pathe News; Pathe Review.

Dorothy Dalton.

(Coming to the Forsyth.)

Dorothy Dalton's latest Paramount photoplay, "Half an Hour," which will be shown at the Forsyth theater for three days, beginning Thursday, is based on Sir James M. Barrie's famous play of the same name which was produced with immense success several years ago. This is the second of Sir James' great plays which has been picturized by Paramount, and others will follow. Miss Dalton has an excellent role in the picture and she is finely supported. Charles Richman being her leading man.

Roscoe Arbuckle.

(At the Rialto.)

Roscoe Arbuckle, for many years the foremost comedian of the screen, and whose popularity is unbonded, has scored heavinly in his first paramount feature production of "The Round Up," at the Rialto theater this week. This is George Melford's picturization of Edmund Day's highly successful play which has held the stage for several years with exceptional success. The picture is, if anything, more attractive than the play itself, the story is more developed, the dramatic interest heightened and the photography all that could be asked for. Mabel Julienne Scott plays opposite the star. "The Big Show," a dandy new two-reel comedy, is also on the program.

"Law of the Yukon."

(At the Strand.)

"The Law of the Yukon," which is the feature picture at the Strand this week, is remarkable for story, types, scenes, sets and skilful direction. The great outdoors chosen to represent the frozen north, the land of the Yukon, shows the director's intimate knowledge of the northwest. The types are true to life, and interior scenes are exact replicas of the miners' shacks, dance hall and gambling room. The story made to fit Robert W. Service's poem, "The Law of the Yukon," adds to the laurels of Charles Miller, the director. "The Elephant's Nightmare," a clever two-reel comedy, is also being shown.

"World and His Wife."

(At the Forsyth.)

MACON FORMS SECRET ANTI-SPEEDING CLUB

Macon, Ga., October 12.—(Special.) A secret service body composed of members of the Macon Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and a number of other citizens, to co-operate with the police department in breaking up reckless driving of automobiles and motor trucks, is to be organized.

Plans were discussed at a conference today in the office of Mayor Toole, and a committee of five, with Morris Michael representing the Kiwanis club, as chairman, was named. Other members of the committee are Guy E. Paine and Alderman B. J. Dasher.

Each volunteer is to be furnished with cards on which he can make a notation of the numbers of any car he observes violating the law, and any other similar information. This will be mailed to the chief of police and in turn the chief will notify the offender. Arrests are to be made on second violations. The name of the person making the complaint will not be made public and the card will bear a secret number, which will be known only to the secretary of the organization.

Some of those at today's conference wanted fines doubled, and some suggested that cars be impounded for sixty days as an additional penalty where convictions are secured.

Ward Says Cotton In Three Counties Far Below Estimate

Hephzibah, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—W. W. Ward, well-known citizen of this place, in a statement issued here, declares that recently-published crop reports for this state by counties, which place the condition of the cotton crop in Emmanuel county at 45, Tatnall at 45 and Toombs at 40, are much higher estiamtes than the existing conditions warrant.

"I have noticed the crop reports," he stated, "an I have recently made a trip through Emmanuel, Tatnall and Toombs counties, which are in my home section. Consequently, I feel that I am in position to know about the cotton crops there, and I do not hesitate to say that the published estimate for them exceeds the existing condition by half. "A well-known farmer here told me he had one tenant running six plows, and that he would get only seven bales. Others tell me they are making 100 pounds seed cotton to the acre. For this reason, I urge farmers to hold their cotton until the actual condition comes up to the published estimates."

Jenkins Prepares For Record Fair; Opens Next Monday

Millen, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—Everything is being made ready for the opening of the big Jenkins County fair next Monday, which will continue through the week to Saturday night. Several cars left Millen today carrying advertising matter throughout Jenkins, Burke, Emmanuel, Screven and Bulloch counties, and indications are that all of these progressive counties will be well represented at the fair, both in attendance and exhibits.

When the gates swing open Monday morning, the record-breaking crowd expected will have an opportunity to see the most wonderful display of exhibits that has ever been shown in this part of the state. Miss Mae Cheatham, manager of the canning club department for Jenkins county, already has ten community exhibits.

The special days have been named as follows: Monday, Get-Ready day; Tuesday, Opening day and General Agricultural day; Wednesday, Community day; prizes will be given to comunity registering largest attendance; Thursday, Savanah and Augusta day, at which time a big delegation is coming from both of these cities; Friday, baby show; Saturday, Everybody's day.

Exhibits which wil be on display at the Jenkins County fair will contradict all stories about hard times and poor crops throughout this section of Georgia. The farmers as a whole have much better crops to pick their agricultural exhibits from this year than they did last, with the exception of cotton. Every district in the county will have a big exhibit in the agricultural tent, which will be larger than the average county sends to the state fair. Leading farmers of this section assert that more good practical lessons have been driven home at the preceding Jenkins County fairs than could have been accomplished through any other means.

JONES IS NOMINATED SENATOR FROM SIXTH

Valdosta, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—The Sixth senatorial district convention was held here today, and Hon. O. K. Jones, Valdosta, was formally nominated for senator. Mr. Jones, who was a representative in the house, had no opposition in the recent primary, and his nomination was unanimous today.

A new executive committee for the district was selected as follows: W. D. Peeples, Lowndes, chairman; Ewell Brown, Dr. B. L. Wilkerson and C. M. Killian, of Lowndes; J. E. Pitts and F. N. Bray, Cook; W. O. Vallentine and W. F. Corbett, Echols. The Berrien county members are to be appointed later.

By resolution, Cook county was instructed to nominate the senator for the next term, 1923-1924. The Sixth senatorial district is composed of Lowndes, Echols, Berrien and Cook counties and the custom since the formation of the district has been to rotate the senatorship in the various counties. Cook, being one of the new counties, will have the naming of the senator for the first time in the next term. The delegates to the convention were guests at a luncheon given by Mr. Jones.

BY PARKS RUSK.

Imagine, if you can, a carnival midway minus rows of candy stalls, teddy-bear and kewpie booths, pillow-top stands, duck ponds, country stores and vase and pocket-knife counters. Fancy a fair without innumerable games and contests of slim chance and so-called skill, still slimmer, where sportively-inclined patrons may participate in mild forms of gambling to their heart's content and to their pocketbook's discontent.

There will be a distinct singularity to the Southeastern fair this year because of the absence of all wheels of fortune and gift lotteries, and similar features always synonymous with fairs and midways. The board of directors of the fair association recently decreed that gaming in all forms would thenceforth be prohibited at Lakewood, and the Johnny J. Jones' exposition shows, the big out-door amusement enterprise that contributes so much to the fun and frolic at the fair, have eliminated every feature of this character from their list of big carnival attractions at Lakewood. Wherefore, the familiar cry, "The little boy got it!" will be heard no more at the fair.

Ready for the Crowds.

Saving arrived here Monday to play a pre-fair engagement at Lakewood, the Jones shows were in full swing Tuesday night, and a good-sized crowd thronged the big joy-plaza in Larkland. Some of the Jones attractions this year are innovations for Atlanta, and were welcomed with much eagerness by the first-nighters. The Jones shows will remain throughout the fair, which begins Saturday.

An attraction that should play to S. R. O. audiences anywhere in Dixie is Miss Maybell Mack's comedy mule circus. The star performer of the jarhead troup is "Pearl," apparently a most intelligent mule, who can distinguish colors, spell words and do other wonders. Miss Mack is considered one of the noted horsewomen of America, and her mule show is in an exclusive class.

The trained wild animal arena is in itself a complete one-ring circus, where one witnesses many thrilling acts, in which six lions, well under the control of brave men and fearless girls, demonstrate a masterpiece of the trainer's art.

An idea of the great west before wire fences cut up the great stretches of range is depicted in the IXL ranch wild west exhibition, replete with bucking bronchos, cowgirls and other crack riders. The "Superba" is an attraction worthy of note. In this show famous paintings are reproduced with living models in front of painted backgrounds.

The Midget City.

The Midget City will no doubt create a great amount of comment. It is a vaudeville performance whose participants are tiny midgets. The show is exceedingly clever and unique. The diminutive entertainers range in height from 21 to 30 inches.

To students of the Darwinian theory Alexander the Great, one of the largest monkeys ever shown here, forms an interesting study, because of his almost human intelligence. "Jahnsen the Great," magician and illusionist, performs some new tricks.

Quite an innovation is the place named "Ride the Rapids," one of the most mirth-provoking institutions ever invented for the dispelling of gloom and the precipitation of forced laughter. The gigantic "jazzer," as jazzy as its name, is enough to scramble a hard-boiled egg, and no person suffering from dropsy should enter it more than ten times in one evening.

Besides many other shows, including the Krazy Kats of Crystal Maze, the Dawn of Tomorrow, the Mechanical Battlefield, the Coney Island side show, Stella, the Devil's Saucer and then some, there are the numerous riding devices, including the $20,000 carousel. The permanent attraction of Lakewood, such as the Greyhound and Old Mill, are well patronized by young and old.

PALMER CEASES FIGHT TO RETURN ARKANSAS NEGRO

Leavenworth, Kans., October 12. Proceedings begun in the Kansas federal court to bring about the return to Arkansas of Robert Hill, negro, accused of participation in race disturbances at Helena, Ark., last fall, have been dismissed at the instance of Attorney General Palmer, according to an announcement made by Fred Robertson, United States district attorney for Kansas, here late today. Announcement also was made that Attorney General Palmer had directed officials at Little Rock to dismiss an indictment against Hill charging him with impersonating a government officer.

According to statements of federal officials, Hill's status is now that of a free man. No further proceedings are pending against him, and they said he is free to return to Arkansas. However, friends of Hill said late today that he had obtained employment on a farm near here, and that he would make no effort to return to Arkansas.

MUSCOGEE DELEGATES MAY NOT ATTEND MEET

Columbus, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—Muscogee may not be represented in the state democratic convention in Macon. Chairman Dismukes, of the county democratic executive committee, will appoint a Walker delegation, this county having gone for Walker in the recent primary, but at this moment it seems rather doubtful whether any of the delegates will attend the convention.

MINERS ASK KILBY TO SETTLE STRIKE

Birmingham, Ala., October 12.—Pledging themselves to abide by the decision of the body, the United Mine Workers of America today asked Governor Kilby to appoint a comission to settle the strike in the coal fields of Alabama.

The plea was made through state officers of the miners' union, and urged that the commission be composed of one representaitve each of the miners, the coal operators and the public.

The desire was expressed that the governor "distinctly understand that we do not make the proposal with any thought of our forces weakening," but, on the other hand, the letter to the governor said, "we are guided by patriotic motives, in the hope that the controversy may be settled once and for all."

Funeral of Miller.

Columbus, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—The funeral of G. T. Miller, former Columbus citizen, who died in Atlanta, was conducted here today by Rev. Solon B. Cousins, pastor of the First Baptist church. Mr. Miller was for 40 years baggagemaster at the union passenger station here, moving to Atlanta just a few years ago.

HARDING DRIVEN TO FRONT PORCH, SAY DEMOCRATS

New York, October 12.—The latest trip west of Senator Harding, republican presidential nominee, has convinced his managers that he cannot confront the people, and must be returned to his front porch," Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the democratic national speakers' bureau, declared in a statement issued here today.

"It was amusing to read where they were so anxious to get Senator Harding back to Marion that a special train was run and no stops for speaking allowed, getting him into Marion five hours earlier than scheduled," Senator Harrison said.

"He is runing to cover. The cancellation of his speaking dates is another illustration of the firght in which his managers are thrown, and their conviction that it will not do to allow him to go before the people.

"The campaign of misrepresentation, duplicity and deception waged by the republican leaders now has spent its force. West Virginia, Indiana and Ohio are assuredly democratic. We have cinched fourteen states in the west, and from now on the drive in New York, New Jersey and the New England states will be intense. If the democratic trend continues as it is going now, not only will Al Smith be re-elected governor of New York, b ut Cox and Roosevelt will sweeu the state."

GEN. DIAZ DEPORTED ON FRENCH STEAMER

Vera Cruz, October 12.—General Felix Diaz, who has been ordered deported, sailed at 6 o'clock this evening from Vera Cruz on board the French steamer Flanders. He will be accompanied until he reaches Havana by Captain Isaac Cortes, of the Mexican military police. It is said Diaz will go to New Orleans.

While boarding the steamer General Diaz was cheered by large numbers of people who gathered at the dock to bid him farewell.

Prior to sailing Diaz told the Associated Press correspondent that he was disgusted with the course that had been taken against him by the federal government. All the government's promises to him had been broken, he said, and instead of fighting him it had taken him by surprise.

During his enforced stay in Vera Cruz, Diaz nominally was a prisoner at military headquarters, but he was free to communicate with all persons he desired to see.

CLASH OF AUTHORITY ON INTRASTATE RATES

Washington, October 12.—Conflicting opinions as to authority of the interstate commerce commission to prescribe railroad rates within a state were presented to the commission today by representatives of the railroads and state commissions at the hearings on application of the roads of New York and Illinois for an order increasing intrastate fares to the level of the 20 per cent advance granted for interstate traffic.

Spokesmen for the railroads contended that the transportation act made the whole rate structure of the country a matter for the consideration of the interstate commerce commission and that the federal authority was no longer confined solely to the regulations of interstate traffic. State commissioners, however, argued that the commission was without authority to make blanket increases in the traffic charges within the boundaries of a state and that congress did not broaden the power of the commission over intrastate regulation.

The transportation act represents a national view of the transportation problem, and the power of the commission is not confined to interstate rates, Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, declared in the closing argument for the roads. New provisions are contained in the law, he asserted, allowing the carriers to complain to the commission regarding state rates and to invoke its jurisdiction. New language, he said, permits the commission to remove discrimination against the whole body of interstate commerce.

John E. Benton, general solicitor of the Association of Railway and Utilities commissions, told the commission that the commissioners of forty states opposed the railroads' claim "because of the momentous issue" involved. Whether state commissions are to continue to function under state laws as they have in the past is the question to be decided, he declared. The supreme court has clearly established, Mr. Benton contended, that prior to the passage of the transportation act, congress did not intend to interfere with statewide authority nor to establish any unified authority over state and interstate rates.

15-Cent Soup, Made Of Pedigreed Pigeons, Served on East Side

New York, October 12.—Fifteen-cent soup made of $100 pedigreed pigeons has been served recently in East Side eating houses. Police discovered this epicurean irregularity today after arresting a 16-year-old boy on complaint of a pigeon fancier that his coops of prize winning birds had been persistently robbed. He valued the pigeons at $1,500.
